Balboa Does It Again

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE — After being the grand champion at the prestigious state show and producing 31,000 pounds of milk and 1,200 pounds of fat as a two year old last year, Cherry Brook LTD Balboa came to the 1986 Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show here Thursday as a three year old and did it again. Was named senior and grand champion that is.

It all started when David Dowler purchased Balboa's dam at the Fire Power Sale as a calf in 1981. When this calf Hanover-Hill Rag Apple Rocky grew up (now 2E) she was mated to Valiant. Balboa is the result of this mating.

State Dairy of Distinction Board of Directors Named

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE — A group of dairy industry enthusiasts who were in attendance at a meeting here at Penn State in the interest of the Northeast Dairy Farm of Distinction Award Program agreed to become the first state board of directors and work to get the program in operation in Pennsylvania by the spring of 1987. Since milk originates from dairy farms, the Dairy Farm of Distinction Program is designed to encourage the beautification of dairy farms for the benefit of consumers of milk who may drive past the farm. Any dairyman that produces milk for sale and has a nice-looking farm may apply for the award.

Plans call for the state to be divided into districts according to cow numbers and numbers of dairy farms. For example, with its concentration of dairy cows, Lancaster County may be divided into two districts. Where dairy farms are more sparsely situated a larger territory would be included in a district.

A local board of directors promotes the program, assigns local judges and provides the recognition events in each district. Colorful farm signs are awarded to let the public know your farm has received the distinction. The state directors form the basis to tie the local districts together and provide the tie into the regional organization of the program.

Steve Spencer, Penn State dairy science department, called the meeting to order and introduced Bill Underwood, president, and Sue Renholds, executive secretary of the New York State Dairy of Distinction Program. Underwood said thier program, which started three years ago, "exceeded by far anyone's expectations. The interest was strong. The participation never has gone below 300 applications per year. And it has had a good impact on agriculture in New York State."

At present 384 farms in New York State have received the Dairy of Distinction Award. They limit the award to 10 farms in each district each year. In addition the farm must requalify each year to retain the distinction.

Underwood said not all Dairy of Distinction farms are along main roads. Many are along back roads where they don't get much exposure but still have a desire to keep their farms looking beautiful. "It gave dairymen in New York State a chance to sit down under a common cause to work on a project," Underwood said. "And that has been important. Anything we have learned or any of our program bylaws, application forms or judging criteria that can be used to get the Pennsylvania program started is openly available to you," Underwood said. "New Jersey is also interested and we hope that together we might turn our experience into a Northeast Regional Program."

The new Pennsylvania state board of directors have already set up two October meetings for organizational and program planning sessions. The dairy industry leaders on this new board of directors are as follows: Helen Fountain, Dairy Lea; Wally Jackson, Milk Inc.; James R. Barnett, Innerstate; Paul Nichols, ADA&DC; Audrey Queitzsch, Pennnsylvania Brown Swiss Association; Danna Baker, Eastern Milk; Daniel M. Baker, ADA&DC; Wally Willy, Hershey Chocolate Co.; Richard Packard, dairy farmer; Patty McMurray, dairy farmer; Darwin Braund, Agway, Inc.; Mike O'Connor, Penn State Dairy Extension; Bill Smedley, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, PDA; Bob Williams, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, PDA; Steve Spencer, Penn State Dairy Extension; Everett Newswanger, Lancaster Farming newspaper.

Lancaster Co. Ag Income Down

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Lancaster County farmers harvested a healthy crop of ag commodities in 1985, but received $24.6 million less for their products than the previous year.

The total value of Lancaster's agricultural products for 1985 was $685 million, reflecting a $19 million decrease in the value of crops and a drop of $5.6 million in the value of livestock and poultry.

"We had a good year in production, but a very tight year in dollars," said Lancaster County Extension Director Jay Irwin. Irwin released 1985 county agricultural statistics compiled by the Agricultural Statistics Service in a press conference here Wednesday.

Farmers broke county records in wheat, barley, oats, and potatoes, the number of dairy cows and laying hens and value of dairy products and eggs in 1985. But the abundance of products contributed to lower prices for almost every commodity "I think the imbalance of supply and demand was a major factor," Irwin said.

"The way agriculture has maintained its strength in this country is the increase in productivity — the increase in production in yield per acre, increase in production in pounds of milk per cow, eggs per hen and pounds of meat put on a broiler," he said.

But despite the declining value of ag commodities, the number of county farms remained steady at 5,210.

"We have a tradition in this county of really tightening the belt when conditions are bad," Irwin said "I think Lancaster County is fortunate in that we have the tight farms we do."

With 113,000 cows producing $213.5 million of dairy products, Lancaster County leads the state in milk production. However, dairy farmers here received about 85 cents less per hundredweight of milk than in 1984. The average loss of income on a dairy farm, Irwin

Haylift Lands In York Co.

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

AIRVILLE — Hundreds of southern York County dairy cows will have fuller bellies this winter, thanks to the generous efforts of fellow Pennsylvania farmers, community volunteers and the military.

Among the shipments of donated hay which began arriving in southern York County this week was a convoy of six National Guard transports which rolled into the Airville area Tuesday afternoon with about 50 tons of bales.

Another 50-ton shipment, three boxcars of hay donated from western Pennsylvania, was expected late in the week. It was being moved cost-free by ConRail and the Stewartstown Railroad, and was loaded by Army Reserve personnel.

Hay coming into York County is being routed to full-time farmers, primarily dairy operations, facing critical feed shortages due to the season's severe, extended drought.

Some 1,737 cows on 22 farms will eat better with those two shipments alone. The six loads which arrived Tuesday in Airville were distributed to feed 890 cows on a dozen farms, averaging 74 head per herd. Hay due on the Stewartstown boxcar shipment was earmarked for ten herds averaging 84 head, and a total of 847 cows.

Another four boxcars of hay, loaded in Sullivan County, are expected to arrive at a later date in York County Originally intended for use in the South, the transportation costs were found to be prohibitive, and the shipment instead diverted to aid York farmers.

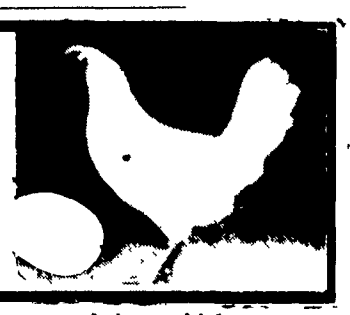
POULTRY MARKETS



Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, Sept. 4, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged to one cent higher on mediums, balance unchanged. Trade sentiment mixed but mostly steady to fully steady. Demand continued moderate to good. Supplies of large were adequate to closely cleared. Extra large were in good overall balance. Mediums were unevenly distributed but where available, cleared rather easily. Jumbos were about adequate and smalls were short. Gradable receipts were usually adequate. Breaker interest was light to fair and cautious.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door: A Extra Large 67-69; A Large 65-67; A Medium 54-56.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Sept. 4, 1986

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds continued to exceed availability, particularly on two and a half to three pound sizes, which were non-existent at several plants. Demand for parts was brisk on breasts and especially rib breasts, which were short. Wings were barely adequate for a good call. Dark meat items cleared well, but supplies were a bit more in line with inquiries. Less than trucklot asking prices were generally two cents higher at 61-69 cents. Live supplies were moderate. Weights generally heavy. Slaughter schedules were heavy. The undertone remained firm.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 9/4 2,035,000; Actual 8/28 1,980,000.

Actual 9/2 1,999,000.

Average Weights 9/2 4.73, 8/26 4.53.

Eastern PA and NJ Poultry

Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1986

AREAS TO LOOK AT TO IMPROVE PROFITABILITY

1. Know your actual costs- a good farm records system that separates crops from dairy will show you actual crop costs/profits and milk sales costs/profits.
2. Don't keep extra heifers- it costs approximately $300 per year to feed each heifer. Milking x 60% gives you total number of heifers birth to fresh. Example 50 milk cows x 60% = 30 heifers total.
3. Work on a better growing program for the generally neglected yearling heifer. Bigger "spring of rib" heifers will eat more forage and give a bigger milk check during their first lactation. Heifers need to average 15,000-16,000 lbs. of milk for their first lactation.
4. Use 2- feed system for milk cows. Fresh cows get high density feed for peak lactation, and tail enders are fed least cost ration.
5. Grow better quality forages- this will reduce amount of feed needed to balance forage program.
6. Reduce overhead- rented ground and poorly utilized equipment can be costly. It generally pays to grow your forages, but look at using custom services for silo filling.
7. Analyze your crop operations- with surpluses in wheat, corn, and soybeans the profitability in these crops is slim, and probably non-existant on small acreage. Remember, the dairy cow is a ruminant that can be fed forages and grain by-products.

The Hisex White and Brown Layers:

Compare the production and feed efficiency of the Hisex White and Hisex Brown layers and you won't find any better, anywhere. And that is a condition that will continue since Hisex research and development keeps improving the breed.

But mere test figures don't tell the whole story. The fact is that good henhouse managers can beat these figures. Hisex field testing has proven that. You may well obtain better feed conversion, mortality, and higher production.

As in all things, you must start with a good, basic product. The good genes, in other words.

See for yourself. Put these great birds to work for you soon. You'll find their average performance produces above average results.

OPINION

Favorable Market Prices

This summer's favorable market prices for hogs and now the rise in beef prices could result in some good profits for livestock producers this year. All we can say "It's about time." But it certainly is nice to be able to report some good news as far as market prices are concerned.

Glenn Grimes, agricultural economist from the University of Missouri, said the profit opportunities for swine producers could continue well into next year. Grimes made the statements at the Thirteenth American Farm Bureau Federation Beef Cattle Hog Cycle Forum held recently in Chicago.

Ed Uvacek, Jr., an Extension economist and livestock marketing professor at Texas A & M University, said the good market price news extends to the cattle sector as well. Uvacek said this year's calf crop, the lowest since 1960, is encouraging for beef producers. And with prospects for choice fed steers to move into the mid 60 range during the last two quarters of 1968, it should result in some favorable prices this fall for feeder cattle and calves. "We've got several things going for us this fall," Uvacek said. "First of all, we have a short of supply. And for the first time in many, many months, it looks like the commercial feed lots are starting to make money. This could be a very unusual fall for the cow/calf operator. And certainly one that will give him calf prices better than what he had last year," Uvacek said.

Of course a note of caution was also expressed. The third panelist, Wayne Purcell, professor of agricultural economics at Virginia Tech University, cautioned that with favorable prices cattle and swine producers will have the temptation to rebuild their inventories of breeding stock.

On the pork side, Grime said producers should not make the mistake of convincing themselves that there won't be an increase in pork supplies in the future. Purcell cautioned pork producers to not invest heavily in expansion unless you are willing to forward price. Grimes agreed that producers who cannot stand risk and those heavily in debt or with other financial problems should forward price their hogs.

Seldom have so many factors turned bullish compared with the year before as those that have influenced the hog market this spring and early summer. Yet producers should be cautioned not to make the mistake of assuming that expansion is not going to occur. Yet if hog prices are as high this fall as it seems likely, and feed prices are as low as now indicated, the incentives will be very strong to walk the corn off of midwest farms.

While we have this good news of favorable prices, it seems certain that livestock producers must be continually aware that the demand side for red meat is a major factor in deciding price profitability. This demand problem is caused by a number of trends including consumers changing lifestyles, their health concerns and the absence of aggressive product development for beef and pork.

We need to all work together so solve these market problems and supply problems so that this summer's favorable market prices carry over into many years in the future.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Protect Show Animals

September in Lancaster County is Fair time. It is also a time to be concerned about the health of show animals. Fairs should be a place where we can exhibit our animals; they should not be a place for spreading diseases and other ailments. Be considerate of other exhibitors and of other show animals. If your animals have any infection or contagious problems, leave them at home; it's like keeping a sick child out of school to protect those who are healthy. If you do show, consult your veterinarian about necessary tests and protective vaccines.

When you return your livestock to the farm after the show, isolate them from other animals on the farm before introducing them to their herd mates.

To Install Drain Tile

Farmers who have wet spots in their fields might use the early fall months to install drain tile or drain pipe. These areas will be more workable now than in the spring. When the tile is put in place now, winter grains can be seeded on the area with little loss of crop production.

Many farms have one or more wet spots in crop land that gives trouble in the majority of crop seasons. These can be corrected with tile drainage systems. In most cases the cost of draining wet spots in crop land is a good investment. Under current production costs, every acre should be managed to produce maximum yields.

To Check Feed Bins

We are coming into the fall season where we see considerable temperature change from day to night. This causes a lot of moisture condensation, as we see it on car windows in the morning. This same type of condensation takes place in the bulk feed bins on our farms. It causes the build-up of molds on the bins and in the feed.

When feed bins are cleaned out, they should be inspected thoroughly, right down to the boot. Also, when you are taking feed out of the bin, keep a close watch for chunks of feed; it will tell you if a problem is developing.

After cleaning out the bin, it should be sprayed with a mold inhibitor and allowed to dry. You can use calcium proprionate solution as the inhibitor, at the rate of 21 ounces per gallon of water for the spray. One of the best ways to prevent this condensation problem is to insulate the bin. The insulation will slow down the temperature fluctuation.

To Stop Feeding Trees and Shrubs

The time is here when we should not be applying any fertilizer to rose bushes, trees and shrubs. The season's growing period is about over and new growth should have a chance to harden before cold weather arrives. When we fertilize during the fall we encourage new growth, which will be tender, and will winter-kill in zero weather.

It is best to wait until early spring to apply any plant food to these types of plants. Mulching is a good practice to help conserve moisture and control weeds, but keep the fertilizer in the bag until the 1987 season.

BEFORE THE BEGINNING

September 7, 1986

Background Scripture: Genesis 1:1 through 2:3
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 45:7-12.

Many scientists believe that the universe began with a great explosion of primal elements. This theory, called "the Big Bang Theory," has resulted in mathmatical calculations that many believe pinpoint a relatively precise moment when the "Big Bang" took place billions of years ago. Some scientists have even constructed a precise scenario of what happened minute-by-minute.

I am not personally competent to evaluate this theory or these computations. I do see in them a certain logic and I find these ideas most stimulating and provocative. Sometimes thinking about the universe and my place in it helps to put things into perspective.

IN THE BEGINNING

I am also intrigued when these same scientists confess that, although they can estimate what happened in the minutes and hours following the "Big Bang," there is no way of knowing what happened or was going on even a fraction of a second before it. If in fact there was a "Big Bang" that brought the universe into being, scientists cannot — and probably never will — be able to determine who, what or why caused the great event of creation to begin.

It is important for us to determine as well as we can what really happened when the universe came into being, not just as a matter of curiosity about the past, but as a means of understanding the present and anticipating the future. But, if science can tell us what happened at the beginning, it is not less important for us to continue to contemplate what or who caused that beginning.

"VERY GOOD"

It is at this point that the Book of Genesis and its early chapters mean so much to me, for I find it impossible to think that the world "just happened," that there was nothing or no one who caused it to happen — "Big Bang or no bang at all. For, if the God had a purpose in creating the world — and Genesis says this plainly — what is his purpose for humanity in general and me in particular? Genesis says, "God blessed them . . . be fruitful and multiply . . . have dominion. . ."

The Genesis story of creation also affirms something which both the secular world and Christians seem to forget from time to time: "God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very, very good" (1:31).

The best numbers for your bottom line.

One way to get better numbers on your bottom line is to plant the best numbers you can in the spring. Which is why farmers are planting more acres to Pioneer® brand hybrids every year. They know Pioneer hybrids, developed from exclusive lines, are their best chance at bigger yields and better numbers.

3744

Performance wise, 3744 is tough to beat. Besides outyielding the competition by a wide margin over the last three years, 3744 usually dries down faster. It has excellent root and stalk strength, resists Northern, Southern and Carbonum Leaf Blights, and does well under higher populations and higher management or irrigation.

3352

This newcomer has already proven itself as the yield leader for its maturity. Over the last three years in this area, 3352 holds a significant yield advantage against competitive hybrids. Now, that kind of performance speaks for itself. But besides yields, 3352 has very good emergence and early vigor along with excellent stay green and leaf disease resistance against Northern and Southern Leaf Blights, Eyespot and Gray Leafspot. This hybrid is going to surprise a lot of folks.

3378

A leading hybrid with the ability to deliver big, hefty yields in poor growing seasons as well as good growing seasons. 3378 owes much of this success to its hearty agronomic traits like outstanding plant health, superb standability, fast emergence, strong drought tolerance and ears that "flex" to accommodate growing conditions. With so much going for it, it's not hard to see why 3378 is a lot of growers' favorite corn. Plant some and you'll be convinced too.

Omaha Weekly

Thursday, Sept. 4
Report Supplied by USDA

A higher trend was registered on the close for all classes of slaughter cattle at the Omaha livestock market terminal this week. Steers and heifers closed 50 cents higher, cows steady to 1.00 higher and bulls firm to 1.00 higher. Trading on all classes was marked by good buyer demand as most were in need of some cattle for immediate needs. Even though some weakness developed in dressed beef channels sellers maintained a firm hold on cattle ready for slaughter and buyers were unable to force prices lower to come in line with dressed realizations.

Estimated 4 day receipts this week 4,000 compared to actual 5 day receipts of 4734 last week and 5126 last year. Slaughter steers accounted for 45 percent of receipts this week, heifers 43 percent, cows 9 percent, feeder 1 percent.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: Choice 2-4 1050-1300 lbs. 39.50-61.00, 4 loads 61.50. Mixed good and choice 2-3 1050-1250 lbs. 57.50-59.50. Good 55.00-57.50. Few good 2-3 1200-1500 lb. holsteins 50.50-51.50.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: Choice 2-4 950-1150 lbs. 58.50-60.00, 3 loads 60.25-60.50. Mixed good and choice 2-3 925-1050 lbs. 55.50-58.50. Few good 53.50-55.50.

Average of LS 214 detailed price quotations for choice 900-1100 lb. steers this week 59.50, 1100-1300 lbs. 60.50. Average cost of all slaughter steers this week 60.06, average weight 1155 lbs. compared to 58.30 and 1167 last week. Average cost of all slaughter heifers this week 58.54, average weight 1040 lbs. compared to 57.80 and 1031 lbs. last week.

SLAUGHTER COWS: Breaking utility and commercial 2-4 36.75-40.50. Cutter and boning utility 1-3 35.50-40.00, high dressing to 41.00. Canner and low cutter 33.50-36.75.

Hauling grain to the elevator? Maybe you didn't know you're losing big money.

Elevators cost plenty First there's the hauling Then the unpleasant moisture dockage Then the storage fee Not to mention all those frustrating hours waiting in line just when you really need to be in the field Just think what having your own grain drying and storage could mean for your operation

Beats other drying systems hands down.

Cuts energy costs 75% No high temperature expense with computer controlled fan-forced air Reduced shrinkage Natural moisture removal means less shrink, higher test weights and more profit Better grain quality Your grain keeps more starch, sugar and valuable nutrients Reliable computer technology Automatically monitors grain day and night for optimum grain moisture content Farm proven from the Midwest to the East Coast, the AeroDry System can really add to your bottom line Call or mail the coupon for more information and where to see the AeroDry System in action near you

Sources 1982 data compiled from ERS, Economic Indicators of the Farm Sector National Financial Summary 1984 and (for items with asterisks) from the 1982 Census of Agriculture [1]The returns of many farms are shared by more than one farm household This is especially true for the larger farms which are more likely than smaller farms to be organized as partnerships or corporations Therefore per farm income averages do not necessarily represent income averages of individual farm households Because of data limitations the off farm income figure is reported for only one farm household per farm (the farm operator household)

Drug Firms Explain Safety Of BGH

Four animal drug firms, Elanco Products, American Cyanamid, Monsanto and Upjohn, have joined forces to explain to the Food and Drug Administration, and Department of Agriculture, and Congress that bovine growth hormone (BGH) can be used in lactating cows without endangering the quality or safety of milk.

Representatives of the four firms met with FDA officials to give their joint presentation recently, according to a memorandum of the meeting prepared by Dr. Woodrow M. Knight of FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine.

In addition to saying BGH poses no danger to the environment and is not biologically active in humans, the firms' representatives also stated that it will not endanger the ability of the small dairy farmer to compete with the larger farmers, Knight reported.

Meanwhile, American Cyanamid has written FDA that use of bovine growth hormones will have no impact on the environment and urged the agency to reject a coalition's petitioned denial of a New Animal Drug Application for somatotropin bovine growth hormone (BGH) based on environmental concerns.

American Cyanamid rejected the petition's interpretation of the "true nature" of BGH and its status under FDA regulations, saying that it is "not a new genetic bacterial material, only another purified pharmaceutical preparation." It continued:

"Cyanamid suggests that, because of this crucial distinction, the concerns of the petitioners are without foundation and that an EIS (Environmental Impact Statement) is not needed and there is no reason based on genetic concerns for denying any applications for approval of such products. Indeed other pharmaceuticals similar to bovine somatotropin, e.g., human insulin, human interferon and human somatotropin, have been approved by FDA, manufactured and sold without environmental impact."

The firm said the petitioners, the Foundation on Economic Trends and its president, Jeremy Rifkin, the Humane Society of the U.S., the Wisconsin Family Farm Defense Fund, and the Secretary of State of Wisconsin, fail to make clear the status of these products at FDA or to relate their requests "to past and present FDA regulations governing animal drugs (and human drugs as noted above) and environmental considerations which are in place and are operative."

Noting the agency's Investigational New Animal Drug Application (INAD) regulations for testing and approving new animal drugs and revoking applications when facts warrant revocation, it added, "The FDA thus has ample authority to take whatever action is needed to protect both human and animal health and, indeed, environmental safety."

Additionally, American Cyanamid pointed out that the agency revised its environmental regulations in 1985 and stated that INAD's "are categorically exempt from the requirements of the preparation of environmental assessment (EA)," continuing:

"Thus, an environmental assessment is not required for an INAD if the drug is intended to be used for clinical studies 'in which waste will be controlled or the amount of waste expected to enter the environment may reasonably be expected to be non-toxic.' Thus, at this stage, not even an environmental assessment is routinely required, much less an Environmental Impact Statement."

FDA's environmental regulations state that no category of FDA action "routinely significantly affects the quality of the human environment and... therefore automatically requires an EIS," American Cyanamid said, adding that "no FDA actions, including, perforce, NADA's and INAD's routinely require EIS's."

"But the FDA has gone on to rule," it continued, "that before the FDA approved any application to permit the marketing of these products, it will require the preparation of an environmental assessment."

Petitioners' Requests "Premature"

American Cyanamid said, "Given this pattern of regulation the petitioners' requests are clearly premature," adding that "FDA might not approve bovine somatotropin on grounds totally unrelated to environmental considerations," and noting that certain of the petitioners "have already been judicially instructed that their requests for EA's and EIS's indevelopmental research projects are misplaced."

FDA exhibited its awareness of public concern for "the orderly progress of new technologies in harmony with environmental safety," it said, in requesting American Cyanamid to submit an EA covering the investigational use of the firm's bovine somatotropin and it complied with the request.

Impact on Dairy Farmers

The firm said the adverse economic impact of bovine somatotropin on the dairy farmer forecast by the petitioners is also "in error," and that the petitioners reliance on a Cornell University study on the economic impact of BGH as the basis of their economic allegations is "a severe misuse of the Cornell scientists' work and... without foundation."

The Cornell study, American Cyanamid said, made it "abundantly clear" that it is the federal milk price support system "that has and will continue to affect the dairy industry in the most significant way in the years to come." Potential removal of these price supports to achieve a natural balance of supply and demand "will cause the number of dairy farms to decrease significantly, again independent of any actions taken with respect to bovine somatotropin," the firm said, contending that "it is clearly the potential future changes to the government surplus system that is the prime concern to petitioners, not bovine somatotropin."

Petitioners' concerns on increased total feed requirements were also rejected by American Cyanamid as a misinterpretation of the Cornell study findings, saying that the study's conclusion that feed requirements of individual cows producing increased amounts of milk may increase "does not support the apparently intended inference that the total feed requirements for the entire U.S. dairy herd nationwide will increase."

"In fact, total feed requirements to produce the total U.S. milk supply will decrease slightly with bovine somatotropin use as compared to such requirements without use of bovine somatotropin," American Cyanamid commented, saying, "The simple fact is that all the studies published to date reveal that when bovine somatotropin is used, less feed is required per pound of milk produced."

The petitioners' citing of the Cornell study as linking bovine somatotropin use with an estimate that "...between 25 percent and 30 percent of all dairy farms in the U.S. will be forced out of business... Within five years nearly one out of every two... will be eliminated," has been refuted by the senior author of the report as "totally off the wall... There is nothing in our study that says anything remotely like this," American Cyanamid said.

Additionally, the firm questioned the petition's allegations on the adverse effects of BGH on the health of dairy cows, stating, "No scientific authority is cited for any of these allegations." The company contended that scientific studies conducted to date demonstrate "exactly the opposite." American Cyanamid cited a study by Bauman et al. which concluded that treatment with the product:

"...obviously ...did not stress the animals adversely. The animals were in good health through the study... We have never observed any health abnormalities or evidence of stress... In fact, the dramatic increases in efficiency we have observed with BGH treatment would have never occurred if cows were unhealthy or stressed in any way."

American Cyanamid noted also that the Cornell study "demonstrated that under conditions of market equilibrium there would be essentially no increase in New York State milk production projected with the use of bovine somatotropin over the level expected without bovine somatotropin or government price supports."

"The sole undeniable fact," according to the firm, "is that bovine somatotropin will allow the U.S. dairy industry to produce that volume of milk which is socially, economically and politically acceptable to the nation as a whole utilizing less feed and at less cost to the farmer, large or small."

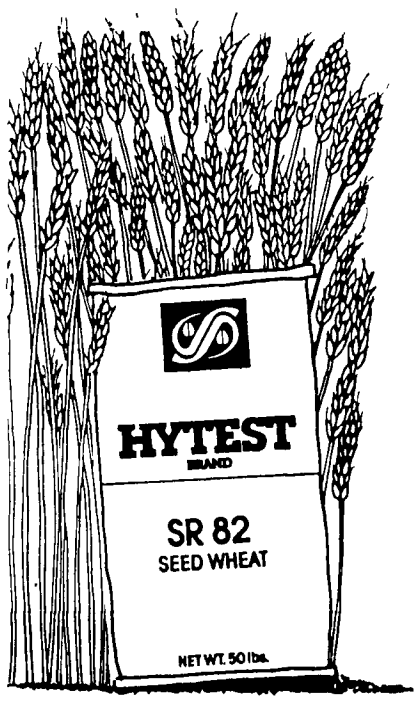
SR82 WHEAT

Outstanding Value

When you plant HYTEST SR82 for your winter wheat crop you can save money right up front because 100 lbs. to the acre is ideal, no need to plant more. You'll get a plant with strength and medium tall height—great for straw or grain. This top yielding soft red winter wheat shows good fall growth. An ideal performer for eastern conditions.



SR82 is one of the top soft red winter wheat varieties available to the farmer in the Mid-Atlantic states. Excellent yield potential, powdery mildew resistance, good standability and high straw yields are SR82's outstanding qualities.

Bicksler Consignment Nets Highest Bid Of Lebanon Holstein Sale

LEBANON — The crowd milled around the sale barn studying the consignments trying to determine which one they would bid on and which one would sell for the top price of the Lebanon County Holstein Sale.

Several animals were considered as contenders for the title, but when the sale ended Ray Bicksler's consignment netted the high bid of the evening. Russelldale Chairman Regal sold for $1,650 to David and Ruth Schrack, Womelsdorf.

When Regal entered the sale ring, announcer Dale Hoover noted, "You can hardly put together a better pedigree than the one behind this bred heifer." Sired by Cal-Clark Board Chairman, she will freshen in early October to Sir C Valor.

Her dam, Russelldale Kingpin Ritzy, produced a top record of 20,110 pounds of milk as a 7 year old. All of Ritzy's fat records have ranged from 4.3 percent to 4.7 percent. The second and third dams back have also been consistent producers of fat records over 4.0 percent. Ruth explained the consistently high fat records attracted her and her husband to Regal.

Regal's maternal pedigree includes the sires Whirlhill Kingpin, Winterthur Apollo and Pawnee Farm Arlinda.

A bid of $1,550 proved to be the second highest bid of the sale when the final tally of the prices was made. Darryl Balmer, Lebanon, purchased the bred heifer Restful-Acres Jet Stream Malin for this price. Consigned by Frank and Virginia Graybill, Hershey, Malin's credits include a VG-88 dam with four records over 22,000 milk and up to 27,000 milk.

Her next dam back classified VG-89 with an excellent mammary and three records over 23,000 pounds of milk. Sires on Malin's maternal side are Vincent-View Molly Chief, Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief and Penstate Ivanhoe Star.

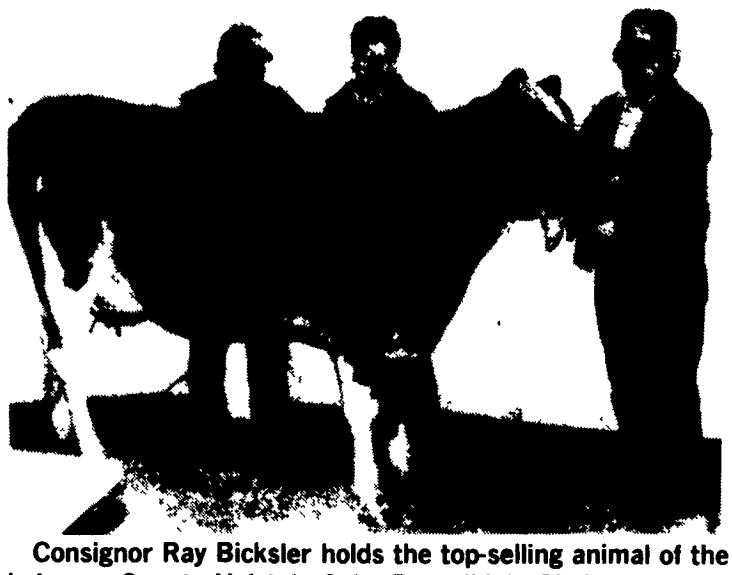
Malin will freshen in November 1986 to Crescentmead Chief Stewart. Her maternal sister is projected at 30,055 pounds of milk.

A bid of $1,500 for Arnold-Acres Basic Picasso rounded out the top three prices. Consigned by Arnold-Acres, Lebanon, Picasso sold to Charles and Jean Dodson, Lebanon. Sired by Marlu Basic, she will freshen in September to Bossir Glen-Valley Starlite Al.

Her dam, a Plushanski Persuader daughter produced a top record of 19,248 pounds of milk.

The most active bidding of the evening came on a 45-day-old heifer calf sired by Whittier Farms Ned Boy. Her dam, Mil-Harv Jade Citation Jo, produced a top record of 19,890 milk with a 4.1 test as a 9 year old. The calf sold for $650.

Harry Bachman, auctioneer for the sale, reported a total sale average of $1,087 on 47 lots. The 44 bred heifers and just-fresh cows averaged $1,112.



Consignor Ray Bicksler holds the top-selling animal of the Lebanon County Holstein Sale. Russelldale Chairman Regal sold to Ruth Schrack, center, for $1,650. Standing with Ruth is her father Roy Miller.

Kelly Elected Treasurer of NACAA

UNIVERSITY PARK--Bill Kelly, Westmoreland County Extension director and 25-year veteran of the Cooperative Extension Service, has been elected treasurer of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Since Kelly began his ag career as a farm manager in 1956, he has moved on to become a senior extension agent and county extension director involved in projects ranging from a beef and forage demonstration farm to a yearly county-wide rat control program.

In 1983, he received the Distinguished Service Award from NACAA for the role he played developing a 400-acre gift farm into the beef cattle and forage demonstration facility. It became the site of numerous demonstrations and workshops for farmers and agricultural associations.

The farm also generated quality research and data that eventually led to Penn State taking over the operation and continuing it at the southwestern Pennsylvania Pasture Research Laboratory.

During his years in Westmoreland County, Kelly also initiated livestock production programs and organized commodity groups for cattlemen, sheep, wool growers and pork producers. He set up milk marketing schools for dairy farmers and arranged an annual junior livestock show and sale for 4-H and FFA club members.

Working with Westmoreland County cattle producers, Kelly organized the county feeder calf sale, which markets nearly 300 head annually.

CIBA-Geigy, a farm chemical company, recognized Kelly's achievements several years ago when the company named him the state recipient of their Agricultural Recognition Award.

Emergency Forage Crops Can Reduce Drought Loss

NEWARK, Del. – The present drought has caused a shortage of available hay, grazing and greenchop on many Delmarva livestock and dairy farms. By August 1 it's too late to plant many of the traditional warm-season annual emergency hay crops such as millet, sorghum, sudangrass and sorghum-sudangrass hybrids. But University of Delaware extension agronomist Dr. Richard Taylor says several other crop groups–including the small grains, brassica or cole crops, and ryegrasses–have forage potential if adequate rainfall occurs for a successful seeding.

Among the small grains, for example, spring oats is an excellent choice for good fall yield, sown either broadcast or drilled in narrow rows in a weed-free, conventionally prepared seedbed. Taylor says oats should be sown at a rate of 2 to 3 bushels per acre, at a depth of 1 to 2 inches. Use either press wheels or a cultipacker to firm the soil over the seed.

"Spring oats should receive approximately 50 to 75 pounds of nitrogen preplant incorporated, along with phosphorus and potassium if needed," the specialist says. "Check the most recent soil test results on the field for its P and K status."

Other small grains with emergency forage potential are cereal rye (at a seeding rate of 2 to 2½ bushels per acre), barley (at 3 bushels per acre), wheat (at 2½ bushels per acre) and triticale (at 2 bushels per acre). Taylor warns that early plantings of barley and wheat may run the risk of Hessian fly infestations, but this shouldn't be a problem as long as the crop is only used for forage.

Growers who wish to use brassica or cole crops have a choice of either forage rape or a forage turnip called Tyfon. Sow brassicas broadcast or in narrow rows on a weed-free, conventionally prepared seedbed. Seed at a rate of 4 to 5 pounds per acre at a depth of ¼ to ½ inch on a firm seedbed, the agronomist says. Follow broadcast seedings with a cultipacker to ensure good soil/seed contact.

The fertility program for cole crops should include 50 to 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre preplant incorporated. Phosphorus and potash should also be applied preplant, according to soil test recommendations.

"Another possible choice for emergency hay would be the annual ryegrasses, or perhaps one of the tetraploid ryegrass varieties," Taylor says. "The annuals may experience anywhere from no to severe damage during the winter. Tetraploid ryegrasses may grow slightly slower, but are more likely to survive the winter with little damage, if planted on well-drained soils." He recommends a seeding rate of 25 to 40 pounds per acre to ensure rapid fall establishment.

Plant any of these ryegrasses on a conventional seedbed, or seed by air into standing corn or soybeans. If planting into soybeans, seed at about 50 percent soybean leaf drop; for corn, wait until leaves begin to change color. Apply 50 to 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre, either preplant incorporated or shortly after establishment.

"Any of these crops should provide grazing for livestock from mid to late fall until the ground freezes," Taylor says.

While they make excellent forage, brassicas crops do require considerably more management than grasses, the agronomist says. They should be grazed only a few hours each day as a supplemental livestock feed, not as the sole feed. This is due both to their high water content and the fact that cole plants contain toxins which can injure animals if fed exclusively for four to six weeks. Animals may need a day or two to adapt to cole crops; so to speed acceptance; it's best to put livestock into the field when they're hungry.

Brassicas must be rotationally grazed, because if cattle, sheep or other livestock are allowed to roam over a large block planting, they will soon trample much of the available forage. To reduce waste, Taylor advises allowing animals to feed for a short time each day on a limited area. Rotate back to that area in another few weeks.

In addition to grazing, any of the grasses mentioned above can be used for silage, if wilted first to reduce moisture content. They also offer an excellent opportunity for greenchopping, along with the possibility of regrowth if fall weather is favorable. Brassicas, because of their high water content, must be wilted and treated with a preservative before ensiling.

Milk Order Amendment Hearing Slated

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has scheduled a public hearing to consider proposals that would provide payments for market-wide services under seven southeastern federal milk marketing orders. The hearing will consider amendments to the Georgia, Tennessee Valley, Louisville-Lexington-Evansville, Alabama-West Florida, New Orleans-Mississippi, Greater Louisiana, and Nashville milk orders.

The Sept. 8 hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Colony Square Hotel, Peachtree and 14th Street, N.E., Atlanta, Ga.

Edward T. Coughlin, a dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the Food Security Act of 1985 amended the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 to permit payments for market-wide services under federal milk marketing orders.

The proposed amendments would provide for the use of market-wide pool proceeds to cover certain costs of maintaining facilities for handling weekend and seasonal reserve milk supplies and the cost of transporting milk from one location to another for the purposes of fulfilling fluid milk requirements and providing a market outlet for reserve milk supplies.

Notice of the hearing was published in the Aug. 15 Federal Register. Copies may also be obtained from the Dairy Division, Room 2971-S, USDA, AMS, Washington, D.C. 20250, or from any of the market administrators for the affected orders.

The 1986 PA State Holstein Show Fatu

Looking down the 1986 Keystone Futurity class from right: judge John Morris, State Dairy Princess Beth Heald, show chairman Ken Raney and class winner Glenn Stoltzfus.

Balboa herself was sold as young animal to David Thomas in West Virginia and became Reserve Junior All-American as a senior yearling. So Dowler repurchased an interest in Balboa prior to last year's state show. Later Edward Doeberiner at Queens-Manor Farms purchased an interest to now give Balboa three owners.

Reserve senior and reserve grand champion went to the first place age cow owned by Obie Snyder at Singing Brook Farms. Singing Brook Pete Audie was also the best animal bred and owned by an exhibitor and had been the first place two year old at the 1982 state show in Meadville. Audie has milk records up to 26,890 pounds of milk, 4.2 percent test and 1,092 of fat.

During the show Bill Nichol, Pennsylvania Holstein Association's executive secretary, introduced Snyder as the chairman of the board of trustees at Penn State University. Snyder told the group at ringside that it was a privilege to have the state show in the new ag arena here. "Thank you for your support," Snyder said. "You are the people who made it possible. It's quite amazing that more than 5,000 people had a hand in building this ag arena and barns. We at Penn State are simply the fortunate ones to have it here," he said.

The premier breeder of the 248 head show was Gordon Wood. The premier exhibitor was Queens-Manor. Judge John Morris of Frederick, Maryland, called this show an extremely good one in an excellent arena. "The quality runs deep in the classes," he said.

One of the highlights of the show was the naming of the 1986 Keystone Futurity winner. Entries in this class are started three years in advance when the animals are calves. They are reentered each year with the owners contributing to a futurity fund. This year's fund was in excess of $1,000. And the winner received over $400 for the effort. The winner was Pennwood Marvation Tiny owned by Harvey W. Stoltzfus. Second place went to Windy Knoll View Justa Wonder owned by James R. & Nina Burdette. Third place went to Londondale Dimension Dori owned by James London.

Nichol encouraged dairymen to get their calves entered now for the 1989 show. Any heifer calve that will show as a three year old in 1989 is eligible. Entries will be accepted by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association until September 31, 1986. For more information, contact the state association at 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801.

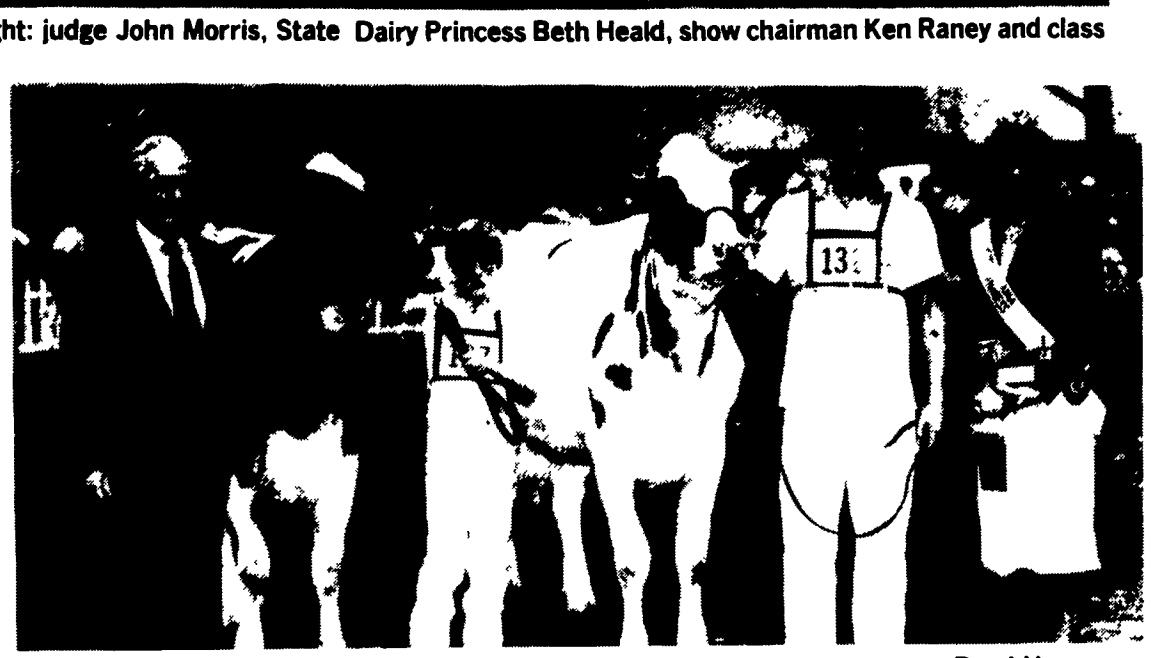
In the bull classes Reu-Hel Farms Valiant Scooter owned by Constance E. Troutman placed first in the senior yearling class and was named grand champion bull. Judge Morris noted the depth of heart and ribs in the champion. Scooter's dam is Very Good 87 and has records up to 26,224 pounds of milk, 4.2 percent test and 1,108 fat. The next four generations of dams are Very Good and have 4 percent test.

The reserve champion bull was the senior calf Sequa Slim USA owned by Queens-Manor Holsteins and Sequa Farms. His sire is Shanghigh Brandsons Slim and his dam is Sequa Gonzellies Racheal.

The junior champion female of the show was the senior yearling heifer Allenor Temptation Opal owned by Allenor Holstein Farms. And the reserve junior champion female was the senior heifer calf Wendy Knoll View Lota Quality owned by J. & N. Burdette and J. Rappaport.

This year's show also finalized the all Pennsylvania selections and the last event of the show was a parade and assembly in the ag arena of all of these animals. The show ring got a little crowded. But as someone at ringside commented, "this is the best class of the day."

Ken Raney, director of member service, was the person in charge of the show. The Penn State Student Dairy Science Club helped with the food stands and barn and ring chores. A list of the placings are as follows:



Youth junior champions with judge John Morris, from left, were: reserve, Rynd-Home Enhancer Anna-ET, Brooks Rynd; champion C. Philipail Warden Sterling, C.E. Hubbard and State Dairy Princess Beth Heald.

Obie Snyder exhibited Singing Brook Pete Audie, which was selected best animal bred and owned by exhibitor.

Confessions Of A Fair Judge

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co.
Staff Correspondent

I've sat in the stands for several years now and secretly dreamed of being a judge. That's why, when I was asked to judge an event at the Westmoreland County fair this summer, I accepted eagerly.

True, it wasn't judging cattle...but it was in my field. And after 16 years in advertising and public relations with plenty of experience in public speaking and in judging forensics and other competitions, I expected 4-H Presentations to be a breeze.

This summer I sat through more than my share of dairy and beef shows, and I've been a critical observer of judges. One consistently ignored the first three animals in the ring. Anyone, I thought could do a better job than that.

I don't remember thinking of him the morning I was arguing with myself over what to wear to the Presentations. Maybe I should have been. Instead I was imagining myself as the cool, confident controller of a high-school age crew that hung on my every glance and gesture as they went through their paces.

That dream started to crumble when I was assigned to the Junior Division. I may be cool and confident with teens, but I have a soft spot in my heart for youngsters caught in the agonies of preteen years.

I'm not saying my ability to judge faded...only that as a first-time fair judge I was less prepared than I should have been. What I thought would be a simple task turned out to be a very difficult one as ten eager youngsters tried to please me and my co-judge.

Yes, I helped to pick the winners. But in the end I found the score sheets didn't tell everything I felt. How do you tell a ten-year-old that just because my face looks serious, it doesn't mean I'm displeased? How do you help a child who's battling a stopwatch to relax and slow down?

I used the score sheet to tell one of the top placers that her choice of my favorite lullaby in her introduction caught my attention. But I couldn't tell another youngster with an equally catchy introduction that sometimes two judges don't agree. And if I had to pick a favorite, it wasn't any of the winners. It was the only boy who spoke.

He talked just above a whisper when he told how to care for a newborn pig. I was reminded of a book I'd read recently called "The Day No Pigs Would Die". In the book, the narrator is a ten-year-old who, in becoming aware of the larger world around him, is suddenly ashamed of living on a hog farm.

Of all the speakers at the fair, the boy presented the most appropriate subject and was the most knowledgeable speaker. When he talked about what to do in the first minutes of a pig's life, I knew he'd stayed up late in the barn with his father, waiting anxiously for a sow to farrow. He'd gone to school more than once very sleepy but proud that he'd helped with a new life.

But now, at ten, he was suddenly aware of the odor of pig, the fact that none of the other children had done what he'd done. And he was uncomfortable with being different. He was afraid to look at the audience, unwilling to feel any pride in talking about pigs.

I didn't know the words to tell him what I wanted to say: that he should be proud of who he is and what he knows. I hope in a year or two he'll be able to stand up straight and tall and show the others that he has had a special experience few of them will ever share.

And when the score sheets were tallied, it was my turn to be embarassed. The first two speakers, despite doing a good job in my estimation, placed far below the later speakers, because the other judge and I hadn't established a clear standard until later in the presentations. I thought of that cattle judge I was so quick to criticize, and I was ashamed.

I'd like to be a fair judge again. I think the next time I'll be better at it...and I'd like to judge the Junior Division again, because the next time I'll do better with the special challenge they present.

In the meantime, I'm going to be slower to criticize other judges. I learned the hard way, the job is never an easy one.

diesels to repower your equipment

From Evergreen Engines

Evergreen Engines Company has been the distributor for John Deere diesel engines in Eastern Pennsylvania since 1979. During that period, we have repowered or replaced the engine in most models of machines manufactured by Deere, both agricultural and industrial.

We have been active in the OEM marketplace both in new equipment and repowering or replacing engines in used OEM equipment. We have worked with many different types of equipment, such as irrigation pumps, electric generators, conveyors, fire equipment, air compressors, and various construction and agricultural machines manufactured by companies other than Deere.

We try to maintain an inventory of 70 new engines on hand at all times, and pride ourselves on fast (usually 24 to 48 hours) delivery.

We maintain our own in-house fuel injection pump room and a complete parts inventory.

We now offer a generous core credit exchange on your old engine.

At Evergreen, we deliver....from application engineering to follow up service.

Give us the opportunity; we'll prove what we say.

Waverly Farms Dominate Maryland State Fair Jersey Show

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Waverly Farm, The Robert Stiles Family, Clearbrook, VA, continued their winning ways by dominating the milking classes at the 1986 Maryland State Fair Jersey Show. Waverly Farm entries notched victories in all the cow classes with the exception of the 3-year-old class. Waverly Farm also outdistanced their competition to win both the premier breeder and the premier exhibitor banners.

True to the form he followed for the entire 208 head show, Judge Richard Keene pulled out the two cows he called the most dairy, open ribbed, and best legged cows of the show for his champions.

For grand champion Keene went to his winning 5-year-old cow, Hi-Power Surville Model. A Reglis Deni Hi-Power daughter scored Ex-92, Model was also named the best udder of her respective class. Her most current completed 365 day record is 12,151 milk, 5.1 percent fat, 3.9 percent protein and 479 protein.

For reserve grand champion, Keene went with Antietam Hill Toy, a 3 year old exhibited by Antietam Hill Farm, Boonesboro, Md. This good uddered daughter of Production Plus was also selected the best Maryland bred animal of the show.

In the heifer competition, John Stiles and Sons, Westminster, Md. took home both the junior and reserve junior trophies as well as winning the junior best three females class.

Selected as Junior Champion was Glenyle Jodys Eleanor, the Stiles' winning senior yearling. Keene granted her maturity and more width through the pins than her stablemate S. V. Bright Lillian, a junior yearling that stood as the reserve junior champion.

Almquist Receives Award

UNIVERSITY PARK — John O. Almquist's professional commitment to scientific research in artificial insemination has moved the American Society of Animal Science to name him an Honorary Fellow.

Dr. Almquist joined the staff of the Pennsylvania State University in 1944, becoming a full professor of dairy physiology in 1951. In 1949 he inaugerated the Dairy Breeding Research Center on campus, and is known internationally for his work in artificial insemination and the reproductive physiology of dairy and beef cattle. He retired in 1983 with emeritus rank.

Antibiotics are now widely used by the artificial insemination industry because of Almquist's research demonstrating the value of adding penicillin and streptomycin to diluted bull semen to control bacterial growth. He also pioneered the use of milk extenders to prolong the fertile life of bull spermatozoa.

In addition, his research includes a program on the reproductive physiology of bulls and the effects of nutrition and management upon the growth, reproductive development, sexual performance and fertility of bulls.

Dr. Almquist, who was raised on a farm in western New York, received his bachelor's degree at Cornell University in 1942, his master's degree at Purdue University in 1944 and his doctorate at Penn State in 1947.

He is a member of the American Dairy Science Association, Alpha Zeta, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi and Gamma Sigma Delta, in addition to the American Society of Animal Science.

Among his many awards is the international Wolf Prize, which was awarded to Dr. Almquist in 1981 for his outstanding contributions to the application of artificial insemination for livestock improvement. He was also awarded the Italian Society for Progress in Animal Production Research Award in 1972, and the Ivanov Al Pioneer Commemorative Medal from the Ministry of Agriculture of the Soviet Union in 1977. Last year he received the first Service to American Agriculture Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Hoff, Hill Share Maryland Premier Titles

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Lois Porter from Avon, N.Y. judged over 250 entries at the Open Holstein Show of the Maryland State Fair held at the Timonium Fairgrounds on a chilly Labor Day.

The senior and grand championship belonged to Gay Ridge Holsteins with their 5-year-old cow C Wynfield Marla. She was given the advantage in dairy character, quality and strength over the reserve champion C Hanover Hill TT Sonja, a 4-year-old cow owned by George Smith III. Both cows earned best udder nominations in their respective classes.

Jason and Donna Myers' 3 year old claimed the Maryland best bred and owned honors after she won the third Maryland Futurity. Marlin Hoff captured premier breeder for the second consecutive year. David Hill attained premier exhibitor honors as well as second place in the futurity.

Schwartzbeck Claims Junior Honors

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Judge Jason Myers from New Windsor had his work cut out for him as he placed over 200 entries at the Maryland State Fair 4-H Holstein Show.

Showing a stylish 4 year old, Shane Schwartzbeck from Carroll County captured the senior and grand champion titles with Peace and Plenty Fal Nancy.

The reserve senior and grand championship went to Chad Vosburg from Kent County with his 4-year-old Supreme Meadows Triple Sugar.

Matt DeBaugh took home best bred and owned and best uddered cow honors with his 4-year-old cow, DeBaugh Saul Misty. She was also honored with the A. Doty Remsberg Memorial Trophy for best bred and owned cow of all breeds.

Mike Iager received the total performance winner honor with Md.-Maple-Lawn Sexation.

Maryland Holstein Show Honors Three Individuals

David Brauning receives Distinguished Service Award

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — The Distinguished Service Award to Maryland Holsteins went to David Brauning.

He was born and raised on a dairy farm in Carroll County. His early participation in community activities and interest in the Holstein cow began when he became a 4-H member as an 8 year old. The 4-H motto, "To make the best better," has been a steadying influence and a continuing goal for Brauning.

His enthusiasm and active participation resulted in recognition on every level including international. Brauning appeared before the Queen of England as a representative of the Maryland 4-H judging team in 1955.

Brauning served as superintendent of the dairy department of the Maryland State Fair since 1978. 4-H, FFA and the registered dairy cow in Maryland have benefitted from the enthusiasm and dedication of Dave's efforts.

He has been directly involved with the Maryland State Fair for the past 20 years as assistant superintendent of dairy cattle. Brauning has also ser ed on the Maryland State Fair Board of Directors since 1975.

Brauning is called upon many times each year to judge various fairs and dairy shows in Maryland and neighboring states. Exhibitors and spectators appreciate his easily understood judging narrative. This nationally recognized dairy cattle judge is a life member of the Maryland Chapter of 4-H Club All-Stars and was selected the Westminster Jaycees' Outstanding Young Man of Carroll County in 1970.

The Maryland State Holstein Shows would not be complete without Brauning performing as announcer or Master of Ceremonies. He and his wife, Libby, live at Finksburg. The have one married son, David Jr.

Michael Haines Honored As Outstanding Junior Breeder

TIMONIUM, Md. — The Junior Breeder Award for 1986 Farms went to Michael Haines, Taneytown.

Haines originally began showing Ayrshires as a 4-H project, but at age 16 he started building a herd of Holsteins with his father. After working for his father for several years he purchased half of the cattle and equipment and formed a partnership with his father.

Today the herd consists of 168 head of registered Holsteins, 82 milking cows and 86 young stock. Along with the dairy operation, they farm 410 acres. While 80 percent of the farm's gross income comes from the dairy operation, a small grain operation accounts for the remaining 20 percent of income.

Over the years the herd has progressed greatly. In 14 years the herd average increased from 14,500 pounds of milk to 18,497 pounds of milk and the BAA went from 99.6 to 105.4.

Haines' breeding program consists of using the top PD bulls for milk, fat and protein with a strong emphasis on type. His goal is to breed high index cows without sacrificing outstanding type.

Haines has been very active and successful in showing on both the local and state level. On the county level, he has served as president, vice-president and sale chairman. On the state level, he is a state director and chairman of the constitution and bylaws committee.

Arthur Rhoderick named Outstanding Senior Breeder

Arthur Rhoderick, Hagerstown, received the Outstanding Senior Holstein Breeder Award at the Maryland State Fair Open Holstein Show.

Rhoderick's beginnings in the dairy business started in Frederick County at Clovertop Farm near Keymar. He worked there for the three years following his marriage.

In April 1959, the Rhodericks moved to Hedgeapple Farm near Buckeystown and entered an agreement to farm on a percentage arrangement. The next year they purchased half interest in the registered cattle and the equipment. The herd average at that time stood at 11,370 pounds of milk and 391 pounds of fat. Classification came two years later with the highest animal scoring at GP-84.

During the next four years, the herd size doubled. In 1964 the cattle were divided and the machinery resold to the original owner. Rhoderick moved to a rented farm near Hansonville and continued dairying for four more years.

At the end of this time, Rhoderick purchased a farm near Hagerstown and established Art-Acres. Today, the 132 registered Holsteins on the farm average 18,741 pounds of milk and 694 pounds of fat with a BAA of 102.

No mention of Art-Acres would be complete without the mention of Art-Acres Elevation Kay, EX-91-GMD. One of numerous Elevation daughters bred by Rhoderick, Kay has proven to be an excellent brood cow. Her sons in AI have made noteworthy achievements, her daughters have been merchandised successfully at the national level and granddaughter have received Honorable Mention All-American recognition.

Rhoderick has held offices in the Washington County Holstein Club and has served on various committees at the state level. He has served on the Sire Power board of directors, and is past president of the Washington County DHIA.

Marlin Hoff, left, presents the 1986 Outstanding Holstein Senior Breeder award to Arthur Rhoderick. Russell Wachter sponsored the award.

Myers Wins Maryland Holstein Futurity

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Organ music, tuxedo attired ringmen, officials entering in a horse-drawn buggy, spotlights and red carnations set the stage to make the third Maryland Futurity a gala affair.

For the first time it was held in the cow palace in conjunction with the Maryland State Fair. Mayor William Donald Schaffer, Senator Dennis Rassmussen and State Senate President Melvin Steinberg joined Maryland State Fair Board officials, dairy princesses and farm queens to celebrate the occasion.

The cows, the focus of the celebration, paraded around the ring after a spotlight introduction. Judge Lois Porter of Avon, N.Y. then had a close inspection of the 29 entries. This had been down from the original 500 entries of 3 years ago.

Del-Myr Milu Kristin emerged as the winner when the final announcement came. Owners Jason and Donna Myers were elated as the third and fourth placings were also from their herd. David Hill placed second and Marlin Hoff placed fifth.

Frederick Fair To Host Md. Junior Dairyman Contest

FREDERICK, Md. – Plans are underway for the 1986 Maryland PDCA Junior Dairyman of the Year Judging Contest to be held Saturday, Sept. 20 during the Great Frederick Fair in Frederick, Md.

Registration will be held at 9 a.m. with the contest starting at 9:15 a.m.

This year's contest is sponsored by the Maryland Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, Inc. and features $1,000 in prize money to be distributed among the top four contest winners.

The Maryland PDCA Junior Dairyman Contest covers all aspects of the dairy industry, and offers four judging classes, including dairy heifers, dairy cows, milking dairy goats and dairy steers. Identification classes include dairy products, milking system and the milking process, ingredients used in dairy feeds and field crop weeds.

The contest has a class on the evaluation of feedstuffs and a management problem pertaining to animal health, breeding or genetics. A test of 50 questions is also given, with the questions being taken from the Hoard's Dairyman Magazine dated Aug. 1, 1985 - Aug. 1, 1986.

Competition is open to all 4-H, FFA and FAA members who have passed their 14th birthday by Jan. 1, 1986 and must not be older than 19 as of Jan. 1 of the current year.

Teams of three members from the same 4-H club or FFA or FAA chapter may enter and those persons who do not have a team may enter as individuals.

Individuals or teams may enter the Md. PDCA Junior Dairyman Contest by mailing their team name, individual name, address, phone number and age of all team members to Md. PDCA Dairy Judging Contest, o/c Carroll County Cooperative Extension Service, 700 Agriculture Center, Westminster, Maryland 21157. Entries must be postmarked no later than Friday, September 12. No entries can be made on the day of the contest.

For a complete list of the rules and regulations for the Md. PDCA Junior Dairyman Contest, contact the following superintendents: Diane Flickinger, 2701 Old Liberty Road, New Windsor, Md. 21776 (301-635-6166), Carol Kahler, 11830 Keymar Road, Keymar, Md. 21757 (301-635-6166) or Betty Cole, 5030 Black Rock Road, Hampstead, Md. 21074 (301-374-2888).

Maryland To Hold Regional Poultry Sanitation Meeting

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – The evil that lurks on the soles of live poultry handlers could bring another epidemic of avian influenza this winter to the Northeast and the Mid-Atlantic area.

And what is this evil?

It's those invisible killers – microbes – so tiny that a million of them could ride on the head of a pin. Learning how to deal with their threat through effective sanitation is the key to survival for all segments of this nation's poultry industry. So says Edward T. Mallinson, Extension poultry veterinarian at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Mallinson notes that producers cannot fight the sanitation battle alone against the threat of avian influenza. It takes cooperation from everyone who handles live poultry.

To help achieve that goal, Mallinson and his co-workers from state and federal agencies in five states last year organized MACE – the Mid-Atlantic Cooperative Extension poultry health and management unit. On Sept. 11, MACE will sponsor its first regional educational meeting on "Practical Disease Prevention Procedures for Poultry." The event is being held at the University of Delaware in Newark, Del.

It is aimed at a broad spectrum of persons involved in producing, purchasing and transporting birds for movement to live poultry markets, live auctions or commercial poultry-processing plants.

Registration may be accomplished by calling Dan Palmer, Extension poultry specialist, (302) 856-7303.

"Adjusting To Expansion"

By Tom Brewer and Lou Moore, Extension
Economists at The Pennsylvania State University

It was a beautiful summer morning, and the office window was open. The smell of new-mown hay drifted through the window. The birds were singing, the mill was humming, and Bert was thinking about a number of things he and Harry were going to discuss that morning. He busied himself with making coffee, straightening displays, and writing a couple of checks for the morning mail.

Harry came in from an early morning visit to a farmer he thought might become a new customer. He was whistling as he walked across the lot and when he opened the door, said, "I think we've got him."

"Good," Bert responded.

Harry got a cup of coffee and sat down across the desk from Bert. "Things have gone pretty well these first few months with this place and the Hickery Mill under our ownership. We got through the planting season with no major problems and even gained a few new farmers despite the Dairy Herd Buyout program. Only a few of our customers bid, and even fewer had their bids accepted. We may lose some dairy cattle related sales to them, but most of them bought crop supplies, and it still remains to be seen what else they might get into."

Harry picked up on his thoughts and said, "You are exactly right. It doesn't look like the Dairy Buyout program will have much impact on us. Harry, we've been lucky."

Harry smiling, scratched his cheek and replied, "I thought you'd call it good planning, but whatever it is, we have been lucky in at least two ways. Number one, we were lucky to have Mr. Hickery in the other mill to help us through this transition. He has done a great job for us, but he's been after me to tell him he doesn't need to work all summer. Number two, Millan brought communication problems to our attention before they caused any real problems. Maybe both are a result of good planning too. After all, we hired Millan, and it was us that worked out the purchase agreement with Mr. Hickery that included his assistance for a few weeks."

Bert looked up from the desk and asked, "Have you got any new ideas about reorganizing our people so that we can relieve Mr. Hickery of his commitment to us?"

"Well, nothing very new," Harry replied. "But I think the idea we talked about after Jay raised such a fuss in here was a good one. Let's make him Branch Manager at the Hickery Mill or, as the guys out here call it, at B & H East. Of course we'd have to hire another man to take over in sales. What do you think, Bert?"

"I think it's a good idea. Have you talked to Jay about it?" Bert asked.

Harry, looking out the window toward the parking lot, said, "No, I haven't, but here he comes now. Let's ask him."

Jay came up the steps, walked right past the office and headed back to the mill. Bert called to him, "Jay, could you come in here a minute?" Jay turned, came in and stood before them with his hands on his hips wondering what was wrong. Harry started, "Jay, Mr. Hickery is wanting to get out of the other mill. We need someone to take charge over there. We need someone who is responsible and aggressive, who communicates well, is well organized, and perhaps most important, a person that we can have complete confidence in." Harry, not expecting Jay to be modest asked, "Got any suggestions who we could get?"

Jay looked at each of them for a moment and said, "I don't think about such things, but now that you ask me, No, I can't think of anyone like that."

Harry's ploy had failed, and Bert deciding to be more direct asked, "Would you consider the job, Jay?" Jay was astonished and at a complete loss for words. He hadn't even thought of such a thing, so he wasn't prepared to answer. He pulled up a chair and sat down. After a moment, and looking very serious, he said, "I don't know what to tell you. I might like to do that, but I'd have to think it over." Then a little smile crossed Jay's face and he said, "Oh, I get it, you guys are just kidding me, aren't ya?"

Bert, shaking his head no, looked Jay square in the eye and said, "No, we aren't kidding. We are asking you if you'd consider taking charge of the Hickery operation. We don't expect an answer now. We haven't even thought it out too well ourselves, but we really won't be able to coordinate things between the two locations very well until we have a person in place over there. Harry and I think you'd do very well in the job if you want it. Think about it a few days. Do you have any thoughts about it now?"

Jay fidgeted with a pencil for a couple of minutes and said, "It's appealing, but I really enjoy my selling work."

Harry interrupted, "Being in charge over there would not require you to spend all your time in the mill. The others are perfectly capable of handling store customers and such things. We need somebody to be in charge, though, so that we don't have to make all the decisions from over here where we are not as likely to know the details. We need someone who can communicate with us and be a part of the Bert & Harry management team. It shouldn't require all your time, and after you learn that system, I'd think you could spend perhaps half of your time doing what you do now but over there. We really do need outside sales help there, too. The more I think about it, the more I like the idea Jay, particularly if you were to do it. Someone else might not be as good at sales as you are."

Jay's frown disappeared. "What does it pay?" he asked.

Bert was embarrassed. He hadn't thought about that. "Is that to be taken as your acceptance of the position if the price is right?" Bert asked.

"No, I'd like to think it over, but I'd like some idea of what it would mean financially," Jay said.

"Fair enough," Bert replied, "Let's just say that it would mean more responsibility for you and as a consequence more money. How much more we'll have to work out between us, but we'd certainly make it worth your while. Think about it a few days, and let us know what you decide."

"I like the idea, but I'd like more time to think about it. If the money's right, though, I'll more than likely take it. Of course I may change my mind."

"We understand," Bert said. "Thanks for considering it, anyhow." Jay left.

Harry looked at Bert who said, "We were caught flat-footed. We hadn't even considered our pay structure around here. Perhaps some people are out of line with others in the area or when compared to other employees here at B & H. Boy, we've got work to do haven't we, Harry?"

"Yes," Harry replied, "You're right, we have to review our staffing and our compensation plans before we create problems. A couple of guys up at the University interviewed managers of about 25 farm supply firms around the state and asked about pay scales. They found a great deal of variation from firm to firm. Much of the variation appeared to be related to other employment opportunities in the area. As I remember it, sales people's compensation ranged from $4.50/hr. to $25,000 per year. Some were even on a commission pay

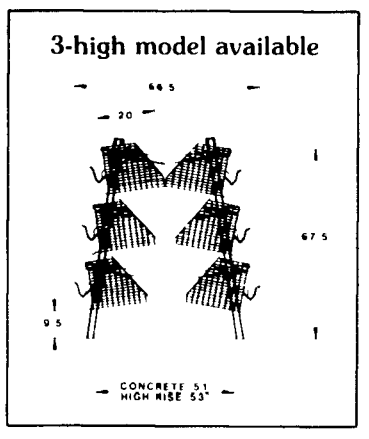
- Boosts density of old stair step houses by up to 125% or more
- Boosts density of old 3-high houses by up to 33% or more
- Famous Galv-A-Weld cage construction with 10-year pro-rated warranty



Get The Only New Technology Available For Cage Systems

Chore-Time's new 20" deep SSS 4-high system puts 33% more birds into the same row lengths as old style 3-high systems - without dropping boards and without a need for greater building width. That means at 6 birds per 16"x20" cage (53.3 square inches) a 52'x536' building can house over 108,000 birds.

But, just as important, with this Chore-Time system you also don't have to sacrifice the features and benefits you've come to expect from Chore-Time: single file egg belt, our all galvanized, SOFT TOUCH® II egg collection, a gentle cage floor slope to prevent checks and cracks...rugged A-frame cage support and legs every 4 feet to protect against cage sag and trough wear and Galv-A-Weld (welded black then galvanized) cage construction for long, trouble-free life... a choice of feeding systems to help you take control of feed costs: Meal Master Feedkar (traveling feed hopper), M.T. (rotating Flex Auger), and NEW Ultraflex (80 ft. per minute circulating Flex Auger).

And, with Chore-Time feeding systems you can take full advantage of the new production-boosting, feed-saving MEAL-TIME® feeding method developed by Chore-Time. Our feeding systems are designed to minimize waste and provide each bird with fresh, Un-Picked-Over feed.

'Day One' May One Day Be Reality For Dairymen

BY MARTHA SHELDON

AURORA, NY – The DHI supervisor pulls into the barnyard, unloads his sampling equipment, and sets up his portable computer and printer in the milkhouse. He scans the computer screen's equivalent of a "barn page" to get a quick overview of what happened last month, then picks up a small, hand-held keypad, walks into the barn, and begins entering data for this month. As he samples the milk, he types in the test weight for each cow, the I.D.'s of new cows in the herd, and all other pertinent data.

When he is through sampling and weighing the milk, and has updated the information on each cow, he electronically transfers the new information from the hand-held computer he has been carrying around with him into the portable computer. He prints out general management reports such as an updated action sheet, grouping lists and feeding recommendations, and hands them to the dairyman before leaving the farm.

A typical scene in New York State today? No. But five years from now a portable computer may very well be among the assortment of equipment and papers each New York Dairy Herd Improvement Cooperative supervisor carries into a customer's barn on his monthly visit.

Faster Turnaround Time

NYDHIC calls this idea its Day One Concept. It is a pilot project still in the early stages of development, and was initiated by NYDHIC to meet farmers' needs for faster turnaround time in receiving milk sample results. It will let dairymen put their monthly milk weight results to work within hours, instead of days.

NYDHIC has already reduced its normal turnaround time to less than five days. Farmers now receive computer-generated reports identifying cows to dry off, freshen, breed, and confirm pregnancy along with feeding and culling guidelines, in the mail within a week of the supervisor's visit to the farm. Day One will bring that same computer power directly to the farm, without the farmer having to invest in his own computer equipment, program, and training.

In describing the project, NYDHIC General Manager Nelvin Empet emphasizes that Day One is still in the "maybe" stages and its future will lie in its ability to be cost effective to dairymen, with implementation perhaps three to five years down the road. "We may find out we're ahead of our time a little bit," he said.

"Right now, most dairymen are not looking for something that will cost them more money unless they can use it to make management decisions that will help them make more money."

Although programmer Sharon Jaenson has been working over a year and a half on writing instructions for the computer, which will let it accept the information, check it for inconsistencies, and organize it into reports, the program is not finished.

Nor is the hardware all in place. The small hand-held computer Empet talks about could be any one of several devices, but none has been selected yet and today's prices for these devices may not be low enough to make them cost effective.

And the whole system needs to be tested in the field under working conditions. That will be one of its next crucial steps to success. Empet envisions equipping one supervisor with a computer to find out how well the system works and what farmers think of it.

Empet gives a lot of credit to NYDHIC's board of directors for supporting this project at a time when "it would be very easy to lock the door and economize and do away with research and develpment."

"It's hard to think about draining the swamp when you're up to ears in alligators," Empet says. "But some part of the time you always have to think about draining the swamp or you'll always be up to your ears in alligators."

The reports Day One generates on the farm will not entirely replace the reports farmers receive in the mail, since the results of lab tests for butterfat, protein and somatic cell count obviously cannot be included. Consequently, a final report will still be mailed. But the Day One report will give farmers current information, and based on certain data from the pervious month, decisions can be made and implemented immediately.

"People thought micro computers would just happen on the farm and everybody would have them," says Empet. But that's not the way it's going. He likens the adoption of computer technology on the farm to the adoption of the bulk tank, which took decades to become completely entrenched.

Remote Management System

For those farmers who own their own computer, and especially veterinarians, NYDHIC already provides a service called RMS, Remote Management System.

Farmers can hook their computer to the phone line and go "online" to access:

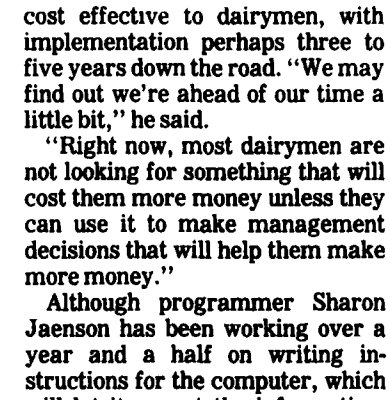
- current sample day and lactation to date milk production, butterfat, protein, and somatic cell information;
- Breeding and calving information;
- current herd summary and management report;
- identification information;
- previously completed lactation information;
- annual herd register information; and
- genetic evaluations of AI service sires.

The information is accessible almost 24 hours a day. The computer program allows farmers to organize the herd information according to their needs and develop reports to evaluate specific areas of herd management. Not only that, but the system allows sharing report forms with others.

However, like the current mailed reports, RMS is also tied to a several day delay between milk sampling and availability of the sample results, attributable to the system NYDHIC uses to enter the numbers into the database, which is done on a periodic basis.

Rather than being similar to RMS, Day One Concept will more closely match the computer power at the fingertips of dairymen who already use their own computer and program for herd management. But Day One will relieve the farmer of having to own and maintain his own equipment, and save him from the time-consuming frustration of having to learn how to operate a computer and several programs.

Hybrex Hybrid Wheats are bringing home championship yields as high as 100 bushels per acre.



Twelve years of intense research have created a line of thoroughbreds unlike any other seed wheat in the world The technology is based on a chemical hybridizing agent designed to produce the most advanced wheat hybrids in the shortest possible time

The results? That extra hybrid vigor once available only in seed corn Increased tillering, which dramatically reduces seeding rates (up to 50% in some tests) Greater straw strength And added tolerance to ward off disease

Bred for the American wheat farmer of the 80's, Hybrex hybrids respond wholeheartedly to high management techniques

In a university trial in Maryland, a Hybrex hybrid easily outdistanced a field of 23 popular varietals with 127 bushels per acre

And we're currently conducting trials with customers in Pennsylvania and Maryland that are showing outstanding results. Like these farmers, with good crop management, you should significantly surpass your present varietal yield record, and boost profits substantially

Canadian Dairyman Examines And Explains Milk Quotas

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

TROY — "I don't think we can have our cake and eat it too. We can't have reasonable prices for milk plus ship all we'd like to," Gary Buck of Ontario, Canada, told approximately 80 dairymen at the Bradford County Dairy Day, Aug. 28, at the Troy Fairgrounds.

Buck, featured speaker for the event, discussed the Canadian milk quota system from a dairyman's point of view. For the past 10 years Buck has operated Donegal Farms, Norwood, Ontario. There he maintains a herd of 45 registered Holsteins averaging 19,000 pounds of milk. His credits include a masters degree in dairy management and agriculture economics from Cornell; 10 years with the Ontario Agricultural Extension; and a contributing columnist to Hoards Dairyman.

During his talk Buck gave a brief history of the quota system, explained how the government set the price of milk, detailed the purchasing and transferring of quotas and difficulties involved in meeting quota, and summed up the strengths and possible weaknesses of the quota system.

Twenty-one years ago, according to Buck, Canada embarked on the quota system with the advent of the Ontario Milk Act and the formation of the Canadian Dairy Commission. This commission was given the power to sell quotas and the responsibility for marketing industrial milk for Canada. All milk in Canada would be supplied by Canadians except for a small amount of cheese.

Now the Canadian government determines the price at which fluid and industrial milk in Canada is sold. The price of fluid milk is determined by economic formula based on a cost and production study.

Buck said 150 random samples of producers are taken to be used in the study with only 75 percent of the most efficient producers used. The economic formula excludes the price of a quota as a cost of production. Anyone objecting to the cost of milk may lodge their complaints with a government board who makes the final decision.

To set the price of industrial milk, Buck observed, the federal government uses a three-part formula based 45 percent on dairy cash input, 35 percent on consumer index and 20 percent on judgement factor. Buck cited figures showing that the price of milk has kept pace with Canada's overall economy.

A dairyman must phone his bid in to the telex to the computer to purchase additional quota, Buck explained. For example, if he wants 100 additional pounds of daily quota he may offer a bid of $137. If the quota sold for that price or lower, he may purchase additional quota. But if quota sold for more that month, he must wait until next month to bid again.

Buck noted quota may be transferred in one of three ways: within the family, from father to son; by on-going transfer, when someone buys a farm; or, one may go to the quota exchange to buy more.

"This system has worked well except some of the prices are steep," Buck commented.

To give an idea of the worth of a quota when selling a farm, Buck gave a breakdown of the estimated net worth of his 200 acre farm including quota: property and buildings, $230,000; cattle, $90,000; machinery, $60,000; and quota, $302,000. The quota value is almost half of the total net worth.

When a farm is sold, he commented, only 85 percent of quota owned is sold with the farm; the remaining 15 percent reverts back to the commission. Farmers are allowed to buy and sell quota 12 times yearly.

Concerning maintenance of quota, farmers must produce 85 percent of industrial quota of face a penalty. This penalty sells 75 percent of a farmer's milk at the fluid price and the remainder at lower industrial milk prices.

"It can be difficult to hit 100 percent of quota," Buck noted.

In Canada 60 percent of the farmers went over their quota, he reported. To avoid topping quota some farmer feed calves, dry cows off early, decrease the grain in the feed rations, or buy more quota.

A levy is placed on the industrial milk produced by the farmer to pay for the cost of selling the milk on the world market. Farmers producing more than 100 percent of quota pay a much heavier levy. Presently, for a dairyman producing 0 to 96 percent of quota the levy is $2.22 per hundredweight; for producing 96 to 100 percent of quota it is $13.10 per hundredweight; and anyone producing more than 100 percent of quota, $16.75 per hundredweight is deducted.

In summation, Buck listed the strengths and weaknesses of the quota system as he saw it. The strengths of the quota system, he said, were: it creates a balance between supply and domestic demand, returns from the market are not endangered by amounts of milk marketed by other producers, quotas are transferrable, consumers get an ample supply of dairy products, and efficient milk producers can still have a fair return for their dairy farm operation.

Possible weaknesses of the program, recorded by Buck, were that marketing boards may create artificial scarcities to raise the price of milk. Buck said he found this a doubtful possibility in Ontario where last year they spent $14 million for milk promotion.

Another criticism of the quota system was that high quota prices may pose a barrier to new products. Buck refuted this by quoting October 1985 figures for the previous year. Out of 10,200 Ontario producers there were 585 within the family transfers, 40 purchases of on-going farms, and 35 dairymen who established completely new set-ups.

Lastly, Buck aired the possibility that marketing rights under supply management may not move freely to regions of comparative disadvantage.

Gary Buck, Ontario, Canada, discussed the Canadian milk quota system at the recent Bradford County Dairy Day.

Inter-State Distributes $493,572 In Patronage Refunds

SOUTHAMPTON--Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative distributed $493,572.21 in patronage refunds Sept. 1 to 2,965 members, according to Treasurer Evan L. Fineman.

This payment represents 80 percent of Inter-State's allocated net margin for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1974. It is the 41st payment from the cooperative's revolving fund account.

"Since the account began in 1936, Inter-State has returned more than $6.0 million to its members," Fineman said.

The refund was based on the pounds of milk each member shipped to the cooperative from Aug. 1, 1973, through July 31, 1974. All farmers who were members or patrons of the cooperative during that 12-month period received a payment, Fineman said.

The 20 percent of the patronage refund was paid to members in April 1975.

IPM Aids New Jersey Sweetcorn Growers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. – New Jersey sweet corn, now at the peak of harvest is a favorite summer treat. Although fresh ears of corn seasoned just to your liking aren't apt to conjure up images of Rutgers, New Jersey's State University does indeed make a contribution to the feast.

New Jersey's sweet corn crop has held its roughly $11 million annual value to the state over the past 14 years, despite steadily dropping acreage and stiff out-of-state competition, thanks largely to the Integrated Pest Management program, coordinated by the N.J. Cooperative Extension Service of Rutgers' Cook College.

"The IPM program has been a real asset to my sweet corn operation," said Warren Sigle, a grower from Jamesburg who has been involved with the IPM since its inception in 1972. "It saved me a significant amount of money during an economic crisis period for farmers both in New Jersey and nationally."

Keeping commodity quality high and grower costs low through the more efficient use of pesticides and biological and cultural control practices for insects, plant diseases and weeds have been IPM's goals since the program was established.

"IPM is a blending of all ways to control pests, including the use of parasites and predators, pesticides, resistant varieties, planting densities and cultural practices such as plowing or disking," according to Dr. Donald J. Prostak ofl Hampton, state IPM coordinator. He is an extension specialist in pest management of Cook, Rutgers' professional school of agricultural, environmental and life sciences.

"IPM urges growers to use non-chemical control measures when possible," Prostak said, "but these aren't available in every case. When there's no other way to keep down the pest populations, pesticide applications are recommended. We regard this as a last resort."

Over the years, growers participating in IPM have come to use about a third less pesticide than they did before and still harvest a 100 percent marketable crop, Prosakt has found. This has been true even with sweet corn, where wormy ears can spell economic disaster for growers who sell almost all of their crop directly to the public through roadside markets.

In the wake of its successes with sweet corn, IPM was expanded in recent years to such crops as apples, peaches, head lettuce, snap and lima beans and small grains including wheat, oats, barley and rye.

IPM employes a combination of field scouts, computers and common sense in combating agricultural pests in the state, using calculated need rather than spraying by the calendar as the basis of a grower's use of chemicals.

"For many years prior to the introduction of IPM," Prostak said, "growers would follow a regular schedule of pesticide spraying for their crops, whether there was pest activity in the fields or not. Under IPM, a grower doesn't spray unless our program tells him that there's a need for it."

Field scouts employed in the IPM program include college students who are taught to recognize and identify the various pests of New Jersey crops at different stages in their life cycles.

The scouts work directly on the farm, examining the crops, checking insect traps and recording their findings. The data they gather is fed into a computer for analysis by the IPM team. When the economic action threshold level — where potential crop damage equals or exceeds spraying costs — is reached, the grower is advised to apply chemical controls.

There are about one million acres of farm crops grown in New Jersey. A pesticide application costs roughly $15 per acre and may be required anywhere from one to 20 times in the course of a growing season, so the amount of money involved in chemical spraying becomes readily apparent. Prostak's ultimate goal is to have an IPM program for every grower and for every crop in the state to reduce these expenses as much as possible.

Federally funded from the start, IPM this year received its first $175,000 New Jersey state appropriation under legislation sponsored by State Sen. Walter E. Foran and signed into law by Gov. Thomas Kean. Members of the N.J. Farm Bureau and the State Department of Agriculture helped secure the money, Prostak pointed out.

The state support comes at a critical time for IPM, Prostak said, since President Ronald Reagan's proposed budget would eliminate all federal funding for IPM projects in New Jersey and other states if it becomes effective in its present form Oct. 1.

In spite of the questions concerning future funding, Prostak continues to plan for IPM's expansion. IPM programs for small fruits, broccoli, field corn, soybeans, alfalfa and even Christmas trees have become operational this year. Expansion of IPM efforts into eggplant, tomatoes, potatoes, carrots and peppers is planned, and an urban cousin of IPM for ornamentals, turf and shade trees is on the drawing boards.

"The IPM program benefits New Jersey's agriculture and environment while helping maintain high-quality locally grown produce in abundant quantities at affordable prices," Prostak said. "And the growers are as enthusiastic about IPM as we are."

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 24,700 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Aug. 16, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Aug. 16 is an estimated 689,600 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. These purchases, reported bi-weekly, totaled 11.3 million pounds during the week ending Aug. 23 and consisted of 11.2 million pounds of frozen beef carcasses and 80,000 pounds of frozen boneless beef. The cumulative purchases total 276.3 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Aug. 30 totaled an estimated 31,080 head. During the week ending Aug. 30, 1,624 head were reported exported, the largest weekly export total to date.

Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders to participate in the export enhancement program. Central and South American buyers have expressed repeated interest in purchasing animals in the buyout program, Ray Waggoner of the USDA said.

Participants in the DTP who want to export their animals should contact a dairy cow exporting company. By exporting their animals, participants can expect to receive a better price than slaughter price, Waggoner said.

Crawford County Fair Names Colored Breeds Champions

BY NANCY KUNICK
Crawford Co. Correspondent

MEADVILLE — Showmen paraded their best animals around two tanbark rings on Aug. 21 for the Crawford County Colored Breeds Show at the Crawford County Fairgrounds.

Ring one featured the judging of Jerseys and Guernseys by Patty McMurray, Bentleysville. Ring two featured the judging of Ayrshires, Brown Swiss and Milking Shorthorns by Ralph Oakes, Jackson Center.

Grand champion Jersey honors went to Marcy Jo Resinger's 3-year-old Tenn Soldiers Pride daughter. Jesse Moore bred the champion, Ladybug Soldiers Pride Dawn, who also topped her 3-year-old class.

The second place 3-year-old cow claimed the reserve grand champion Jersey honors. Kevin Wright owns the homebred reserve winner, Wright-Way Rockyhill Reva.

Premier breeder and premier exhibitor Jersey awards went to the Thomas Sanderson family of Poverty Knobs Farm, Conneaut Lake. The Sanderson show string claimed seven blue ribbons, best udder, best three females and dairy herd honors to win the two banners.

McMurray commented throughout the day on the exceptional dairyness of the 100 Jerseys exhibited, as well as the exceptional size of the 70 Guernseys exhibited.

Carosa Guernseys garnered the majority of the awards in the Guernsey show including: grand champion, reserve grand champion, reserve junior champion and premier exhibitor titles. Cara, Robin and Sabrina Wagner showed their family's show string with help from their herdsman Russell Subject.

Aged cow Hillcrest TH Came claimed the grand champion rosette for her owner Robin Wagner. Rudd Wetherwax bred the champion. The reserve grand championship went to Rus-Mars BT Jane, bred by Albert Subject, Cuba, N.Y. Co Hill TH Big Tex sired the reserve champion.

Nearly 100 Ayrshires paraded before judge Oakes. He tabbed the senior 2 year old owned by Robert and Elizabeth Dorchester, Albion, for grand champion. "The 2 year old will stand more competition than the aged cow will," said Oakes in explaining his champion placings.

Premier breeder went to Richard Lyons, Cochranton, and premier exhibitor went to Allen Farms, Conneaut Lake.

Martin Gessner's family, Springboro, captured the ribbons for champion bull and premier breeder of the Milking Shorthorn show. The Whiting family, New Castle, claimed the majority of the first-place class ribbons before they won the junior champion, grand champion and premier exhibitor awards.

Solid Waste Expert To Meet At Elizabethtown College

LANCASTER — Nationally renown incineration lecturer, Dr. Paul Connett is coming to Lancaster County on Friday, Sept. 12 and 13 to discuss solid waste incineration. The Lancaster County Network of Citizens Groups is sponsoring Dr. Connett's Friday night lecture and Saturday morning workshop at Elizabethtown College, Elizabethtown.

Connett will be speaking on the subject of "Mass Burn Incineration and Alternatives to Solid Waste Management" at Esbenshade Hall, Elizabethtown College on Friday evening, September 12 at 7:30 p.m. A question and answer period will follow his lecture. He will also conduct a workshop on Saturday morning at the same location from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Dr. Connett is a chemist from St. Lawrence University, Canton, New York. A graduate of Cambridge University and Dartmouth College, he has done considerable research into the toxic effects of mass burn incineration. He has been involved with the incineration issue throughout the United States and Europe.

For further information call Mrs. Dawn Rapchinski, (717) 733-9026 or Dr. Thomas Grosh, (717) 426-1867.

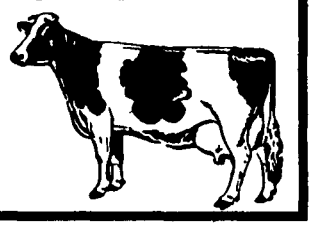
Major Dairy Sales And Dispersals Nationwide



Reports from five sales for the week of Aug. 29 to Sept 3 showed 181 head averaging $1,006.13. These sales were held in North Carolina, Iowa, Idaho, Indiana and Kansas. The top prices at the sales ranged from $30,000 to $1,500. Here is a brief look at the results of these sales.

AYRSHIRE

The HOOSIER PROMOTIONAL SALE, held in Indiana, averaged $453 on 16 head. The high-selling animal went for $1,500. A just-fresh 2 year old, she produced 57 pounds of milk per day on her August test. Elm-Ayr Rascals Rastus sired the sale topper. Her dam classified at VG-87 and produced a top record of 15,052 pounds of milk and 542 pounds of fat.

Marvin McIntyre served as auctioneer and the Indiana Ayrshire Association managed the sale.

GUERNSEY

The CORNBELT CLASSIC SALE, held in Iowa, averaged $1,075 on 22 head. A 4-year-old daughter of Sunny Choice Dagger sold for the top price of the sale, $1,675. Classified VG-86, she produced 56.6 pounds of milk on sale day after freshening June 16. For this lactation, she is projected at 13,900 pounds of milk. Her dam, EX-90, and her granddam produced lifetime fat averages of 5.4 percent.

A bred heifer, sired by Idle Neer Rondas Hornet, netted the price of $1,600 for the second-high bid of the sale. She will freshen in October with a calf by Valley Oaks Admiral Jetstream. Her dam, a Telestar daughter, produced three records over 13,000 pounds of milk and a 5.0 test. Her MCD stands at plus 3,156 milk, plus 155 fat and plus 158 protein.

The median price for the sale hovered near the $1,150 mark. This sale marked the initial sale for the revived Guernsey Marketing Service. Ron Sersland handled the auctioneering and Erick Metzger read pedigrees.

The MO—KAN CLASSIC, held in Kansas, averaged $957 on 41 lots of young heifers and just-fresh heifers and cows.

A bred heifer topped this sale with a bid of $1,700. Sired by Idle Neer Rondas Hornet, she will freshen in December with a Dutch Mill Telestar Fayette calf. Her dam produced two records over 5.0 percent.

The next-high lot sold for $1,500. A heifer bred to Lone Palm Jeans Jay to freshen in December achieved the second-high price. Wagners TH Emry sired this lot. Her dam produced a top record of 14,950 pounds of milk and 646 fat.

Ron Sersland auctioneered the sale and the Missouri and Kansas Guernsey Associations jointly managed the sale.

JERSEY

The DIXIE CLASSIC JERSEY SALE, held in North Carolina, averaged $1,006 on 49 head. A Briarcliffs Councilman daughter walked off with the top price of $1,550. A 3-year-old cow classified VG-85, she produced a M.E. record of 16,563 pounds of milk and 836 pounds of fat. Her current production reached the 65 pound per day mark.

Also selling for the $1,550 pricetag was a bred heifer by Generator HL Earl. She will calve in late September to the Legend bull. Her dam, a Samson daughter, produced an actual record of 14,770 pound of milk and 883 pounds of fat with a 6 percent test.

The top prices increased $130 over last year's sale.

HOLSTEIN

The MOUNTAIN WEST REDUCTION SALE, held in Idaho, averaged $1,539.63 on 53 lots. A bid of $30,000 on a 3-year-old Valiant daughter topped the sale. Classified VG-87, her best production record stands at 34,000 pounds of milk and 1,150 pounds of fat. She sold with a guarantee of four transferable eggs. Her dam, a Pete daughter, classified Very Good.

Her daughter took the second-high price of the sale, $5,000. Sired by Bova, she was bred in mid-April to Rotate.

Office Celebrates With Ice Cream Party

The whole office celebrated at an ice cream party earlier this month when Tammy Magee, right foreground, won an Ice Cream Lover's essay contest on WNNK Radio, Harrisburg. Perry County Dairy Princess Fran Palm served as hostess.

Tammy, a state treasury employee, was one of 44 Pennsylvanians to win parties in a joint promotion by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, ice cream manufacturers and local radio stations. "The promotion gave us hours of free radio time in 10 major markets," points out Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's Board Chairman Donald Duncan of Robesonia.

Awards, Honors Given At Amer. Dairy Science Ass'n. Meet

At the 81st Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Science Association, recently. Highlights of the meeting were the opening session at which the 1986 recipients of the ADSA Award of Honor and Distinguished Service Award were named, presentation of 18 awards to outstanding scientists, and installation of the President-Elect and Directors to represent the interests of the Production and Dairy Foods Divisions.

The opening session for the 81st annual meeting was held in Freeborn Hall, University of California, Davis, with Dr. R.W. Touchberry presiding. Following the presidential address by Dr. N.F. Olson, University of Wisconsin, Madison, the ADSA Award of Honor was presented to Dr. L.D. McGilliard, Michigan State University, East Lansing. The Distinguished Service Award was presented to Dr. Robert Jenness, Alamogordo, NM. Citations for these awards were read by Dr. George A. Muck, Dean Foods Company, Rockford, IL.

The Award of Honor is presented for recognized, unusually outstanding contributions to the welfare of the association or distinguished service to the association. The Distinguished Service Award is made to recognize unusually outstanding and consistent contributions to the welfare of the dairy industry, either directly or indirectly. The award is based upon a broad, even non-scientific contribution. Thus, outstanding achievements by those in industry, public administration, or academic administration may qualify. The contribution may be national or international. Photographs and citations available upon request.

The Agway Inc. Young Scientist Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to recognize outstanding research by young dairy production scientists during the first 10 years of their professional career. The 1986 recipient is R. Michael Akers, Department of Dairy Science, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The American Cyanamid Company Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to recognize significant contributions in research, teaching, extension, and/or industry (including technology transfer) in the assimilation of new milk production technologies. The 1986 recipient is Stephen B. Spencer, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The American Feed Industry Association Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to stimulate research in dairy cattle nutrition. The 1986 recipient is Charles J. Sniffen, Department of Animal Science, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The Borden Foundation Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. This award is presented to recognize outstanding research in dairy production or manufacturing contributing to improvement or care of dairy cattle, development and improvement processes, products, equipment, methods, handling and sanitation. The 1986 recipient is Elmer H. Marth, Department of Food Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The Dairy Research Foundation Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to recognize a researcher actively engaged in basic investigations on milk or milk products which are applicable to a solution of a dairy industry problem. The award is based on the best original basic milk or milk product research conducted at a public institution and published during the 5 calendar years prior to the year in which the award is presented. The 1986 recipient is Robert C. Lindsay, Department of Food Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The De Laval Agricultural Division, Alfa-Laval, Inc. consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to recognize contributions for dairy extension in the broad areas of production, manufacturing, marketing and youth work. The recipient must be actively engaged in and identified with dairy extension work at the time of nomination. The 1986 recipient is John C. Bruhn, Department of Food Science & Technology, Cooperative Extension, University of California, Davis. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The Kraft Inc. Teaching Award in Dairy Manufacturing consists of a monetary award and plaque. The award is presented for outstanding ability as an undergraduate teacher of dairy science in an accredited college or university. The recipient must be an active teacher at the time of nomination preceded by not less than a total of 10 years of active teaching. The 1986 recipient is Joe T. Cardwell, Dairy Science Department, Mississippi State University, Mississippi State. Photograph and citation available upon request.

The J.L. Lush Award sponsored by the American Breeders Service consists of a monetary award and

The Big, Wild West

Westerners, which comprises a class of people who live on the sunset side of the Rocky slopes, see things from a different viewpoint. For one thing, they tend to think bigger than an Easterner. It's only natural, because nearly everything they see and work with every day is bigger.

The mountains, the wide open spaces, and even the miles between them are bigger. Take the size of their farms, for example. Unless irrigation water is readily available, it might take as much as 150 acres to support one cow. That's no place to be in the dairy business, unless you purchase all the feed for every cow every day of her life. So, those 6,000 acre ranches are not really so big after all, when the only consideration is how much feed per acre is produced.

I was exposed to some of the "Think big" ideas at the NACAA convention in Colorado Springs this summer. Our annual dairy tour took us to every dairy farm in Freemont County, Colorado. All three of them!

Freemont County covers an area of 1,037,758 acres in the foothills and mountains of South-Central Colorado. It is in a semi-desert climate, getting only about 16 inches of precipitation a year, including winter snowfall. Most of the land is rolling, arid hillside or rugged mountain. The only farming is along the Arkansas River, where there is a constant struggle for water rights.

The carrying capacity of the land is only about 50 acres per cow. It all depends on the water rights.

They have found it more economical to conserve the water for the cows to drink, rather than to grow crops. Both the water and the good land along the Arkansas River are too expensive to use for forage. Hay can be trucked in much cheaper than it can be grown.

Yes, the dairy operators do think big when it comes to getting the milk out of their cows. Each dairy was milking about 500 cows, averaging 21,500 pounds per cow. There is a good demand for the milk, most of which goes to Colorado Springs and Denver, so they don't worry too much about surplus at this time. However, the really big dairies are in Northern Colorado, and they could flood the market very soon with their herds numbering 1,000 plus cows.

We could learn a few things from our Western neighbors. For one thing, they are extremely conscious of feed costs. Since nearly every pound of feed must be bought, the cost is critical to making a profit.

The Colorado State University has an excellent nutritional program that most of the dairies are now using. A greater variety of feedstuffs are incorporated into the Total Mixed Rations, and every ingredient is analyzed for nutritional values as well as price.

Ingredients are purchased by the carload and delivered to the farm in bulk. Most of it is purchased on forward contracts, saving many dollars in cost. At the time of our visit, the main source of protein was whole cottonseed, shipped in from Texas. Wheat middlings and bakery waste made up the bulk of the energy source. Some long hay is fed to keep the rumen healthy, but most of the hay is finely ground, to save shipping costs.

The source of energy and protein in the dairy ration does not seem to make much difference in milk production, as long as the whole intake is nutritionally balanced.

Balancing begins with the amount and source of the ADF from forage and grains, and the availability of minerals and vitamins. When nutritional fiber is carefully calculated, energy is usually adequate. Cows are then challenged in groups fed for 110 pounds, 85 pounds and 65 pounds of milk. Dry cows and tailenders are fed adequate maintenance rations. The results are big, in terms of health, production, and best of all, profits.

All-American Show Schedule Announced

HARRISBURG – North America's top dairy animal breeders will showcase their premier entries at the 23rd Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg Sept. 22 to 26.

Competition at the Farm Show Complex has become synonymous with dairy excellence in the fine All-American tradition. Exhibitors and breeders from 36 states and Canada have recognized the stature the PAADS enjoys, making it the top dairy show in the eastern United States.

Evidence is provided by the four national breed shows that will be conducted. Outstanding blood lines will compete for $84,000 in premiums and the notoriety that comes with participation in the All-American sales.

Show organizers have again invited the best of the young dairy science minds to compete in the 18th Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest. The contest provides a competitive forum for the top collegiate, 4-H and FFA candidates in the United States.

The 1986 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation will be held September 20 at the Harrisburg Marriott, with over 60 candidates vying for the right to represent the state's dairy industry in promotional activities during 1987.

The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show is dedicated to the farm families that have made Pennsylvania the nation's fifth leading dairy state. The PAADS is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission.

The West Agro, Inc. Award consists of a plaque and monetary award. It is presented to recognize outstanding research of milk quality as affected by control of mastitis, management of milking and practices in production of milk. The 1986 recipient is R.J. Eberhart, Department of Veterinary Science, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park. Photograph and citation available upon request.

Somerset Co. Slates Grazing Field Day

SOMERSET — A voisin dairy grazing field day featuring four dairy farms will be sponsored by the Somerset County Conservation District Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The object of this field day is to show dairy farmers how to produce a higher net profit using the voisin intensive grazing system, reports Soil Conservationist Roger Wentling of the Somerset Conservation District.

Participants will have a chance to see the use of annual rye grass as a pasture supplement and frost seeding of legumes and permanent pasture. They also will examine the practical results of reed canary grass in an intensive rotation.

Tumble wheel paddock dividers, used in Holland to lower dairy production costs. will be displayed as well. The use of range rape and other brassicas for dairy cows will be demonstrated by Dr. Gerald Jung, of the U.S. regional pasture research laborartory, State College.

Spider fencing, the fence that is becoming very popular in New Zealand, will also be on display. This fence features no gates and can be driven over by a car. The only two examples of this fence currently in the United States are at Penn State and here in Somerset County.

The four farms on the tour include.

- The Donald Glessner farm, a 55-acre intensive grazing system on reclaimed coal mine pasture.
- The farm of Glenn Moyer, whose herd was first in butterfat production for Holsteins in Pennsylvania for 1984. He reports a $1 lower feed cost per hundred weight of milk produced using the voisin dairy grazing system. He was able to pay for all fence materials in three months of operation.
- Bill Yoder, number one in butterfat for Jersey cows in Pennsylvania for 1984 and 1985. He reports that the biggest savings is having the cows harvest the crops instead of mechanical harvesting, and not using the electric silage unloader. Furthermore it gives him more free time during the grazing season.
- The farm of Ernest Van Tassel, who recently became a dairy farmer by renting a 52-acre farm. He reports a $750 per month feed savings on a 30-cow dairy herd comparing April, May and June costs from last year without the grazing system to the same time period this year using the system.

For further details concerning the tour contact Bob Sweitzer, district manager of the Somerset County Conservation District at 814-445-4652, or write to Somerset Conservation District, RD 5 Box 359 S. Lynn Ave. Somerset Pa. 15501.

Extension Works To Aid Farmers In Drought Areas

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK–If livestock and corn grain producers can team up this fall, they may be able to help each other while helping themselves.

That's the word from local extension staffers working with programs to help farmers make feed and financial decisions to best cope with the drought-stressed crop situation.

York's extension staff recently teamed with officials of FmHA and ASCS to meet with and advise farmers from the droughted southern end of the county.

"Before you start running around buying expensive hay, look around at your neighbor who might be willing to sell silage," advised regional extension farm management specialist Roland Freund. " You might be doing him a favor, too."

Freund has developed a computer pricing program for corn silage, weighing such imputs as current corn prices, moisture content, yield, and hauling distance to determine a fair price to offer when negotiating a corn silage purchase arrangement.

Moisture is a key factor, since a 1 percent difference in corn moisture equals more than 3 percent change in the crop's value for silage.

An increasingly-popular method of checking crop moisture is with the use of a microwave oven. Samples are weighed, wet from the field, dried down carefully in the microwave, then weighed again when dry to calculate the original moisture content.

General recommendation is to weigh eight ounces (weigh container separately) or 225 grams of freshly chopped silage, measuring with a postal scale, for ounces, or a triple beam balance scale for measuring grams. According to extension handouts, eight ounces is about the volume to fill a pie plate.

Dry down, heating only a minute or two at a time, and do not overheat the sample, which could result in burning.

Subtract the dry weight of the sample from the wet weight, multiply to 100, and divide by the original wet weight for the moisture percentage.

Extension personnel will help farmers with basic least-cost-ration recommendations, and have on hand various printed materials on utilizing alternate feeds, plus fall crops to plant for "stretching" feed supplies.

With the declaration of York and Adams counties as crop disaster areas, farmers with a 30 percent total crop loss are eligible for low-interest FmHA loans. Producers have eight months in which to file for disaster loan assistance of 5 percent interest to $100,000, and 8 percent to $500,000.

With 40 percent crop loss, livestock producers may also be eligible for emergency feeding programs administered through ASCS and designed to help pay the cost of purchasing livestock feed supplies above the normal quantities.

Eligibility will be based on the total TDN available on the farm, including any crops sold, such as cash grain. A complete inventory of all kinds and ages of livestock will be required, as well as sales documents for purchased feedstuffs. Programs are still being finalized, and application deadline is December 31, 1986.

Yields for the past five years must be determined if not already on file at FmHA or ASCS. Producers may be eligible for up to 80 percent of the total crop losses, either through low-interest loans, or feeding programs, or a combination of the two disaster programs. FmHA and ASCS will not duplicate the amounts of assistance for which a farm may be eligible.

Hay Delivered To Drought-Stricken York Co.

Tuesday's convoy of hay trucks was loaded out of the Perry County farm of Mrs. Ruth Gault, Duncannon R2. The six-truck convoy, moved by Detachment 1 of the National Guard's 131st Transportation Company, based in York, was detoured by way of the Farm Show building for a press conference held by Governor Thornburgh.

According to state Department of Agriculture press secretary Chuck Muir, an estimated 165 tons of hay has been moved from the Gault barns to drought-stricken farmers in the region. The dairy herd on this Century Farm, which had been farmed by the Gault family since 1865, was dispersed about three years ago.

Earnest Gault, brother-in-law of the farm's owner, has been instrumental in making the hay donation arrangements.

"Of course the hay kept growing," he chuckled earlier this week during a telephone interview. And, while local farmers also harvested much of the acreage this year, since the farm's hay storage was already full, no decision had been made on what to do with the many tons on hand.

"When we heard of the drought situation, and saw it on TV, we made a mental note. Then she had sale for the barn, and it was still full of hay, and all things just seemed to work together for all of us."

He praised Chris Herr of the Department of Agriculture, who worked with the Gaults after they contacted the department's hay hotline and helped arrange the hay shipments. While the hay was originally expected to be sent South, Gault said they were "delighted" after learning that it would be utilized in drought-hit Delaware, Maryland and York County.

About 20 truckloads have left the Gault farm to date, loaded out by a diverse group of volunteers. The first load went to Dover, DE stacked on the tractor trailer by Halifax and Hummelstown FFA members. Other volunteer groups helping load the Gault's hay donations have included the Duncannon Fire Company and Penn State's Block and Bridle Club.

plan, Most of the salesmen, though, were making over $15,000/year. In general, they were higher paid than any other group other than top management. Jay is our highest paid employee, too, now that Sam has left. I think we could pay him more though, if he'd accept the Hickery Mill job. After all, I think he'd do a lot of sales work, too. Basically he is a better man than Sam was, but we don't want to tell him that. We'd better give the pay level some thought before Jay comes back."

"Right again," Bert said, "Could you get hold ot some more of those figures, and then we can get together and decide where we need people, and what their responsibilities and pay levels should be for each position? Then we'll see how we can rearrange our current people and hire others to meet our needs."

"Sounds complicated," Harry said, "I guess we are big business now."

Poultry Waste Study

LANCASTER – State Senator Noah Wenger has announced that the Lancaster County Conservation District has been awarded a $15,000 grant for a study of a new waste-to-energy project involving the incineration of poultry litter and agricultural waste.

According to Wenger, the study was requested by Pennfield Corporation and the Victor F. Weaver Corporation, two of Lancaster County's largest poultry growers. Through a joint corporate interest, the companies are considering the construction of a generating facility fueled by poultry and agricultural waste if the study determines that such a facility is feasible.

"This project has the full support of the state because of its potential benefit in helping to clean up the polluted Chesapeake Bay," said Wenger. "Part of the bay's problem stems from nutrient waste runoff that is flowing into the bay via streams and rivers, including the Susquehanna. By studying the utilization of agricultural waste to generate power, we can learn ways to use waste effectively.

Lancaster Ag Statistics

reported, was approximately $6,000 to $8,000.

The dairy buyout program did not affect 1985 figures and will probably have little influence on 1986 statistics since participation here was very low, Irwin said.

Poultry farmers also had a good production year, nearly reaching the record-breaking levels of 1983. "The poultry industry recovered quite well," Irwin said, referring to the outbreak of avian influenza in 1984.

County poultrymen raised nearly 42 million broilers and a record-breaking 8.7 million layers that produced eggs valued at $104.5 million. However, Irwin noted, they received about 17 cents less per dozen of eggs than in the previous year.

Dairy and poultry farmers suffered their share of price decreases, but cattlemen weathered the the greatest setbacks. "The biggest decrease we saw in this whole picture," Irwin said, "was cattle and calves in dollars."

The county's cattle industry saw nearly a $15 million decline in value despite cattle numbers that were down only slightly. Cattle numbered 264,000 in 1985, 3,000 less than the previous year, and were valued at $138.6 million.

Irwin attributed the loss to falling prices, noting that cattle farmers received 15 to 20 cents less per pound of meat.

Declining prices affected the hog market as well, with hog farmers receiving 10 to 12 cents less per pound of pork. A total of 282,000 hogs were valued at $21.7 million, indicating a drop of 22,000 head and $2.3 million.

"The pseudorabies outbreak that we had in Lancaster County certainly had a detrimental effect on our hog people," Irwin said. A few large hog operations went under because of the disease and other farmers were reluctant to enter the industry, he explained.

Corn remained the leading crop in the county with yields close to 1984 levels. County farmers raised 138,000 acres of corn for grain and 60,300 acres for silage, but received $4.3 million less for grain and $3.9 million less for silage, Irwin said. The grain crop was valued at $48 million and the silage at $30.4 million.

Again, Irwin said, the loss was the result of lower prices. The average price of corn slipped 13 cents per bushel and silage prices were down $2.70 per ton.

Wheat, barley and oats broke production records but declined in value. Grain farmers raised 17,900 acres of wheat and harvested 54 bushels per acre; 7,500 acres of barley with 68 bushels per acre; and 1,800 acres oats with 78 bushels per acre.

The wheat crop was valued at $2.9 million, barley at $841,500 and oats at $175,500.

Potato yields also broke previous records, making Lancaster the fourth highest producer in the state. Farmers harvested potatoes valued at $2.3 million from 1,700 acres.

County farmers planted 10,400 acres of tobacco, but earned about 19 cents less per pound. Tobacco is the leading cash crop in the county, bringing in $16,548,130.

Yield in hay was also good, but dropped $6.8 million in total value. Farmers received an average of $16.50 less per ton than in 1984, Irwin said.

Lancaster rated as the second county in vegetable production with 4,276 acres and products valued at $6.3 million, and was seventh in fruit production.

Johnstown Couple Weathers Double Dose Of Painful Farm Accidents

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria County Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN — Janet and Don Mayer are able to laugh. That's saying a lot, because the R6 Johnstown couple have been through a pair of debilitating farm accidents in recent months.

Don is a third-generation farmer who shared a dairy, beef and hog operation with his father and brother and also holds a job off the farm. He admits to having seen more than his share of danger in his lifetime. He's a former firefighter who once fought a gas fire alongside Red Adair. During the storms that caused the 1977 Johnstown flood, Don received electrical shocks from lightening that hit his hilltop farm three times in a few minutes, the final time knocking him off a ladder and halfway across the yard.

But even that didn't prepare the Mayers for events of this year. Their story begins in February late on a very snowy Valentine night. "My mother-in-law called and said Violet was having trouble giving birth," Janet recalls. Violet, a 1,600-pound Charolais cross cow was eight days overdue and carrying a large Angus-Charolais calf. "I told Don a few days before that she was going to be trouble."

The veterinarian had been called but was delayed by the heavy snow. Janet, who has become fairly accomplished at calving, knew her help was needed. She went down the hill through the steep orchard road, now covered over with brown snow, and found her mother-in-law in the barn with her two brothers-in-law.

"I examined the cow and could feel that there were two back feet coming out first and the calf was huge," Janet says. After some discussion, they decided to use a calf-puller. "I wasn't convinced it was the right thing to do because the cow wasn't fully dilated. Looking back I should have known better."

As the calf began to move, the cow started to tear. In an effort to make the delivery easier, Janet got on the cow's right side and took her tail. But just as Janet stood even with the cow's right hip, the calf struck a nerve on the cow's spinal column and Violet went down, pinning Janet between her hip and the stall partition.

"I don't know how long I was under there. It felt like forever," Janet admits. Her shoulder and hip were crushed against the partition, and her right leg was trapped. Her brothers-in-law managed to right the cow and pulled Janet to her feet. "It was like trying to stand up a bowl of oatmeal."

She was able to sit down at the end of the stall but thought her leg was broken. She waited for an ambulance while the men worked on the calf, which was still mid-delivery, and the hemorrhaging cow. Because of the snow and a garbled report that Janet was still trapped, an ambulance rushing to the farm slid off the road, destroying a fence and damaging the brand new vehicle. It was followed by a fire truck and a second ambulance, which got through. However, because the lower roads were impassable, they tried to take Janet out via the steep orchard road and got stuck along the way.

Inside the ambulance, Janet admits, "I prayed my leg wouldn't be broken." It wasn't until several days later that the irony of her prayers hit her. At a local hospital she was told she'd just overextended her knee and was sent home in a leg immobilizer. After several days of sitting still, Janet decided her leg didn't seem any better. In fact, the kneecap was located on the side instead of the top of her leg. She went to an orthopedic surgeon who told her, "It's a shame you didn't just break the leg; this kind of damage is much worse."

Jane laughs, "You gotta watch what you pray for, because it just might come true." Instead of a clean break, she had torn and twisted the knee joint, snapping off three tendons, tearing a muscle, and damaging virtually all the knee tissues. "They call it blowing out your knee. It's something professional football players do, and they told me if I were an athlete my career would have been ended."

The next day she had surgery ... 3½ hours to restore the knee to its correct position. She emerged from the operating room with some staples, stitches and two permanent pins internally and a 12-inch incision across the knee.

She admits the surgery went so well that nothing prepared her for what was to follow. There was pain, lots of it. She hoped to be home in a few days, but during her stay she caught the flu. She came home while still ill with the flu and managed to fall while getting to the bathroom at home.

Ambulances had a difficult time getting Janet to the hospital through the snow on this orchard road.

Janet and Don Mayer display their "hardware," a knee brace Janet must still use and a shoulder/arm restraint Don wore for four weeks.

Don Mayer takes care of some of the family's beef herd.

Homestead Notes

"It was tough," Don says. Their younger son, nicknamed Bear, was home from Penn State on spring break and was able to help out for the first week, but after that Janet was on her own with Don usually away at his full-time job with Bethlehem Steel and older son Doug on his job as well.

"The first day I couldn't get the bedroom blind up. The sun was shining and I wanted to see it ... it was such a little thing," Janet recalls. "But I couldn't do it, and that set me off crying. I cried for about four hours."

Her recovery began to progress, with the help of therapy sessions three times a week. "But there were still a lot of days I felt nasty," she says.

One of those days was June 8, a bright, sunny Sunday. Because the Mayers are leaders in 4-H, they spent much of their free time working with youngsters in the Cloverleaf County-Bred Beef Club. This day they went out "visiting steers," to see how the youngsters were doing at handling. Janet had just been given permission to drive a few days earlier and had driven the family's Rabbit once but not the 1978 Volkswagen bus they decided to take on their visits.

They were at Capshaw Farms in Patton about an hour from home when, as Don recalls, "A 9-year-old girl was having a lot of trouble with an unruly steer. I thought I could help her out." The steer would handle well until he got within 50 feet of the barn. Then he'd bolt.

"He had a show halter on and a nose clamp," Don says. "I thought I'd be able to control him." He smiles under his handlebar moustache as he recalls the scene. "I made several trips with him successfully. Then he bolted on me."

Don thought he had the situation under control and didn't want to let go of the lead and risk breaking the steer's neck. "But then I realized my body was going about 40 miles per hour and my feet were only going 20." Janet watched from the bus as Don flew through the air and landed hard on his right shoulder.

At first he said he was fine. He even stayed for a while longer. But within 30 minutes the pain and swelling had started. He took the wheel of the bus, determined to drive home. As they started onto a major highway, Don began to sweat and turn pale, on the verge of passing out. He told Janet to take the wheel.

That's the first time their plight struck them. Janet needed a step stool to get in and out of the bus because she was still in a brace and was using crutches. But Don was unable to stand or get down from the car because of his injury. With some difficulty they exchanged seats, Janet having to slide into the back of the bus to allow Don to slide across, then Janet coming forward to take the wheel. Janet drove straight to the hospital and because she couldn't get out of the car had to flag a passerby to get help from inside the emergency room.

"Between us we had three good arms and three good legs," Janet says. And that's how it remained through the summer. Don had separated his collarbone on the right side and spent four weeks in a restraining harness.

"We drew quite a bit of attention wherever we went," Don says. It took both of them to shop for groceries, Don pulling the cart with one arm while Janet pushed. And it took them twice as long to shop because people would stop them to ask what happened. "One shopkeeper asked, 'Are you two married?'" Don laughs. "I think he figured we'd been in a fight or something."

"I told Don I refuse to go anywhere with him anymore," Janet jokes. On the more serious side, both of the Mayers found their injuries costly financially as well as emotionally. Janet, who worked as a word processor, had to resign while she underwent rehabilitation. Don has been off his job since his accident. They've managed to keep up with farm work because Don could drive the tractor and the combine with one hand, but when Don's father became ill recently they had to ask their son Bear to quit his summer job and come home to help out.

The Mayers hope the worst of it is over. Janet is no longer on crutches and can be out of her knee brace at home. She still has six months of therapy but says the doctor is pleased with her progress and she can expect a complete recovery. With the help of home exercises, Don has full use of his arm but is still trying to build up strength. He expects to be able to return to his job after his Sept. 15 checkup.

They'd like to remind readers that it takes only a moment's lapse to have a debilitating farm injury. "I often think if I'd only taken a second to position myself, if I'd been standing by the cow's stomach instead of her hip, I would have been fine," Janet says.

Don agrees, "I think if you care about animals, in a crisis you put the animal first and think of yourself second." He adds, "But when you get in a hurry, you do stupid things. You don't think twice. That's when accidents happen."

"This is pretty typical of us these days," Janet says, "sitting around the kitchen table in the morning and having our coffee." Both are off work due to their injuries.

York FFA Market Hog Sale Set

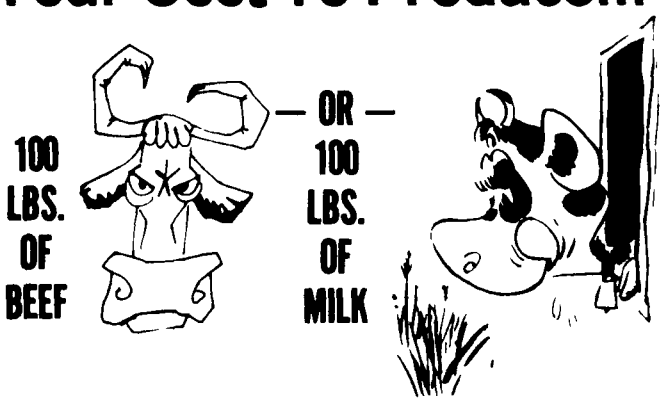
HIGH PROTEIN SILAGE ADDITIVE
IF We Could Lower Your Cost To Produce...



COULD You Use The Extra Profit?
The primary benefit for treating corn silage with ammonia is reducing feed costs.
But, you also know that reducing feed costs do not always increase profits.
With a little understanding of ammonia-treated silage some university studies have shown not only lower feed costs but also higher production at the same time by using ammoniated silage in the feeding program.
See Martin's Ag. Service for Martin's Hi-Protein liquid ammonia silage additive as well as computer balanced feeding programs and sound feeding advice.

Bradford 4-H'ers Load Hay For Drought Victims

TOWANDA — 4-H'ers and friends of 4-H recently helped load hay on National Guard tractor trailers bound for Conrail boxcars in Laceyville, the first leg of the trip to drought stricken victims of the south.

The hay was a generous donation by Anthony Barrett of Athens, who had already donated 750 bales.

The trucks hauled an additional 430 bales and loading was assisted by 4-H'ers Jay Braund, Jeremy Braund, Jason Sargeant, Richard Sargeant, and Johnner Barrett, all of the Mt. Pisgah Raiders 4-H Club.

Others assisting were Tom Gilliland of E. Troy 4-H, Gary Homan of Northeast Ag and Home Economics, Scott Wrisley of Easy St. Riders and SRU exchange student Torsten Wokock of Cologne, Germany. Extension Agents Al Homan and Tom Maloney and former 4-H'er David Guffey also were involved in the operation as were members of the Barrett family.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Everything is the same
But everything is different.

How well I remember that first morning, lump in throat, when I departed the school room filled with short-legged furniture and a teacher larger than life, leaving behind one curly-haired "baby" and a good many memories.

Across the country, countless mothers have wrestled with the same experience these past few days. Suddenly you are no longer the focus their lives, no longer the key builder, the main molder of a young, growing mind. You step aside, clearing the way for new influences wrought by teachers, ideas and the awesome pressure of peers.

But wait.
You're still needed, Mom.

"Mom, I promised cupcakes for the party tomorrow. . .Mom, I have to have a show and tell. . .Mom! Did you wash my gym suit?. . .Mom, I need ten dollars for a field trip."

The curls have become a side-shaved punk cut (like rad, dude!) and the Snoopy bookbag has been replaced by a nylon duffel sack filled with size twelve high-topped sneakers and sweaty gym socks.

It's the same. But it's different.

"Mom, we need a chaperone for our trip to the aquarium (ever try keep track of ten kids you don't know in a strange place filled with 9,000 other fourth graders all dressed in t-shirts and jeans?)"

"But Mom, I promised you'd bring in a sheep for my class (do you know what sheep leave as remembrances in the back seat of a car?)"

Hindsight offers such clear vision. Looking back, those requests almost seem mild in light of some turning up with this year's opening of classrooms–with the eldest now in college and the youngest entering high school. (Mercy, I suddenly feel old).

"Mom, tuition's due this week. . .Mom, I need your computer for my term paper. . .Mom, coach says these have to be clean by our scrimmage tomorrow."

And, it is this last which has become the most terrifying.

No one warned this Mom about the parental commitment involved in letting your kid play school football. The endless running back and forth to practices I can deal with. Likewise, the worrying about bumps, bruises, and breaks, and the body tackle in the middle of the kitchen while I'm trying to get supper on the table.

But nowhere on those permission papers I signed did it say a single word about a Mom's committment to laundering football uniforms.

In retrospect, supplying cupcakes to a second-grade class is a piece of cake compared to washing nylon football jerseys and pants which have been rolled, ground, tackled, passed and kicked into a sea of mud on a practice field during a day-long rain.

And in white no less! Obviously no female had a say in selecting the colors of these football practice uniforms. For goodness sake, why not black, or navy or tie-dyed Army-camo design? Why white?

In keeping with the school spirit, I'm studying hard to meet the challenge. I've studied all sorts of cleaning suggestions, the sides of detergent boxes, whitener, brightener and the possibility of just eating the mud stains away with a dousing of strong bleach. Abundant mend spots on the uniform hints that some previously-frustrated football mother may have already tried that line of defense in the past.

Nevertheless, I may fail the football mother test in spite of doing all the homework.

Pack Lunches With Flavor

For most youngsters summer vacation ended this week as they headed back to classes, homework and brown bag lunches.

If you're in charge of filling those paper sacks, you'll want to provide nutritious foods you know they will eat. Potato chips, candy bars and soda will probably disappear quickly, but they don't provide the nutrients and energy students need to stay alert in the classroom.

In place of these quick, but nutrient-empty foods, pack some healthy breads, fruit, sandwiches, salads or soups. An occasional treat of homemade cookies will also be appreciated. Below are a few ideas to get you started.

Add texture, color and flavor to lunch with tasty alternatives like Peanut Butter Crisp Sticks and Apple Drop Cookies.

HAM-BEAN CHOWDER

2 quarts water
2 cups (1 pound) dried Great Northern or pea beans
3 tablespoons butter
2 cups finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 teaspoons finely chopped garlic
3 10¾-ounce cans condensed chicken broth
Water
1 ham shank (about 4 pounds) or 2 ham hocks (about 1½ pounds)
1 1-pound can tomatoes or 4 to 6 medium-sized firm ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped
2 whole cloves
1 bay leaf
Freshly ground black pepper
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

In 6-quart saucepan, bring water to boil. Drop beans in and boil briskly for 2 minutes. (Water should cover beans by at least 1 inch, add more if necessary.) Turn off heat. Let beans soak for one hour; drain, keeping liquid. Return beans to pot. Add 4 cups of the cooking liquid. In a large skillet, melt butter. Add onion, celery and garlic; cook for 5 minutes. Scrape entire contents into saucepot. Combine chicken broth with water to make 6 cups. Add to saucepot. Peel skin from ham shank, cut off excess fat. Add shank and skin to saucepot along with tomatoes, cloves, bay leaf and pepper. Simmer for 2 hours or until ham is tender. Remove ham shank and skin; cool. Transfer soup to large bowl; remove bay leaf and cloves. Cut off meat; return meat to soup mix. Refrigerate. Skim off fat. Transfer to saucepot and bring to simmer. Stir in cheese until melted. Extra soup may be stored in the refrigerator and reheated, or cooled and poured into freezer containers and frozen. Thaw and reheat over low heat. Makes about 4 quarts.

CREAM OF TURKEY SOUP

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups skim or low fat milk
1 cup coarsely chopped cooked turkey
Grated carrot
6 tablespoons flour
3 cups turkey broth
Salt and pepper to taste

Heat butter in saucepan. Blend in flour. Heat until bubbly. Gradually add milk and 1 cup of broth, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil and cook 1 to 2 minutes.

Blend in remaining broth and turkey. Heat; do not boil. Garnish with grated carrot

CHILI CON CARNE

1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chili powder
⅓ cup onion flakes
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 number 2 can red kidney beans
2 tablespoons vinegar
Dash of garlic powder

Crumble beef; brown in hot shortening, stirring until meat loses its pink color. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Cover. Simmer 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serves 4 to 6.

CHICKEN SALAD SANDWICH IN HARD ROLL

Dressing:
½ cup sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons pickle juice
2 dashes hot pepper sauce
½ teaspoon salt
Filling:
3 cups cubed cooked chicken
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup sliced green onions
2 tablespoons chopped gherkins
6 hard rolls

Combine ingredients for dressing. Add chicken, celery, onions and pickles. Slice top off hard roll, hollow out and fill with chicken salad mixture. Replace top. Store individually in sandwich bags. Makes 6 sandwiches.

EASY GRANOLA BARS

1 cup crunchy peanut butter
2 beaten eggs
4 tablespoons honey

Mix together in pan over low heat. When slightly warmed add:
2½ cups oatmeal
1½ cups mixture of sunflower seeds, raisins and chocolate chips

Pat into 8x8-inch greased pan and refrigerate.

Note: the oatmeal is important but the other ingredients may be substituted.

CHEESY TUNA SALAD

1 can of tuna in water, drained
1 cup celery, thinly sliced
1 cup cheese, cut in ½-inch cubes
2 tablespoons onions, optional
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise
Pepper to taste

Combine tuna, celery, cheese and onion. Blend mayonnaise, lemon juice and pepper. Add to tuna mixture. Blend well. Keep refrigerated until ready to use.

MAGIC DATE COOKIES

1 can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
3 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup chopped dates
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Quartered dates for tops of cookies

In a large bowl, gradually mix cracker crumbs and cinnamon into condensed milk. Add dates and blend well. Mixture will be very thick. With lightly oiled hands, shape by tablespoonsful into round balls. Place on greased cookie sheets and lightly flatten each ball. Press a quarter pitted date into each cookie. Bake at 350°F. for 15 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on racks. Makes about 3 dozen.

CHEDDAR WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

1¼ cups whole wheat flour
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 cup chopped pecans
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1¼ cups milk
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ cup molasses
1 egg, slightly beaten

Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine dry ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Stir in cheese, nuts and orange peel. Combine milk, butter, molasses and egg. Stir liquid ingredients into dry ingredient mixture, stirring just until ingredients are blended. Spread batter evenly in buttered 9½x5½-inch loaf pan. Bake 55 to 60 minutes, or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Let rest in pan 10 minutes Remove and cool at least 1½ hours on a wire rack

DRIED APPLE AND BRAN MUFFINS

1½ cups 40 percent bran flakes
1 cup water
¼ cup oil
1 slightly beaten egg
¾ cup chopped dried apples
1¼ cups flour
⅓ cup dry nonfat dry milk
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt

Soak bran flakes in water in medium bowl 5 minutes. Stir in oil, egg and apple. Combine flour, dry nonfat milk, sugar, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Make a well in center. Stir in bran mixture just until moistened. Spoon into 12 buttered 2½-inch muffin cups. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) for 20 to 25 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from muffin cups and serve warm, or cool on wire racks.

APPLE DROP COOKIES

½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
½ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup pared, cored, finely chopped apples (1 large)
½ cup finely chopped walnuts

In small mixer bowl, beat sugar, egg and shortening until fluffy. Stir together flour and spices; add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Stir in apples and walnuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375°F. oven 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets to wire racks to cool. Pack in sandwich bags. Makes 3 dozen.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Mary Dietrich of Lancaster who claimed the top prize in the state Pork Fest Recipe Contest. Her winning recipe, printed below for you to try, features a boneless pork loin roast and spices basted with an apricot and raisin glaze served on rice.

For a list of other winners in this contest, look for a story featuring them in this week's B section.

Apricot-Glazed Pork Roast

2½-3 pound boneless pork loin roast
1 cup apricot nectar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) apricot halves
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup butter
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon white wine vinegar
3 cups cooked long grain rice

Place pork roast on rack in roasting pan. Roast at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes per pound to an internal temperature of 170°F. In saucepan, combine apricot nectar, ginger, mustard, thyme and salt. Simmer for five minutes. Baste mixture over pork every 15 to 20 minutes. Cook rice.

When pork is done, remove from pan, cover and keep warm. Remove any fat from roasting pan. Add butter, and celery to the pan. Saute on top of range. Drain apricots, reserve four halves for garnish. Chop remaining apricots. Add apricots, raisins, vinegar and water to roasting pan. Cover and simmer five minutes. Add hot rice to the ingredients in the roasting pan. Heat thoroughly. Slice pork. Serve on heated platter surrounded with rice mixture. Garnish with apricot halves. Serves eight.

Lancaster Woman Wins Pork Recipe Contest

ADAMSTOWN – Mary A. Dietrich of Lancaster came up with the winning ingredients for capturing the state Pork Fest Recipe Contest, held Aug. 23 at the Bavarian Summer Festival in Adamstown.

"This was the first time I've entered a cooking contest," Dietrich said. She was awarded $75 plus a gift certificate for dinner for two at Ed Stoudt's Black Angus Restaurant, Adamstown, and a gift pack of Pennsylvania Pork products.

Dietrich's recipe, "Apricot-Glazed Pork Roast" featured a boneless pork loin roast and spices basted with an apricot and raisin glaze, served on rice.

"Pennsylvania Pork Tortellini Toss" won second place for Debbie Yandric of Middletown. Her recipe featured thin strips of boneless pork, spices, vegetables and cheese-filled tortellini. Yandric received $50 and a Hatfield Piggy bag with a five-pound party ham.

Third place winner was Giovina M. Bradley of Lancaster with "Oriental Pork." She won $30 and a 10-pound boneless dry-cured ham from Leidy's Inc. of Souderton.

Fourth place was won by Karen Black of Erie with "Party Perfect Pork Chops." Black won $20 plus a boneless ham and gift pack from Alderfer Bologna Co., Harleysville.

"Peanutty Pork Roast" brought Sharon Jadick of Brodheadsville a fifth-place prize of $15 plus a gift pack of ham, bacon and pork sausage from Kunzler and Company.

Winning honorable mention, which included $10 and gift packs of Canadian smoked bacon and wood smoked ham from the Daniel Weaver Co., Lebanon, were Peggi Clauhs of Sellersville, Rosemary Estelmann of Carlisle and Josephine Piro of Easton.

Judging the boneless pork contest were: Carol Stoudt, owner of Ed Stoudt's Black Angus Restaurant; Julie Gockley of Ephrata, the 1986 recipe contest winner; and Lillie Anne Kopp of Lancaster, free-lance home economist.

The Pennsylvania Pork Fest Recipe Contest was sponored by the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Marketing Program and Ed Stoudt's Black Angus Restaurant.

For a free copy of the 1986 winning recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to: Pork Fest Recipes, Bureau of Markets, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

QUESTION - W.J. Coddington, Rahway, N J., would like to know how to prepare a refrigerator pie using 1 box lemon-flavored gelatin, 1 can evaporated milk and vanilla wafers or graham cracker dust for the pie crust. She needs a complete list of ingredients and the amount of each needed.

QUESTION - Mary Lapp, Newburg, would like a recipe for cream cheese.

QUESTION - Mrs. Ginny B. Atkinson, Bridgeton, N.J., would like a recipe for biscuits like those sold by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

QUESTION - Mrs. Randolph Foltz, Edinburg, Va., would like a recipe for dough cake. The dough is allowed to sit overnight, then in the morning is pulled from the dough ball and stretched out. The dough is fried in grease. It puffs up and is eaten with eggs or butter and jelly.

QUESTION - Mrs. Delores Buhite, Reynoldsville, would like a recipe for blackberries wrapped in dough, sealed tight and dropped in boiling water. She needs the recipe for the dough and how long to cook it.

QUESTION - Beverly Reiner, Pitman, would like a recipe for Chicken Monterey using deboned chicken breasts with a type of barbecue sauce.

ANSWER - Mrs. Leo Barsnica, Neshanic Station, N.J., requested recipes for zucchini cookies. A search through Lancaster Farming's recipe files unearthed the lemon zucchini cookie recipe from Becky Lunkanheimer of New York, and the drop cookie recipe from Mrs. Ray P. Reinecker of York Springs.

Lemon Zucchini Cookies

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup shredded zucchini
1 cup chopped nuts

Mix ingredients in order given. Bake at 375° F. for 15 to 20 minutes Cover with lemon glaze

Lemon Glaze

1 cup sugar
1½ tablespoons lemon juice

Zucchini Drop Cookies

1 cup zucchini, peeled and grated
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup shortening
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Beat zucchini, soda, sugar and shortening well. Add egg and beat well. Add sifted flour and spices. Add nuts and raisins. Drop on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375° F. for 12 to 15 minutes.

ANSWER - Connie Kreider, Manheim, and Mrs. Ginny B Atkinson, Bridgeton, N.J., requested a recipe for granola bars. Below are two from Lancaster Farming's recipe files. The first was sent by Marcella Barkman, Breezewood

Granola Bars

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon each baking soda and salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1½ cups natural or granola cereal
½ cup each chopped dates and nuts

Cream butter. Beat in next 4 ingredients. Mix together remaining ingredients. Stir into butter mixture, mixing well. Spread in greased 9-inch square pan. Bake in 350° F. oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool, cut into bars. Makes 36 1½-inch bars

Easy Granola Bars

1 cup crunchy peanut butter
2 beaten eggs
4 tablespoons honey

Mix in pan over low heat. When slightly warmed, add:

2½ cups oatmeal
1½ cups mixture of sunflower seeds, raisins and chocolate chips

Pat into 8x8-inch greased pan. Refrigerate.

Note: Oatmeal is important, but other ingredients can be substituted.

ANSWER - W.J. Coddington, Rahway, N.J., requested a recipe for Concord Grape Skin Pie. Thanks go to Mrs. Phyllis Baldner, St. Thomas, for the following recipe, and to all others who shared their Grape Pie recipes.

Grape Pie

5⅓ cups Concord grapes
1⅓ cups sugar
¼ to ⅓ cup flour
1¼ teaspoons lemon juice
1½ tablespoons butter

Heat oven to 425° F. Remove and save skins from grapes. Put pulp into pan without water and bring to a rolling boil. While hot, rub through strainer to remove seeds. Mix strained pulp with skins. Mix sugar and flour lightly through grapes. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Pour grapes into pie crust. Dot with butter. Cover with top crust or crumbs. Bake 35 to 45 minutes or until lightly browned and juice begins to bubble through.

ANSWER - Katherine Van Ness, Wana que, N.J., requested a recipe for old fashioned molasses cake. Thanks go to Hilda M. Blatt, Jonestown, for sharing the following recipe.

Molasses Cake

½ cup shortening
1 cup light brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup molasses
1 cup sour milk
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon soda

Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat. Add dry ingredients, then molasses and sour milk. Put in 9x13-inch greased pan. Bake at 350° F. for 25 to 30 minutes Cool 5 to 10 minutes When baked, put topping on warm cake Place under broiler until it bubbles.

Topping:

6 tablespoons melted butter
10 tablespoons milk
1 cup light brown sugar
½ or 1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup coconut

ANSWER - R.K. from Mattawana, requested a recipe for Poor Man's Oysters. Thanks go to Maryanne Noll of Willow Street who shared her Mock Oysters recipe

Mock Oysters

1 egg, separated
2 ears corn
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

Grate corn. Add flour, soft butter, salt and pepper. Mix well. Add egg yolk. Beat egg white until stiff, fold into corn mixture. Drop batter by teaspoonfuls into hot fat in frypan. Fry until lightly browned on all sides. Makes 4 servings.

PEANUT BUTTER CRISP STICKS

1 cup oats, quick or old fashioned
1½ cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
6 tablespoons unsalted butter
¾ cup buttermilk or sour milk
⅓ cup peanut butter
Chopped peanuts, raisins, toasted coconut, shredded carrots

Whirl oats in blender or processor until powdered; pour into bowl and stir in remaining dry ingredients. Cut in butter until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Add buttermilk and stir with a f until combined. Knead 4 to 5 t Sprinkle 2 cookie sheets with roll half of dough out on each to form a 13 by 5½-inch rectangle. Prick with a fork; bake in preheated 350°F. oven 18 to 20 minutes until edges are light brown. Remove from oven; let stand a few minutes. Spread with peanut butter; sprinkle with desired toppings. Cut into 5½ by 1-inch sticks, while warm. When cool, pack in sandwich bags. Makes 30 sticks.

Stop Tomato Juice Separation

YORK – Do you find it disappointing to spend the day cooking and squeezing tomatoes for tomato juice only to find after the chore is done the juice is separated. It's not spoiled, but it doesn't look very nice. There's a secret to making tomato juice that doesn't separate.

It involves speed and technique. Tomatoes contain pectin which makes the tomato juice have body and thick texture. When tomatoes are cut, crushed or bruised, and exposed to air, enzymes in the tomatoes are activated. If cut tomatoes are allowed to stand around exposed to air and are heated slowly, the enzymes destroy the pectin causing tomato solids to separate from the liquid. This happens in both canned tomatoes and tomato juices. Here's the secret method:

Quickly cut about 1 pound of firm ripe tomatoes into quarters directly into the pot. Crush them and heat quickly to boiling. Continue to slowly add freshly cut pieces to the boiling, crushed tomatoes. Crush new pieces immediately after adding, making sure the mixture continues to boil constantly. Simmer about 5 minutes after all pieces have been added. Put tomatoes thru sieve or food mill to remove seeds and skins. Reheat juice to boiling, before putting into jars. Process tomato juice in boiling water bath 35 minutes for quarts and pints.

When working with whole tomatoes, don't have large amounts of tomatoes peeled and cut standing around waiting.

Work only with the amount you can process in a canner load at one time.

LANI BLOOMER

Microwave Baked Eggs, For a Fast Start

Your microwave can help you get a quick, hot breakfast for family members before they dash off to work or school. Baked (shirred) eggs are delicious, but take a long time in your range oven. In the microwave, they can be ready in just a few minutes.

Many people have problems with overcooked eggs in a microwave. If your eggs are too hard or rubbery, they have been overcooked. Here are some suggestions to help get your eggs perfect:

1. Cover the eggs tightly with plastic wrap, or a tightly fitting lid, to hold in steam and help them cook evenly.

2. Don't use high power. Use a medium power setting, such as 50, 5. The lower power allows the eggs to cook more evenly, eliminating overdone or rubbery spots.

One problem with cooking poached or baked eggs in the microwave is that the yolk, with its high fat content, tends to cook faster than the white. A lower power level helps keep the yolks softer.

3. Use a short cooking time. Always use the shortest suggested cooking time for a recipe, and then let the eggs stand, tightly covered. The heat in the eggs and container will continue cooking them for a few minutes.

The exact cooking time for eggs will vary, and depends on the size of the egg, its temperature, the power of your oven, and how firm you like your eggs.

4. Standing time is important. Let the eggs finish cooking during a period of standing time for the best results. If you try to microwave eggs until they are the way you like them, some areas will probably be overcooked and rubbery.

For soft eggs, let them stand only a minute or two. For firm eggs, let them stand for four or five minutes.

5. The container makes a difference. For one or two baked or poached eggs, use 6-ounce glass custard cups. For more than 4 eggs, a plastic microwave muffin pan (without holes in the bottom!) is easier to handle. However, the eggs will cook a little faster in the plastic pan than in the glass cups. If you use a plastic muffin pan, subtract about 30 seconds from the cooking time, then check the eggs and add more time if necessary.

For scrambled eggs, the easiest container to use is a glass measuring cup. But don't fill it more than half full, or the eggs will puff right over the top!

Here are three quick baked egg recipes to vary the morning meal in your house. Use these ideas and substitute for what you have on hand.

If you're late and have to run out the door, make one of these baked eggs portable. Place egg on muffin or roll and top with other half for a carry along sandwich. (But they're better eaten sitting down with juice, coffee, etc.!)

Egg-A-Muffin

For each serving:
1 egg
1 slice cheese
1 English muffin or hamburger roll, toasted or buttered if desired

1. Break egg into a custard cup or small bowl. Poke a hole in the yolk with a fork (or stir egg slightly to break up yolk). Cover with plastic wrap.

2. Microwave on medium (50,5):
1 egg: 1½ to 2 minutes.
2 eggs: 2½ to 3 minutes.
4 eggs: 3 to 3½ minutes.

3. Let stand 30 seconds (soft egg) to 2 minutes (firm egg). Loosen the egg around the edges and slide it onto the muffin. Top with cheese slice then the other muffin half.

4. Microwave on high for 15 to 30 seconds, just until cheese melts.

Variation: Put a slice of ham, Canadian bacon or bologna in the bottom of the custard cup. Break egg into meat, pierce yolk, cover and increase microwave time by 1 minute for each egg.

Eggs Ole

For each serving:
1 tablespoon taco sauce
1 large egg
1 tablespoon grated cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
Toast or muffin half

1. Put taco sauce in bottom of custard cup. Break egg on top, pierce yolk. Sprinkle cheese on top and cover with plastic wrap.

2. Microwave on medium (50,5):
1 egg: 1½-2 minutes.
2 eggs: 2½-3 minutes.
4 eggs: 3-3½ minutes.

3. Let stand 30 seconds (soft egg) to 2 minutes (firm egg). Loosen the egg around the edges and slide it onto the muffin or toast. Variation: Put a slice of tomato on toast and top with egg.

Nest Eggs

For each serving:
1 large egg
2 ounces (about ¼ cup) canned hash
Slice toast, etc.

1. Press hash against bottom and sides of 6-ounce custard cup to form a nest. Break egg into nest and pierce yolk. Cover with plastic wrap.

2. Microwave on medium high (70,7) (use shorter time for soft egg; longer for firm egg):
1 egg: 3-3½ minutes.
2 eggs: 4-4½ minutes.
4 eggs: 5-5½ minutes.

3. Let stand for several minutes. Serve nest on toast. Variation: Use 2 ounces of bulk sausage instead of hash if desired. Increase microwave time by 30 seconds per egg.

Note: The cooking times above are for microwaves with 600 to 700 watts of power. For 500 to 600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400 to 500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

Costa Rica Expedition Faces Frogs, Fog And Knee-Deep Mud

WASHINGTON — An international scientific team has just reported on a waterlogged month of slogging along a machete-cut trail in a Costa Rican jungle, often knee-deep in mud, searching for new facts about rare plants and animals.

The 45 American, British, and Costa Rican scientists were exploring the only swath of protected tropical forest in Central America that stretches from near sea level to 9,500 feet — from steamy rain forest to cool, mossy cloud forest on the upper slopes of a dormant volcano.

From bottom to top, they conducted the first full-scale scientific exploration of the narrow, 21-mile-long stretch of land, called an "altitudinal transect," last spring. Within it live at least 30 previously unknown species of plants and animals, and more varieties of trees than grow in the United States and Canada combined.

"I saw things I'd never seen before. I climbed every tree I could," says David Good, assistant curator of the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology at the University of California, Berkeley.

Numerous Frogs, Snakes

Good and his fellow herpetologists found 93 species of reptiles and amphibians, including 42 kinds of frogs and 27 kinds of frog-eating snakes.

At 5,940 feet, Good saw a rare giant flying frog, with big webs between its fingers and toes that enable it to glide like a parachute. Only a couple had ever been found before. "We saw two more, about doubling the number of specimens," he says.

Good also found six tiny salamanders with the Latin name of Nototriton richardi. Only 15 or 20 of them had been seen previously. "It's not much to look at," he says, "but it's extremely interesting in evolutionary terms."

The scientists had set out to document the natural progression of wildlife from lower to higher elevations, noting particularly at what altitude some species disappear and others arise, how they divide up resources, and how they survive.

Biologist David P. Janos of the University of Miami collected fungi at seven different elevations. "No one has ever catalogued species of fungi over an elevational transect in the tropics," he reports. He came back with 300 vials of spores. "It was more extensive collecting than I dreamed possible," he says.

The expedition, supported by the National Geographic Society, was sponsored by the Organization for Tropical Studies, a consortium of 39 universities and research institutions based at Duke University.

Permanent Protection

While the scientists were in the field, the president of Costa Rica signed a decree permanently protecting the last piece of this tropical-forest swath. It extends mountaintop Braulio Carrillo National Park down to the consortium's La Selva Biological Station.

Costa Rica has both one of the world's worst records for tropical-forest destruction — about 75 percent is gone — and one of the best records for forest protection, exceeding the international standard of 10 percent of a nation's territory.

"This exploratory mission was extremely successful in introducing scientists to this whole new altitudinal transect," says expedition leader Gary Hartshorn of the Tropical Science Center in Costa Rica. The major disappointment, he says, was not sighting any large mammals such as jaguars or pumas.

The scientists identified a "life zone" between about 3,900 and 4,900 feet as the richest in numbers and mixtures of species, says the consortium's executive director, Donald E. Stone, a botanist at Duke. Future field research will concentrate on this transition zone, where the most striking changes occur among plants and animals.

The expedition into the spectacular forest of waterfalls and gorges was as strenuous as it was scientifically successful. Torrential downpours nearly every day brought twice as much rain as was normal for April. The freshly cut trail was so steep and slippery in places that the scientists had to crawl up it. In spots, they had to crawl on their bellies in the mud under large trees fallen across the path.

"I don't think I've ever been dirtier," says Gary Braasch, who photographed the newly preserved section for the Nature Conservancy, one of several international organizations that helped finance the purchase of the land.

At one point, Hartshorn reports, his assistant got both feet stuck in the deep mud and had to be pulled out. At the 6,600-foot camp, the fog was so thick that one scientist couldn't find his tent one night.

David Good says he started out having to cross a river by balancing on a narrow board, carrying a heavy backpack. At the 4,950-foot camp, he slept on a platform suspended from poles, pulling moss several inches thick off the trees to make a soft bed. Before retiring, he picked salamanders out of the moss.

Despite mud and rain, "there was a tremendous sense of excitement and discovery," says ecologist Beth Braker of Colorado College. She found 28 species of grasshoppers, including an irisdescent green and yellow one that may represent a new genus.

All eyes, this tree frog lives at an elevation of 2,300 feet in a newly-protected tropical forest in Costa Rica. It is among 42 species of frogs found during a scientific expedition into the region, the only permanently preserved forest in Central America that stretches from near sea level to 9,500 feet.

N.J. Youth Travels To Australia With FFA Work Experience Abroad Program

BY ED SHAMY
Northwest New Jersey
Correspondent

BROADWAY, N.J. — Jay Steele spent the summer working on a Far Hills beef farm with 70 head of polled Herefords.

The June graduate of Alfred State College in New York felt fortunate to have found the job. After all, 70 head of beef cattle is a large farm in northern New Jersey.

But it will pale in comparison to Steele's newest job.

He left last week for Australia, where he will work on a ranch with 400 Polled Herefords in the Queensland Territory. Steele is participating in the Future Farmers of America Work Experience Abroad program.

Until March, he'll be living with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thiele on the ranch he knew, before leaving, precious little about.

Mrs. Thiele called her American guest at his home in Broadway, a tiny village straddling Route 57 in Warren County, several weeks ago and told him he would be arriving in the middle of the three-week spring season. The most consistent rains of the year would fall on grazing lands during the period, but when the skies clear, summer will bring its 100- and 110-degree temperatures, she said.

Australia, in the southern hemisphere, is now changing from winter to spring.

Steele will also have to get accustomed to living far from other population centers. The Thieles told him they were "isolated, but not totally out in the sticks," said Steele.

Steele said the day before he left that he was up to the task.

Polled Herefords are his first love, and he hopes to forge a career of managing a herd. He holds his associates degree in animal science from the Alfred, N.Y. college and has been accepted at Virginia Polytechnic Institute to continue his studies when he returns.

For the Australia phase of his experience, he has some good friends to thank.

His parents, Joseph and Virginia Steele of Broadway, were thrilled that he would pursue the adventure. They left their Asbury dairy farm six years ago when Mr. Steele went into the excavating business.

One of their reasons for the move was that they weren't sure any of their children would be interested in assuming the farm once they retired. Jay has emerged as the farming son, and they are delighted at his interest.

But even their enthusiasm, alone, may not have been enough to send Steele winging toward Australia.

He figures the trip will cost about $2,200. He sent out nearly 80 letters to prospective sponsors and was surprised at the strength of the response.

Twenty-one individuals and organizations pledged $1,820 to his travel fund.

Max E. Spann responded with a donation. So did Jeff Strunk, John Parisi, Mr. and Mrs. David P. Hall, Joseph Damms, Roy Dowling and Dan L. Schafer.

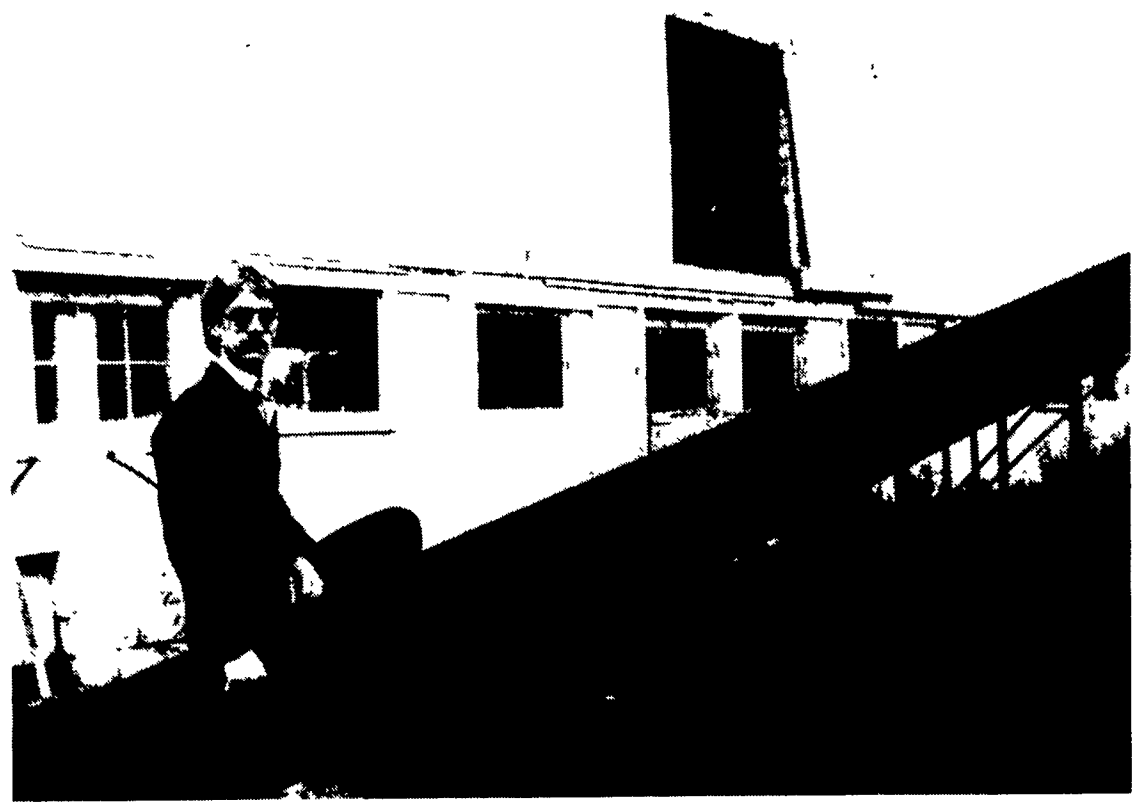
Organizations which responded were the New Jersey FFA Foundation, Warren County Board of Agriculture, New Jersey Polled Hereford Association, Warren County Farmers Fair Association, Collegiate Agricultural Leaders of Alfred State College, Farm Credit Service, Franklin Township Lions Club of Warren County, New Jersey Appaloosa Association, Warren County Cattlemen's Association, Warren County Holstein Association, Stewartsville, Warren, and Washington Granges and Warren County Pharmacy.

Without them, Steele, 20, said he would have had a hard time pulling together the necessary finances to make the trip to Australia.

And that would have come as a great disappointment to the 1984 Warren Hills Regional High School graduate. Ever since he was a sophomore, said Steele, he had dreamed of working abroad because a neighbor participated in the FFA program in Holland.

Steele, who will return to the United States in March, got his way. And he hopes he can bring something to the Thieles, his host family, by contributing to their operation.

That operation — the 400 Polled Herefords in Australian cattle country — is a dream come true for the Broadway man.



Jay Steele left the States recently to work on an Australian cattle farm as part of the FFA Work Experience Abroad program.

Acidity Necessary For Success When Canning Home-Grown Tomatoes

NEWARK, Del. – Even though most folks consider the tomato a vegetable because of the way it's prepared, it is really a fruit. Like other fruits, it is naturally high in acid. So, like them, it is usually processed in a boiling water bath.

Nothing could be simpler, or safer, provided the tomato product you're canning contains enough acid, says University of Delaware extension food specialist Dr. Sue Snider. And this is where the great tomato preservation safety debate begins.

Which canning recommendation is really safe? Are so-called low-acid tomato varieties really low-acid, thus requiring different treatment? Must yellow tomatoes be preserved differently than red ones? Can Clostridium botulinum, which produces deadly botulism toxin, really grow in home canned tomatoes?

As home food preservers thumb through their cookbooks over the next few weeks, they will find many different recommendations for processing tomatoes and tomato products. Some directions call for processing in a boiling water bath, others for pressure processing at 5, 10 or 15 pounds of pressure. Some sources may even mention low-acid versus high-acid tomatoes and recommend different treatments depending on the variety being used.

Snider has some information which may take the confusion out of preserving tomatoes. Here are her answers to key questions about this popular fruit and how to process it safely.

• Are some tomato varieties really low-acid?

"No! Even though seed companies may describe some toamtoes as low-acid, research has shown that these newer varieties don't differ much in acidity from the old standbys," the food specialist says. "Actually, the amount of acid in firm, ripe tomatoes has not decreased substantially over the past 25 years. Most tomatoes described as low-acid simply contain more sugar. This hides the tartness, giving the impression of mildness."

"And yellow tomatoes are no different from red ones in respect to acid content," says Snider. "So they should be processed in the same way."

• Why all the fuss about acid?

Level of acidity or pH is the key in determining which processing method is safe for canning any food, Snider explains. C. botulinum spores are inhibited at high acid levels (below 4.6 pH), so foods with adequate acid can be safely processed 212°F in a boiling water bath. However, low-acid foods, those with a pH of 4.6 or higher, must be processed in a pressure canner at 10 pounds of pressure, 240°F, to make sure C. botulinum spores are destroyed.

• What affects the acidity of a tomato?

Location and growing conditions, maturity of the fruit and its overall condition determine acidity. According to the food specialist, as a tomato ripens or matures, it becomes less and less acid. Therefore, an overripe tomato is less acidic than it was at its prime; and a ripe tomato has less acid than it did when it was green.

"Tomatoes harvested from dead vines have less acid than those from healthy, living vines," Snider says. "This is true even if the tomatoes look ripe. Those with soft or moldy spots are a real hazard. They may contain much less acid than a ripe tomato. Never use tomatoes with soft or decaying areas for canning; cutting out these places does not work! Never can tomatoes picked from dead vines, and always use the hot-pack method."

When canning tomatoes to which other vegetables have been added, the specialist says to always use a pressure canner. Water bath processing is considered safe only when firm, ripe, red, perfect tomatoes are used alone.

Snider urges anyone with questions about safe food preservation procedures to contact their county extension home economist.

Baronners Set Standard For Local Produce

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

HOLLIDAYSBURG — Bill Baronner helped to put the nine Kovach kids through college and trade schools. He's done the same for two generations of Kellys, close to three dozen youngsters, not to mention countless others in Blair County. How? Through summer jobs at his produce stand.

Since 1949, Baronner's stand in Hollidaysburg has set a hallmark for local produce. Today, from the unimposing wooden front on the concrete-and-brick building, Bill Baronner and his son Bobby know they can sell almost 4,500 dozen ears of sweet corn a day, in season. From the fields behind the stand, they can anticipate moving as many as 4,000 quarts of strawberries daily, about 70 percent of which are pick-your-own.

The Baronner produce station tradition began in 1918 when Bill's father began selling wholesale produce. The Baronners intended to stay in wholesaling, but after the end of World War II, the profit margin began to fall. "Chain stores were attracting buyers and they were dictating prices," Bill recalls. As an alternative one year, the Baronners erected a modest building with an apartment above and decided to try a roadside stand. The stand has been open from the start of strawberry season until Halloween every year since.

Although corn and strawberries are the main attractions, people who stop at the stand in Hollidaysburg near the State Police barracks can expect to find head lettuce, spinach, snap peas, sugar peas, wax and snap beans, broccoli, squash, cantaloupe, cauliflower, seedless watermelon, tomatoes, eggplant, cale, beets, peppers, late cabbage and pumpkins. To supplement the offerings, Baronner's purchase green onions, plums, peaches, apples, pears, and potatoes (from local growers whenever possible) to sell in their market.

The key to Baronner's success can be traced to quality. This reporter can tell about it first-hand. Not only have I tested the plump, sugary ears of corn... I'm married to a former crew boss, one of the nine Kovaches who worked a dozen summers in Baronner's fields and at the stand.

There are standards set at Baronner's that most produce sellers would be hard-pressed to match. "We don't pass off any wormy corn here," Bill says. To be sure of that fields are sprayed every three days and soil is fumigated.

Picking standards are also tight. Bill has been known to throw out entire wagonloads of corn that was picked a few hours too soon or too late. "The corn has to have just the right plumpness, that pearly color that tells you the sugar is at its peak," former crew boss Dennis Kovach explains. To keep that corn at its peak, what doesn't sell immediately from the yield is kept under a shower of cool water.

Bill Baronner spends most of the time in the market while his son Bobby manages the fields.

When strawberries are picked for sale in the market, they're graded carefully. People shopping at the stand know they won't find any white-tipped or orange berries hidden at the bottom of a basket. The procedure is the same with all the vegetables that come in from the fields; each item is graded by hand, and every questionable piece is discarded.

Bobby Baronner admits sometimes the emphasis on quality can get in the way. He likes to tell about the crew member he had to remove from the pick-your-own fields because the man intimidated people by grading their strawberries, throwing out over- or under-ripe berries, and making the people go back and start again.

But the reputation for quality has made Baronner's stand a stopping place for people from several counties around. Baronner's strawberries have even attracted the attention of a famous out-of-state visitor.

When former President Jimmy Carter was visiting on the Harpster farms in Centre County this past June, it was Baronner's strawberries that graced the table. Bill is modest about the honor, saying, "Old Mr. Harpster used to love one kind of strawberries we grew here, and he got into the habit of calling on us when he wanted some. I guess the rest of the family just kind of picked up on it."

A director of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, Bill Baronner is interested in new crop varieties. "This year we're trying out about 20 new varieties. There are only two we're considering to plant next year, and that's about average."

He admits there's some risk in trying new varieties. "You have to try them out for several years. For example, last year we had a real disaster with a cantaloupe variety that was great the year before. One year isn't going to tell you all you need to know."

He keeps about 90 acres of his land planted in sweet corn, about 70 percent of which is bi-color and white. He has 14 acres of strawberries, primarily in Early Glo and All-Star, in 10-inch raised beds with tile drains in the fields.

He owns about 275 acres and rents an additional 60. Much of it is fertile bottom land along the banks of the Little Juniata River and Canoe Creek. He keeps only about 175 acres in production at a time.

When autumn comes and the stand closes down, Bill likes to take some time for hunting. He's been as far away as Alaska for Dahl sheep and Canada for moose. He

DO YOU EXPECT ENOUGH?

We all know the joke about harnessing the energy of teenagers to supply the energy needs of any small city but have you thought about taking the joke seriously? Too many parents don't expect enough of their perfectly capable, strong, adolescent children.

We fall into a rut. Older parents sometimes fall into the trap of doing everything themselves instead of going through the arguments or explanations necessary to teach their children to do the job for themselves. That's a pattern where everyone loses - parents are overworked and don't have enough time for themselves, children learn dependence and are not prepared for the demands of adult life. Everyone feels cheated.

When's the time to start expecting your children to do their share of the work? Right now! Don't wait until some emergency hits your family and children have to take over on the spot. Learning to be responsible and to do a good job of keeping a home running takes time to learn and time to teach. You owe it to yourself and to your children to do it right.

Start with meals. After all, everyone gets to eat. Why shouldn't everyone be part of the preparation and the clean-up? Then think about laundry. Even in a family of two or three laundry takes time. So everyone who wants clean clothes should take some responsibility for doing the work. Yard work and home maintenance are logical extensions of family work.

No matter what the job, you can make the difference by being clear in your instructions. Don't just say "do it." Don't assume "everyone" knows how to load a washing machine and sort the clothes. Be clear, be kind, and be patient. But most important of all, take the time to teach your growing children how to be independent and how to do their share. It's only fair.

About Enrichment And Fortification Of Foods

The terms "enrichment" and "fortification" have been part of the food industry for a long time. But these terms still create confusion amoung many consumers.

The enrichment process replaces nutrients lost during the processing and refining of food. Enrichment of flour, bread, rice, cereal, cornmeal, spaghetti, and macaroni products refers to the addition of the B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin and niacin) and the mineral iron. There is no need to enrich whole-grain foods such as whole wheat bread and flour since they contain their original nutrients naturally.

Fortification goes a step beyond enrichment. In this process, a nutrient is added that was not originally present in the food or that was present in a smaller amount, such as vitamin D milk, vitamin A fortified margarine, iodized salt and fruit drinks with vitamin C added. Certain bread and cereal products are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals. Better quality protein sources are obtained by fortifying some products with certain amino acids. In some communities, the drinking water is fortified with fluoride. In short, fortification helps to supply nutrients that would otherwise be hard for some people to get in their regular diets.

Enrichment and fortification have both played an important role in improving nutrition in the United States. However, the federal Food and Drug Administration does limit the amount of nutrients that can be added to foods. Without limits, food companies might complete with each other to see who could come up with the most nutritionally complete super-food. Such all-purpose super-foods are not necessary for people who eat a variety of nutritious foods.

Be in the know. Read the label to determine whether a food is enriched or fortified and what nutrients have been added.

Baronners Produce

particularly enjoys trips to Delaware for the goose hunting and traveling to Hudson Bay in Canada because, "There are no phones or anything."

Bill is looking forward to retiring in a few more years. "If it wasn't for Bobby," he admits, "I'd be out of this now." But he's concerned about the future of direct produce marketing. He's keenly aware of the problems because his farm land skirts the edge of the Altoona area, near major highways and shopping malls.

"Our customers are changing," he says. "People used to come in here and buy 50 lbs. of potatoes at a time. Now they just want enough for 2 or 3 days. And we don't get the strawberry picking that we used to. People will come in for a couple of quarts instead of 25 or 30 like in the past."

His other worry is finding adequate help. "When we started we had a lot of older people helping out in the fields. They needed the money. But today with Social Security and working longer, adults aren't interested in field work." Right now he relies on teenagers, most of whom are from nearby Hollidaysburg. "We used to get more kids from the country. The ones we get now are from town, and they don't have any idea how hard the work is going to be, so we lose a lot of them right away."

He notes that he's been lucky so far with most of the people who work in the fields and the market, but wonders if the pool of dependable people is going to disappear in the future.

With corn season about over, Bill is looking forward to the cool days of autumn and the wedges of geese that will call him away to do some relaxing. A little time to himself and then it's back to repairing equipment, starting the seedlings down at the greenhouse, and putting aside the thought of retirement for a while longer as he reorganizes for the next year.

Haldeman Mansion Antique Show Set For Sept. 14

BAINBRIDGE – The Haldeman Mansion Preservation Society will hold it's Fall Country Antiques Show Sept. 14 from 12 to 6 p.m.

Some of the features will be wood carving, basketmaking, blacksmithing, folk art, and herbal wreaths. Admission to the show is free.

Mansion's famous chicken barbeque dinner, which includes baked potato, roll, cole slaw, apple or shoofly pie and beverage, will be available. All the proceeds from the barbeque will go toward the continued restoration of the mansion. Musical entertainment is also scheduled.

The Haldeman Mansion, located in western Lancaster County, was the birthplace of the eminent naturalist and scientist professor Samuel Steman Haldeman. It is located on Locust Grove Road, ¼ mile south of Route 441, just east of Bainbridge. It overlooks a scenic area of the Susquehanna River.

Come enjoy a stroll through the grounds and the mansion itself. Browse the stands of local craftsmen, and enjoy a delicious chicken barbeque.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

September has always been a busy month for me. A few years ago it meant getting children ready for school. We never went on big spending sprees but always needed new trousers for the boys and every child needed new shoes. Now all six are on their own and manage their own wardrobes.

Mother and father try to manage the farm alone. Sometimes the work load is almost more than we can handle. My husband has been looking for good help for a long time. We really hit bottom with our last hired boy as he was only here two weeks and worked only half of those days.

When my husband was loading some bull calves for market, one of them leaped over a fence and headed for the cornfield. It is wily and has not yet been coaxed back into its hutch beside the barn.

We've been visited by wild geese rather early this year. And early in the morning when they fly from one area of the river to another, they are loud enough to awaken everyone.

I've been canning peaches and plums and yesterday I picked a few buckets of Concord grapes to be made into juice. It is one job that makes me happy when it is finished and the purple juice is ready for the cellar shelves. As our sweetcorn is always planted rather late, the job of freezing it comes in September too.

Our neighbor had two heifers fall off of a high cliff into the Conestoga River. One was rescued when a local hunter doffed his clothes and swam across to guide it to a muddy beach. My husband got it out with the loader on his tractor but it was injured and had to be butchered. There is never a dull moment around here.

York 4-H Leaders Honored For Service

YORK — Adult and teen 4-H leaders were recognized at an annual banquet held at the Seven Valleys Firehall Aug. 22. The leaders provide knowledge, experience and guidance to 4-H members in assisting them through projects and activities.

The 4-H teen leaders assist adult leaders in one of many 4-H projects that youth are involved in. They serve to bridge the gap between old and young. Many of these teen leaders will become leaders in their communities later in life.

Receiving awards for 15 years of service were: Sandra Feeser, Hanover; Janet McElwain, Stewartstown; Alverta Mundis, Stewartstown; and Janet Wilson, New Freedom.

Those serving 20 years were: Bessie Hutschenreuter, Airville; Theda Jacoby, Spring Grove; Wayne Jacoby, Spring Grove; Fay Swartz, Hanover; and Joyce Raubenstein, Hanover. Ruth Rebert of Hanover, was honored for 25 years of service.

Following the awards ceremony, the leaders were entertained by Peck Foster and the Friday Night Garage Pickers.

Delmarva Forestry Seminar Scheduled

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The eighth annual Delmarva Forestry Seminar will be held Oct. 4 and 5 at the Holiday Inn in Salisbury, Maryland. This year's theme is "Managing Your Forestland for Profit."

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. The program begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. The following topics will be presented: Marketing Your Timber; Reforestation and Timber Stand Improvement; Protecting Your Woodland Investment; and Water Quality on the Delmarva Peninsula.

The Seminar also will include an optional field tour on Sunday, Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Visitors will see area tree farms that use modern forestry techniques.

Advanced registration is $20. Late registration after September 15 is $25. The optional field tour is $5 per person. For more information, contact Tom Reeder (301) 742-3163, or write Bradley Hilty, county agent, Cooperative Extension Service, Quantico Rd., Salisbury, Md. 21801.

Agriculture Reigns At York Fair Through Sept. 13

YORK — Although the thrills and chills of the midway draw many people to the York Fair, the heart and soul of the event is still agricultural. This year during the nine days (Sept. 5 to 13) when the country meets the city, fairgoers can enjoy a variety of rural attractions.

Horticulture Hall, located in the northeast corner of the Fairgrounds, is the place for exhibits from the bountiful farms, fields and kitchens of the Mid-Atlantic region. It is here where growers enter their prize-winning fruits and vegetables, including Pennsylvania's largest pumpkin, and compete for York Fair and Guinness World records to win as much as $1,000 in premiums.

The shelves in the Hall are stacked with canned fruits, vegetables, and meats, as well as jams, jellies, marmalades, preserves and butters made with fruit.

Adjacent to Horticulture Hall, Old Main is filled with a treasure trove of items reflecting the creativity and skill of numerous craftspeople. Needlework with such intriguing names as candlewickery and chicken scratch can be found here as well as woodwork, leather tooling, stencilling, sgraffito, basketry and many other handicrafts. A new feature at the 1986 Fair will be individuals demonstrating such skills as cake decorating, fresh and silk flower arranging, wood carving, decoy painting and stained glass.

Moving away from the home centered crafts in Old Main and out to the livestock barns, visitors to the Fair get a real taste, feel, look, listen and smell of country life.

"During the York Fair, in what is the East's largest livestock show, the public gains a real appreciation for the work involved in raising animals," observes Mr. John German, Assistant to the Livestock Manager. Whether it is a young 4-H member showing for the first time or a seasoned exhibitor, there is a tremendous amount of skill and preparation that takes place before even entering the show ring. It is interesting to watch the various animals being bathed, brushed, braided, curried and possibly sheared in hopeful anticipation of a coveted blue ribbon.

Horse Pulling, one of the mainstays of an old fashioned county fair, will be featured Saturday, Sept. 13 at noon. This competition will be held on the track in front of the grandstand and is free to all fairgoers.

Approximately 20 Draft Horse Pulling Teams will compete in the lightweight (horses weighing 3200 pounds) and heavyweight (unlimited weight class over a ton) divisions. Entries in the competition will include several champion teams and will be pitting raw horse power strength against mechanical loads of up to 26 tons.

No trip to the barnyard would be complete without a look at some poultry. The Poultry Building contains a great collection of roosters, chickens, ducks and geese and there is even an incubator where chicks can be seen hatching from eggs. A pond with baby ducks sliding down a slide, pigeons, hamsters, guinea pigs, and rabbits are also some of the exhibits of smaller animals featured in this building.

The York Fair definitely reflects its rich agricultural heritage throughout the fairgrounds with the tremendous variety of exhibits, displays, and demonstrations.

Montgomery 4-H Fair Champions Listed

CREAMERY — Montgomery County 4-H members wrapped up an exciting year in 4-H by exhibiting over 200 finished projects at the 4-H Fair held recently at the Creamery 4-H Center. Ribbons are awarded on a Danish system of blue, red and white merit ribbons, rather than a first, second, third placing, allowing each youngster to be awarded in the same category instead of only one first place ribbon.

In the home economics divisions green clover awards are given to exhibits of outstanding quality. In all areas a "Champion in Class" award is given in each class with nine or less entries. If ten or more entries are in a class, the outstanding exhibits are selected as grand champion and reserve grand champion.

The following are some of the final judging results in the home economics and family living divisions.

Clothing and Textiles

Clover ribbons were awarded to: from the Lansdale area, Danielle Detweiler, Level 3; Tori Myers, Level 1; Judy Park, Freelance; Christy Hough, Level 1; Jody Carney, Freelance; Janet Carney, Freelance; Heather Kent; Level 2; and Rachel Benner, Freelance. From the Harleysville area: Kristen Schickling, Level 4; Stephanie Moyer, Level 6; Lisa Koehler, Freelance; and Lavonne Stutzman, Level 4. From Perkiomenville: Clorinda O'Leary, Level 6. From the Trappe area Barbara Finnan, Level 1, and Lisa Finnan, Level 6. Lisa Koehler was also awarded the grand champion ribbon, while Janet Carney and Jody Carney were both awarded reserve grand champion honors.

Foods and Nutrition

Clovers were received by Stephanie Moyer, Harleysville; Gwen Ottinger, Collegeville; Heather Kent, Lansdale; and Cathy Jo Barnshaw, Graterford. Cathy Jo also received the best in class ribbon for Level 3.

Crafts

Ceramics: Pam Frey, Zieglerville, was awarded grand champion.

All 4-H members were commended for their fine exhibits at the 4-H Fair. Some "open classes" at the Fair allowed parents, leaders and the general public to display their finished home economics products. The following individuals received blue ribbons for their accomplishments: Mary Ellen Wagner, Alice Heffentrager, Marie Groth, Naomi Walter, Libby Klopp, Stephany Goloveyko, Verna Fretz, Jeanette Frey, Jenny Wagner, Kenny Hegadus, Mary Zollers. Mary Ellen Wagner also received best in class and Stephany Goloveyko was awarded a clover award.

Consider Child's Needs To Control Behavior

MEDIA — How well do parents and child-rearers assess a child's behavior before they lump it all in one category called naughtiness? Quite frequently young children are whiney, uncooperative, or may have temper tantrums when they are overtired, hungry or are in the early stages of an oncoming illness.

It is certainly not fair to a young child to be taken on a shopping trip at nap time. It is also inconsiderate not to offer a child (while away from home) food and drink as needed, or an opportunity to use toilet facilities sufficiently early to help them maintain a degree of comfort.

According to Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Cooperative Extension home economist, children have feelings and generally will try to do what is expected of them. They do have limitations of endurance, however! Whan adults push them beyond the brink of what young bodies and wills can take, rebellious behavior occurs. This is not the time to punish them! This is the time to think of whether or not we are being sensible, honest, loving parents with the ability to put the needs of young children ahead of our own when certain situations arise.

Centre County Youths Exhibit Dairy Projects

BY MARY MAXWELL
Centre Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL — Centre County 4-H and FFA members recently exhibited their dairy-project cattle and goats at the Centre County Grange Fair.

In the junior show, Ayrshire division, Tammy McTavish, a State College FFA member, won the Grand Champion ribbon with Penn State Command 123. This animal is an offspring of sire Granbynne Royal Command and Penn State Premier 183. Reserve honors for this breed went to Chad Harter of Bellefonte.

The rosette for grand champion Brown Swiss was won by High Pines Jubilation Eve, exhibited by Eric Stine, a 4-H member from Pennsylvania Furnace. His senior yearling was sired by Bridge View Jubilation and out of High Pines Performer Emma. Reserve champion Brown Swiss was shown by Tammy McTavish.

Grand champion Guernsey, Yaples Jetstream Lola was exhibited by Nathan Knepp. Nathan, a 9-year-old 4-H member attends Port Matilda Elementary School. His junior calf was sired by Valley Oaks Admiral Jetstream. The dam was Yaples Lewella.

Joyce Harpster, Boalsburg, showed a mother and daughter Jersey champion team. Her END-Ru A.S.M. Glorys Theda, a 6 year old, won grand champion Jersey. The animal sired by Advancing Sleeping Milestone, is the daughter of Theda Ranger Glory. The daughter, 2-year-old EDN-RU Samaons Thedas Thelma, won the reserve champion rosette. Harpster is both a 4-H and FFA member.

In the Holstein competition, Jim Houser of Spring Mills won the grand champion award with his 2-year-old Penn-Dell Chairman Rhonda. The animal is the daughter of Cal-Clark Board Chairman and Penn-Dell Elevation Rose-Twin. Houser is a member of the Penns Valley FFA Chapter. Reserve Champion honors went to Martha Hartle of Bellefonte.

Judges for the Junior Dairy Cattle Show were: type, Dale Olver, Lancaster; fitting, Lauri Sollenberger, Everett; and showmanship, John Bierket, East Freedom.

In the goat show, Jon Merkle claimed best doe of show honors. Dairy goat show judges were: type, Donna Penick, Blairsville and fitting, Patsy Novak, Blairsville.

FAIR Days

Little Buffalo Arts Festival To Feature Musicians, Artists

NEWPORT — The Little Buffalo Festival of the Arts will be held at scenic Little Buffalo State Park, RD2, Newport, Sept. 20.

From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., a variety of musicians and artists will entertain the public from one of two sites at the park's east end, near the pavilion in the area of the dam.

The ever-popular Children's Area will have many activities for the young and also the young-at-heart. At noon The Puppet Factory will have a puppet theatre performance followed by a puppet-making workshop. At 4 p.m., Ed and Geraldine Berbaum will sing and play old-time music using fiddle, guitar, banjo and mandolin. They will tell stories and jokes especially for the children. Throughout the day, there will be mural painting, parachute play, bubbles tub, face painting, clowns and other new and innovative games.

Something new of interest this year will be two workshops at Shoaff's Mill. Starting at 2 p.m., Ed and Geraldine Berbaum will lead a musical jam for those bringing their own string instruments. At 5 p.m., anyone can join in and square dance with the Coal Country Cloggers.

A juried arts and crafts sale with 39 artisans from surrounding counties will be held. All works are original creations and were judged by Dr. David Van Dommelen, head of Penn State's art education department.

The Perry County Historical Society will have a Quilt display at the Blueball Tavern.

Ethnic food and drink of all kinds will abound, as well as the committee's Pita Palace.

The first 2,500 people attending will receive a free souvenir button displaying the festival logo. There will be a $2 admission charge for all persons twelve years of age and older. Children under 12 will be charged $1.

All monies collected will be used by the festival committee to pay for the live entertainment.

There are a limited number of bed and breakfast lodgings available. For information, write: L.B.F.A., PO Box 485, New Bloomfield, Pa. 17068; or, phone (717)567-6795.

Reading Fair Hoedowning, Jigging Competition Set

READING — The Reading Fair Hoedowning and Jigging Competition will take place at Center Court in the Fairgrounds Square Mall from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27. The popular event will feature the Feick Family Band and John Stinsman as emcee.

Hoedowning and jigging have been as much a part of the Pennsylvania Dutch folk culture as shoofly pie and sauerkraut. In the past, no wedding reception or Grange gathering would be considered complete without the stomping of dancing feet to "The Kutztown Reel." However, in today's pop culture, many young people prefer "fast food" to old-fashioned Pennsylvania Dutch cookery, and electronic rock has replaced the country fiddle.

In an effort to balance this trend, the Reading Fair instituted a hoedowning and jigging contest six years ago. This also is an effort to preserve a unique form of square dancing and true bit of Americana.

The hoedowning and jigging contest has been the most popular entertainment feature of the fair for the past several years. It consistently draws more than two thousand spectators for its Saturday night spectacular. This contest will feature close to 100 participants, ranging in ages from six to 60, and in a variety of classes, based on age and dance form.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information concerning the contest should contact the Reading Fair Office, 2910 N. 5th St. Highway, Reading, PA 19605, Phone: 921-9223.

Boots and Saddles 4-H Club

Boots and Saddles 4-H Club member Sallie Gregory was named Outstanding 4-H'er of the Year during the closing ceremony of the first Lancaster County 4-H Fair, held Aug. 19 to 21 at the Manheim Fair Grounds.

Sallie was also named to the Honor Roll, recognizing her nine years of membership and leadership in 4-H. Tammy Long was a finalist in the Outstanding 4-H'er competition and for membership on the Honor Roll for her eight years of membership in 4-H.

The Club also won the volleyball competition. Members of the 12-man team were; co-captains, Sallie Gregory and Tammy Long, Diane and Phillip Eberly, Christa and Tim Weaver, Ron and Todd Wardell, Kim Hartzler, Ann Vath, Chris Miller, Doug Deibler, and Eric Rotenberry.

The club's scrapbook, compiled by president Tammy Long, won a gold ribbon. Their exhibit, which highlighted the club's project of collecting hay for 4-H'ers in Ashboro, N.C. won a blue ribbon.

Other club winners at the Fair were as follows: Phillip Eberly and Amy Seaton both won blue ribbons for their Horse Quiz Books, which are for first and second year members. In the art competition, Ann Vath won a gold ribbon for her oil painting of two horses, and Tammy Long won a gold and several blues for her works in pencil, pen and ink and watercolors. Sallie Gregory won a blue for her bread making efforts.

In the Talent show, Laura Seaton became a semi-finalist for her singing and guitar playing, and Ann Vath won a third place for her singing rendition of "Send In The Clowns."

Rose Fellenbaum, leader of the Boots and Saddles Club, initiated the county wide 4-H effort to collect and send hay to needy 4-H'ers in Ashboro, N.C., with whom the club had an exchange program back in 1983-84. The club members donated over 200 bales, and provided the transportation for all hay collected at the Fair.

Hay came from many different clubs and members of 4-H, as well as from friends of 4-H. Trucks and trailers for transporting the hay were loaned by McCracken's Feed Mill Inc. of Manheim, Herr and Sacco Inc., mechanical contractors in Landisville, and by Rose and Dan Fellenbaum of Fellenbaum Stables, Lititz.

One train box car load of hay was collected, and is on its way to N.C. It is hoped that this effort will be repeated in Jan./Feb. Anyone wishing to help in this effort is encouraged to contact Rose Fellenbaum (569-3068).

Chicken Cooking Contest Deadline Nears

WASHINGTON, D.C. — When it comes to cooking chicken, no state has a monopoly on prize-winning recipes.

Contestants from every part of the nation have walked away with top honors in the National Chicken Cooking Contest since 1971 when the first $10,000 prize was captured by the Arkansas entry. Only Delaware can claim two national chicken cooking champions. Finalists from that state won the competition in 1972 and again 1973.

The next year, the contestant from New Mexico cooked her way to fame and fortune, followed by Idaho, New Jersey and Georgia. The 1978 spotlight turned to California with the District of Columbia, South Dakota and Indiana then producing winners.

In 1983, the last year the contest was held annually, the $10,000 chicken recipe came from Kansas. Now on an alternate year schedule, the Cook-Off was won in 1985 by the Oregon contestant. Her recipe for Chicken Picante has been tried in kitchens from coast to coast.

The $10,000 chicken recipes are as diverse as the regions they represent. They include nuggets for dipping, a stew, casseroles, a sandwich, a stir-fry — even chicken pizza.

Your favorite chicken recipe could be the next $10,000 winner if you enter before the Oct. 15 deadline. Mail with name, address and phone number to: Chicken Contest, Box 28158 Central Station, Washington, DC 20005.

A finalist from each state and the District of Columbia will receive expense-paid trips to Jackson, Mississippi, where another $10,000 chicken recipe will be selected in May, 1987.

NOTICE
Dangler & Williams arch support specialists from Ohio are now making regular trips to your area. (PA, DE, VA & MD).

They will be giving free footprints to see if you need arch supports.

The arch supports are hand crafted from a light-weight leather made from impressions of your feet. Your feet are like the foundation of a building. If you strain your feet, it can cause you to have trouble in other parts of the body.

Anyone interested in a free examination please contact us, write or call.

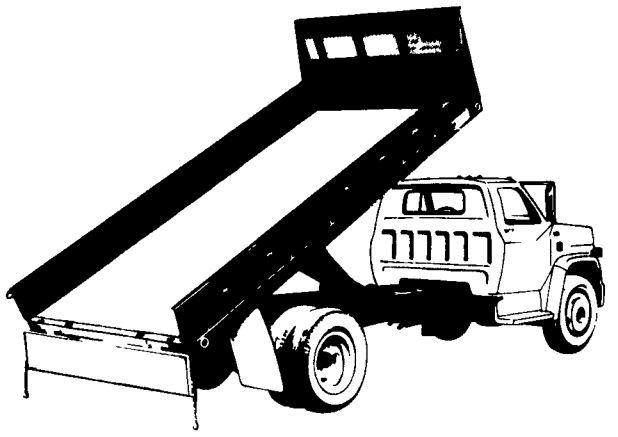
Contractor Bodies
by OMAHA STANDARD



Rugged, all-steel 14" sides and 96" wide platforms. Heavy duty steel bulkhead with full width steel mesh window. Standard three-way express tailgate or optional double-acting tailgate with forward controls. More load space and hauling flexibility than a conventional dump body. These tough, field-proven units, teamed with job-matched Omaha Standard hoists, are total working units, superior to any on the market.

SOLD OUT!!

I have never sold so much farm real estate in mid summer as this year and that is "great" However, that does leave me w/a real "need."

*Presently I need several mid-sized dairy farms with 50 to 60 cow capacity. Anywhere from showplaces to regular one man operations.

Also Needed:

Up to 500 acres of decent crop soil for one buyer - nice buildings a plus but not a must.

If you have considered selling, give me a call for a free evaluation. I will give you my honest opinion of value & saleability

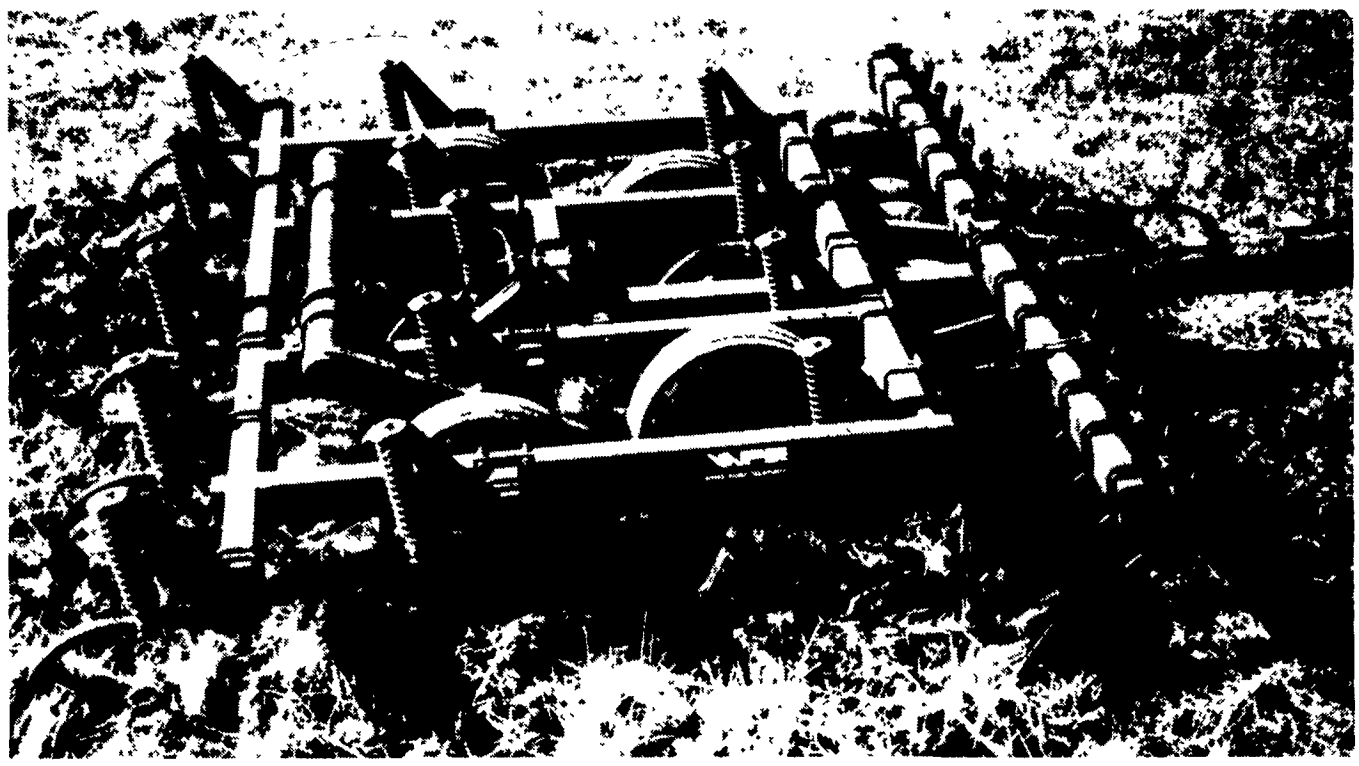
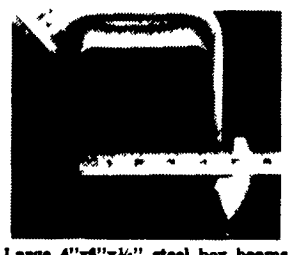
The 435 Conservation Chisel Plow...
A MORE VALUABLE DISK CHISEL



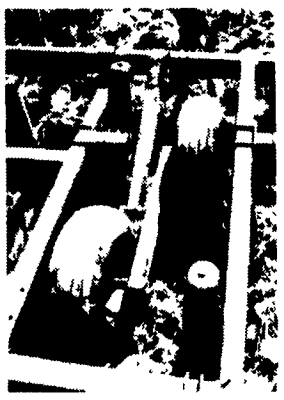
All disk chisels can save topsoil. But White Farm's 435 Conservation Chisel Plow also saves time and money.

Versatile concave disks up-front. Individually mounted 22 inch blades are hydraulically controlled to let you determine the amount of residue that remains on the surface. Disks can be raised completely out of the ground for maximum conservation, or lowered for maximum tillage.

Big 4"x6" frames. Our steel box beams have 25 percent more weld area at every joint than competitors' 4"x4" beams.



Large 4"x6"x¼" steel box beams and strength, rigidity and built-in working weight to the 435.

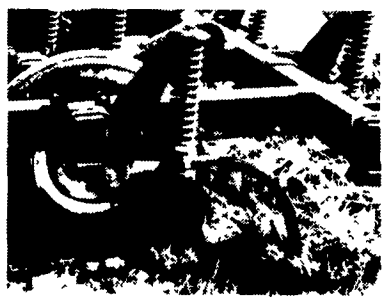


Walking beam axles help maintain more uniform working depth. Note the long distance between wheel hubs

Individually mounted 22-inch spherical discs rotate on anti-friction bearings

Chisel shanks every twelve inches. Three ranks of chisels spaced twelve inches apart on a long 90 inch frame help maintain uniform tillage and prevent residue build up. The 2"x29" spring-loaded chisels raise up and over obstacles-up to 11 inches.

Come in and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 435 Conservation Chisel Plow.



Heavy-duty high trip clamp assembly allows chisels to raise 11 inches to clear obstructions

Over 100 years of experience has helped White Farm design what we believe is the most versatile, durable conservation chisel plow today.

Virginia Soil Conservation Practices Take Root

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

SANGERSVILLE, Va. — Virginia's Governor Gerald Baliles endorsed the conservation efforts of local farmers during a visit to rural Augusta County recently. Excessive amounts of nutrients and sediments are among the main causes of pollution in the Chesapeake Bay, Baliles noted, adding that, nationally, Virginia ranks third in pasture erosion, sixth in cropland erosion and twelfth in total farmland erosion.

Only innovative farming methods, such as the Best Management Practices partially funded by the Chesapeake Bay Program, can reverse the process, Baliles maintained. Currently, 1,359 farmers have participated in the agricultural BMPs program which has been limited to headwaters in the Shenandoah Valley. This part of the Chesapeake Bay Program will soon be expanded to include other areas of the state, Baliles announced.

The governor's speech highlighted a tour of farms in the Moffat Creek watershed area of Augusta County where BMPs have been installed. Moffat Creek is a tributary of the James River with 1,000 of 1,252 acres of cropland and 7,300 acres of the 10,435 acres of pastureland in the watershed having erosion problems. Only 2,231 acres are involved in conservation programs, a figure local officials would like to see increase.

Bill Braunworth, an Augusta County tree farmer, received the 1986 Forestry Best Management Practice Award from the Headwaters Soil and Conservation District and is sold on the benefits of conservation.

From 1985 to 1986 Braunworth planted 45 acres of white pine seedlings on marginal, erodible farmland with financial and technical assistance up to $75 an acre from the Chesapeake Bay Program. He also received cost sharing funds from the Virginia Division of Forestry's Reforestation of Timberland Program amounting to 50 percent of expenses up to $60 an acre.

Braunworth told the tour that trees are a renewable resource that must be utilized and there is a need to show people the benefits of a well managed forest. He manages woodlands to improve the land and stressed the connection between sound forest management and water quality as well.

More people are needed to practice forestry wisdom, he concluded, which results in greater profits, better habitat for wildlife, improved conservation and increased opportunties for recreation.

The tour also visited Neodak, the largest of three dairy farms in the watershed. Bill Hughes and his family own and operate the 90-cow dairy and farm 225 acres of corn and sorghum, 65 acres of alfalfa along with 125 acres of pastureland. In addition to strip cropping, the Hughes family also recently installed a concrete structure to store liquid manure with $7,500 in cost sharing funds from the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Fred Givens, an agricultural engineer working with the Chesapeake Bay Program, explained the importance of liquid manure storage structures as Best Management Practices. Nitrogen rich runoff from animal wastes is a major source of nutrient pollution reaching the Chesapeake Bay, he reported, especially when manure is applied to frozen fields in the winter. With a storage facility, however farmers can stockpile the manure and use it to partially replace commercial fertilizers.

The secret, Givens continued, is for the farmer to apply the manure during the proper times throughout the growing season. Crops will quickly take in the nutrients, slow any runoff that might occur and significantly reduce the chance of nutrient pollution. Manure from the Neodak's Holsteins will be applied three times a year to fertilize the small grains and corn crop as well as improve the fertility of the pastureland, he said.

Much of Augusta County's rolling farmland is actually steep pasture and erosion from the grazed hillsides is a major problem in the area. One solution, local conservationists believe, is fencing for rotational grazing and woodland protection. At the Roland Roudabush farm, farmers and conservationists on the tour saw a fencing demonstration hosted by Rockingham Cooperative Farm Bureau.

According to Phil Liskey with the Cooperative, new technology in fencing materials, such as high tensile wire and fiberglass posts with urethene coatings, give farmers the flexability to increase the number of fences they can put up by holding down their costs. Other innovations, such as solar panels to electrify these fences, also allow them to be built in more inaccessible areas of the farm.

Fencing is essential to voison rotational grazing, a form of pasture rotation Foy Hendricks, an agronomist with the USDA-Soil Conservation Service in Chester, Pa., was on hand to promote. Voison means rational, Hendricks told the tour, and the system calls for dividing a pasture into at least 10 separate paddocks.

That may not sound rational at first, the agronomist continued, but the logic is clear. In early spring cattle are moved off each paddock when the grass has been eaten and onto the next. When the first paddock's grass has regrown, cattle are moved back — often leaving several of the 10 paddocks untouched. These can be hayed, Hendricks explained, increasing the amount of forage harvested from the pasture area.

As the season progresses, the growth of the grass slows and each grazed paddock takes longer to recuperate. By moving cattle through all 10 paddocks, the grass and sod is less stressed, the agronomist noted. During heavy thunderstorms this system prevents sediment from running into the streams and also reduces year-round soil erosion. When growth begins again in September, the old pattern of rotation can resume.

Erosion control, nutrient management and reforestation are essential to the clean-up of the Chesapeake Bay, and funds are available to help Virginia farmers do their part, tour members learned. According to Baliles, the state is determined to avert the decline of the Chesapeake Bay and while there are no easy or quick answers, he told farmers, Virginia is committed to the long haul.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-Harvesting of the main crop of late varieties of Pennsylvania peaches is approaching its peak, and supplies should be plentiful on local markets over the next two weeks, the State Department of Agriculture announced today.

-Loss was estimated at $75,000 when fire caused by lightning Saturday night destroyed the stone and frame bank-barn and machinery shed, a frame machinery shed and corn crib on the Arthur and Chester Tout farm, R1, Lancaster, a mile north of Oyster Point Saturday afternoon.

-Crop development in the northern reaches of the Commonwealth is slow, a trip through sections of Potter County into New York State last weekend showed. Rainfall is more than adequate, especially with the 1956 crop of potatoes about ready for harvest around the Potato capital of the world — Potato City, Pa.

-There was no Labor Day holiday Monday in the tobacco fields of Lancaster County, where the heavy 1956 crop is at its peak of movement into drying sheds.

-Pushing through a bamboo thicket to find an acre of Sacred Lotus grown by the ancient Egyptians 4000 years ago sounds like an expedition into the lands along the Nile, or a journey into the deep jungles of the Orient. But it's a case of Lancaster farming. Taro from the Philipine Islands thrives in waters shared by Chinese Lotus, Egyptian Lotus, papyrus - the Egyptian paper plant, exotic bloom we once thought could only grace magazine cover illustrations or in encyclopedias. But the Sacred Lotus is growing on the 112-acre farm of Lloyd W. Nolt, R1 Lancaster, near Silver Springs–Nolt's Ponds, a fabulous form of farming that seems as out of place as a statue of Buddha in Lancaster's Penn Square!

-Placed end to end there was two miles of chicken served to the 100,000 people that attended the Poultry Festival and the Dutch Days celebration at Hershey, PA on Aug. 23, 24, 25 and 26, sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Poultry Federation and the Dutch Days Committee. For those hungry people who did not eat chicken there was available: one ton of ground cooked t rkey made into delicious turkey burgers and Turkey (white meat) sandwiches; 200 gallons of chicken corn soup; 10,000 servings of egg nog and 3,000 pickled eggs.

— Prospects that Lancaster County this year may produce one of the finest corn crops in years become more evident day by day, after adequate rains pushed corn to the point where it may give one of the best yields in five years.

— Proof that Lancaster County has scored a bulls-eye on soil conservation and strip farming is most conspicuous and colorful from the air. Without any advance notice, it's certain an outsider would recognize the Garden Spot with no trouble.

— Mrs. Pauline (Melvin) Stoltzfus, R1 Ronks, and her daughter, eight year-old Nancy, Tuesday topped the ladies' and juniors' judging division of the Lancaster County Guernsey Breeders Association Field Day at the Frank Hershey farm northwest of Witmer. Little Nancy scored 292 points out of a possible 300, her mother 285. Nancy received a salt and pepper shaker.

— (From For Farm Women) Imperial Crab- one pound backfin crab; good-sized tablespoon capers, plus some juice; salt and pepper to taste; three or four dashes red pepper; one-half cup mayonnaise...(another item) along the seafood line, there's a Louisiana seafood soup that takes days and days to make, and fish of several varieties, bouillabaisse it is.

PP&L Employees Team Up To Save Drowning Victim

In recognition of their efforts to save a drowning boy last June, three Pennsylvania Power & Light employees have received the company's highest honor, the Lifesaving Award.

Power Production Department employee Bob Stanley of Christiana, and Jeff Dietz and Ken Holdren of Danville, two Construction Department workers on temporary assignment at PP&L's Holtwood plant at the time, teamed up to save Daniel Stoltzfus, 15, of Green Tree in southern Lancaster County.

"This action showed what it means to be a human being," said DeForrest S. Bast, PP&L's director - Safety & Health, who made the presentations, "to come to the aid of your fellow man in an emergency."

"Ken and I had just finished dinner at the Green Tree Inn when someone burst in and shouted that a young boy was drowning in a nearby pond," Dietz remembered. "I just jumped up and sprinted out the door, jumped over a fence, stripped down to my shorts and dived into the pond."

Holdren — and Stanley, who happened to be in the same restaurant — followed closely behind and stayed on shore, directing Dietz in his search.

"I finally found him in about 12 feet of water," Dietz said. "He was stuck in the mud and unconscious. I got hold of him and tried to bring him up, but I swallowed a good bit of water.

"I had to let go of him. I had been down too long and had to come up for air."

When onlookers saw Dietz come up without the boy, the pond's owner, Elam Zook, jumped into the water to help.

"We both went back down to the boy," said Dietz. "I managed to wrap my legs around his torso and we pulled him up and out of the mud. Ken and Bob threw a rope out to us when we got to the surface and pulled us all in to shore. It was a good thing too. I was in no shape to swim I needed that rope."

By that time, local rescue units had arrived and took the victim to Lancaster General Hospital. They also took Dietz, who had become sick from swallowing the pond water during his rescue effort, to the hospital

Stoltzfus was listed in critical condition immediately after the rescue, but improved steadily. Before Dietz helped bring him to the surface, the boy had been submerged for more than 10 minutes.

"I saw him in the hospital in late July, and the doctors said once he's recuperated and had some physical therapy, he's got a good chance of a full recovery," Dietz said

If not for Dietz, though, the youth wouldn't have made it at all.

"There was no delay. There was a quick response to the emergency and that's what saved the boy," said Donald Mowrer, Bart Township police chief. Mowrer also explained that the boy had been in the pond with other youngsters, and that one jumped in and accidentally landed on Stoltzfus, knocking him unconscious and causing him to sink.

"PP&L encourages its employees to help out whenever they can," said Bast. "We're a public utility and we're here to serve the public in any way possible. It's always a thrill and a pleasure for us to recognize people like we have here today."

Bob Stanley of Christiana, an employee in Pennsylvania Power & Light Co.'s Power Production Department, displays the company's Lifesaving Award presented to him in recognition of his assistance in saving the life of a Lancaster County youth recently.

Bell Daughter Tops Somerset Fall Classic Sale

BY BETSY STITT
Blair Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE — A quality line-up of cattle awaited the bidders on a chilly Aug. 27 for the annual Somerset Fall Classic. Oren Bender, who read pedigrees, commented several times about the style and milkiness of the animals that Clark Yoder auctioned off.

Dan Carr, sale chairman, was pleased with how the sale went and the average which was $1,642 on 33 lots.

Hillmont Bell Sue-ET topped the sale at $3,800. The 2-year-old daughter of the Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell was consigned by Jay and Kirk Hillegass of Berlin. Sue sold recently fresh to Mel-Est Valiant Irose Melvin.

Her dam, Laureate Marvex Dena, scored Excellent and produced a top record of 25,160 pounds of milk and 879 pounds of fat with a cow index of plus 744.

Wilmer Hostettler of Oxford was the final bidder on Sue. Her week-old heifer calf was bought by Alfred Crothers for $1,000.

Young Woods Farm, Dilltown, purchased four animals at the sale, including the second and fifth top selling consignments.

Marteeny Rotate Speckle consigned by Mark E. Marteeny, Somerset, was the second-high animal at $2,100. An Arlinda Rotate daughter, she is bred and due Oct. 1 to Whittier Farms Ned Boy. Her dam, Marteeny Valiant Sugar-Twin produced 22,432 pounds of milk and 928 pounds of fat as a 2-year-old cow.

Rodney and Claire Ott, Hollsopple, consigned the third-high animal, Double-Ott Chief Very Dynamic. James Adams, Mt. Pleasant, bought this 2-year-old daughter of Kingway Elevation Very for $2,000. She is bred and due Oct. 30 to Woodbine Ellas Incredible-ET.

Her dam, Johnsholm Chief Bootmaker Dawn, is scored VG-85 and has a top record of 21,851 pounds of milk and 1,084 pounds of fat at a 7 year old.

The fourth-high selling animal also sold for $2,000 to Keith Clark of Sky Wind Farm, Clear Spring, Md. Trenton-Place Elev Wileeda, a 2-year-old daughter of Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation, consigned by J. William and Vera Shultz, Berlin, sold recently fresh to SWD Valiant with a heifer calf also bought by Clark.

Pax-Terra Mars Valiant Lauren consigned by James Paxton, Myersdale, sold for the fifth-high price of $1,950. Lauren is a 2-year-old daughter of Marshfield Elevation Tony and is due Oct. 28 to Hanover-Hill Triple Threat-Red.

S and S Dairy Farm, Somerset, also offered a first choice of a Ned Boy flush from the Kingstead Valiant Josie cow. Josie scored VG-87 and produced a top record of 25,770 pounds of milk and 1,028 pounds of fat as a 3 year old. Her credits include six generations of Very Goods or Excellents. Mark Marteeny was the final bidder at $1,000.

Cumberland Co. Eligible For Assistance

CARLISLE — The Secretary of Agriculture has declared York County eligible for Emergency Loan assistance due to the severe drought which began Jan. 1.

Since Cumberland County is contiguous to York County, Cumberland County is also eligible for EM assistance, according to the Farmers Home Administration.

Farmers in Cumberland County who are interested in receiving an Emergency Loan for this drought must submit their applications up to the close of business on April 6, 1987 for physical and production losses.

Actual loss loans will be available at 5.0 percent interest for the first $100,000 and 8.0 percent interest for any amount over $100,000 for eligible farmers who are unable to get the needed credit elsewhere.

The loan ceiling amount will be 80 percent of the actual production loss and 100 percent of the actual physical loss, or $500,000, whichever is the lesser amount. Loan terms will normally be scheduled for up to 7 years, as needed.

Applications may be filed at the Farmers Home Administration office at 7044 Carlisle Pike, Carlisle, PA 17013. Call (717)697-0795 for the application.

Eastern Donates Cows To Burnet Park Zoo

SYRACUSE, N.Y.–The Burnet Park Zoo, closed for the last three years while undergoing a $12.8-million overhaul, reopened to the public Aug. 3 with a brand new farm exhibit that features two milking cows donated by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative.

Senior Zookeeper Nancy Oberliesen said the two registered cows - a Jersey and a Holstein – will be milked and bred at the Contact Barn, a facility aimed at bringing city folk and other non-farmers into close contact with an assortment of farm animals.

Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan said the cooperative donated the cows because of the educational value of the Contact Barn and for the opportunity as a corporate resident of Syracuse "to play a small part in a community-wide effort to transform Burnet into a zoological gem."

Eastern President Earl Forwood, a dairy farmer from Hop Bottom, Pa., called it a "new breed of zoo" that "recreates natural environments for hundreds of animal and bird species."

Charles Freligh, an Eastern director from Cayuga, arranged the purchase and delivery of the cows, and worked with Zookeeper Oberliesen on the proper care and handling of the animals.

The Jersey came from Silver Springs Farm of Syracuse, operated by Frederick and Charles Luchsinger. The Holstein came from Dublinaire Farm of Waterloo. The owners, Keith and Dorothy Jarvis, are members of Eastern.

Zookeeper Nancy Oberliesen takes Sara, a Jersey donated by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, on a quick tour of her new home, the Burnet Park Zoo in Syracuse, N.Y. The Jersey is one of two cows that Eastern donated for a new farm exhibit intended to bring city folk into close contact with farm animals.

Lightning: Precautions Avoid Tragedy

NEWARK, Del. – According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, about 200 people are killed by lightning each year, thousands more are injured, and property damage exceeds $400 million.

A lightning bolt typically carries 10 million to 100 million volts and can reach temperatures in excess of 50,000 degrees F. So when a thunderstorm threatens, seek shelter promptly in a house or other large building, or inside an all-metal vehicle, advises University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester.

"Remember that lightning is attracted to the highest object in the area of electrical buildup," he says, "so don't stay where you'll be higher than the surrounding landscape." For the same reason, never take shelter under a tree – standing tall in the sky, it serves as an excellent lightning rod. If shelter is not available, take refuge in a ditch, a ravine or similar depression in the ground.

Several other precautions can help protect you from lightning, the specialist says. Some of these measures may be very familiar, but, like everything else connected with safety, an occasional review never hurts.

- If you're riding a horse when a thunderstorm hits, dismount, drop to your knees and bend forward in a crouch, putting your hands on your knees.
- If driving a car, stay inside – the tires provide insulation. The same is true when riding a tractor or combine, but get the tools and the header out of, or off of, the ground. They're excellent conductors of electricity. If you're working with farm equipment in an open field, after getting the tool bar, header, front end loader and the like off the ground, get out of the field!
- Stay clear of metal objects such as metal windows, wire fences or plumbing.
- If you are in tall timber, get to an area of low brush, away from the tallest trees.
- Stay away from power transformers and lines, as well as TV and radio towers and antennas.
- Stay away from and out of water. Do not swim during a thunderstorm!
- Get off of and away from motorcycles, golf carts, and bicycles.
- Indoors, stay away from open doors, fireplaces, woodstoves and windows.
- Don't use the telephone. If you're talking when a thunderstorm hits, hang up.

"Your chances of avoiding being struck by lightning will be greater if you keep in mind that it's attracted to the higher objects in the area where it is active. Avoid these places," Jester stresses.

If someone near you is struck by lightning, you may need to administer CPR (cardio pulmonary resuscitation). Then get prompt medical help for the victim. People who are stunned, but otherwise unhurt, should also see a doctor as soon as possible. The physical effects of a lightning strike are not always obvious.

"Don't become another victim of an electrical storm," says safety specialist advises. "The next time a thunderstorm strikes, don't take a chance. Act promptly to protect yourself."

DICKEY-john DjGMT Grain Moisture Tester

The DICKEY john Grain Moisture Tester measures moisture content automatically You don t have to preweigh the sample There are no meters to read no dials to set and no thermometers to lose As soon as you pour in the grain sample the testing sequence begins A digital readout is displayed when the proper weight of the sample has entered the test chamber The readout is corrected for temperature at the touch of a pressure sensitive switch Models are available with direct readouts for corn soybeans or wheat and adhesive conversion chart is provided for other grains

- GRAIN MODEL List...$259
  CASH.....$185
- FORAGE MODEL List . $310
  CASH.....$215

Simple, four-step operation

1 Place the tester on a steady level surface Then lift the protective cover up and slide it down out of the way

2 Use the sample cup to pour grain into the testing cell Pour slowly and steadily taking about eight to ten seconds to empty the sample cup. A readout will appear automatically

3 Wait at least fifteen seconds Then press the temperature compensation switch for a direct readout of the moisture content of the grain listed on that switch Refer to the appropriate chart for other grains

4 Empty the tester by turning it over (If you should forget to empty the test cell, the tester will shut itself off automatically after two minutes)

Increase The Potential Of Your Skid Steer Loader With This Versatile New Backhoe

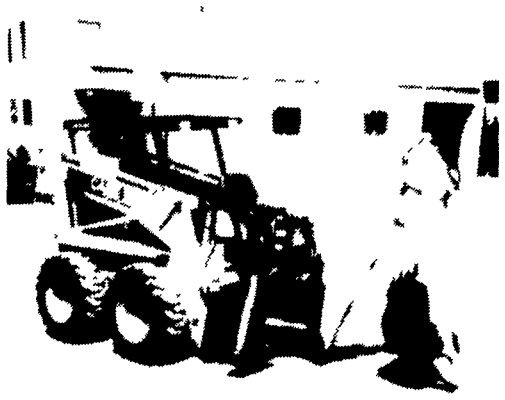
8'6" Digging Depth, 15" Bucket

$4,550 Plus Installation



Check These Quality Features Of The Kelly Model BS 30C

1 RIGID MOUNTING allows weight transfer onto the backhoe when the hydraulic stabilizers are in down position and locks the backhoe in the best possible working position for maximum digging power
2 TWO DOUBLE ACTION SWING CYLINDERS - one pushing, one pulling - for a powerful, smooth and controllable full 180 degree swing
3 HYDRAULIC SWING CUSHION PROTECTION - Patented swing cushion slows down and stops swing automatically, prevents "Shock Load" at end of travel
4 SIX SPOOL SECTIONAL CONTROL VALVE for Open Center Hydraulic systems - Power Beyond capabilities is optional kit
5 ONE MASTER RELIEF VALVE AND FOUR CIRCUIT RELIEFS with anti-cavitation feature - standard on BS30C
6 TWO LEVER CONTROL for ease of operation Operator remains stationary avoiding stress and fatigue Superb operational control with good feathering characteristics and minimum cylinder cavitation
7 ADJUSTABLE FOLDING SEAT to allow Skid Steer operator more room
8 HYDRAULIC PRESSURE GAUGE KIT is Standard Equipment on BS30C (optional on BS20A)
9 A VARTIETY OF BUCKET SIZES For BS20A - 9", 12", 15", and 18" For BS30C - 12", 15", 18", and 24"
10 ALL BUCKETS have replaceable teeth and hardened side cutting edges
11 ALL PINS are locked in place and fitted for grease
12 TRANSPORT LOCK for Boom and Swing Cylinders

We Are Your GEHL Dealer, With Top-Of-The-Line FORAGE BOXES In Stock

THE HIGHEST QUALITY AT THE BEST PRICE

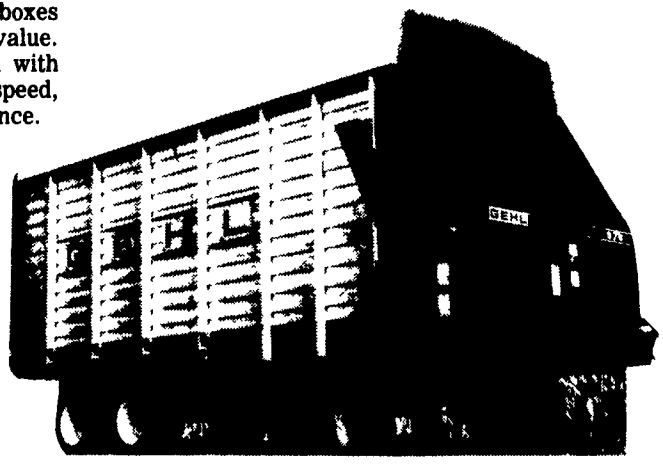
The Gehl tradition of building the best forage boxes is well known. Gehl forage boxes traditionally maintain a high resale value. The Model 970 continues the tradition with added features that increase unloading speed, capacity, strength and ease of maintenance.

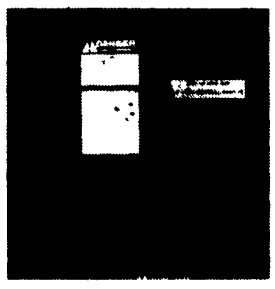
The first thing you'll notice about the 970 is the steel sides. They're made from 20 gauge GEHLSTEEL. GEHLSTEEL is superior to hot-dipped galvanized, Galvalume™, electrolytic galvanized and aluminized steels.

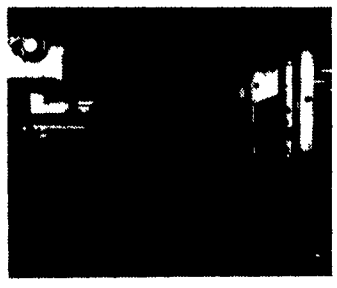
It has far better corrosion resistance and a longer life expectancy. Even if scratched, there is little chance that rust will appear.

Available in 14-, 16- and 18-foot lengths, the 970 is backed by a 10-year warranty on the sides, endgate, stakes and platform.

Study the Model 970 and see all the features that make it the best performing forage box on the market. Then study the new low price. You'll agree that the Gehl 970 is the best forage box value available today.







10-Year Warranty
On sides, endgate, stakes, platform and roof

All new drive system. The two-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added strength and durability. The apron chain speed is easily controlled by the handy lever located on the front of the box.

The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

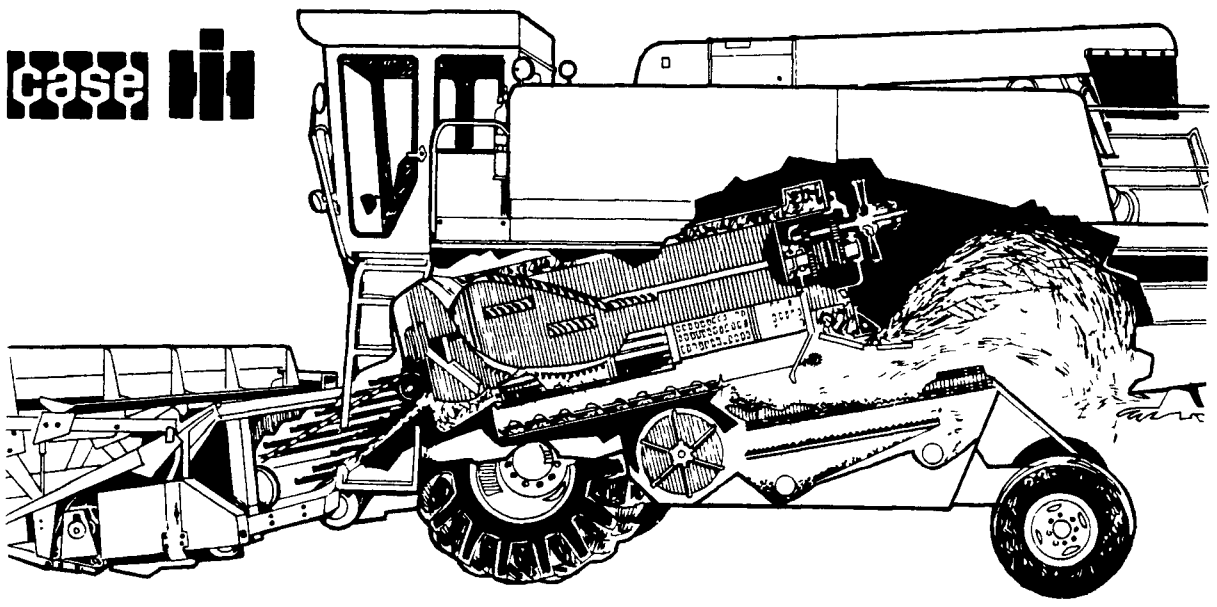
ALL CROP VERSATILITY...

case IH



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For nine years Hoober's 3 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

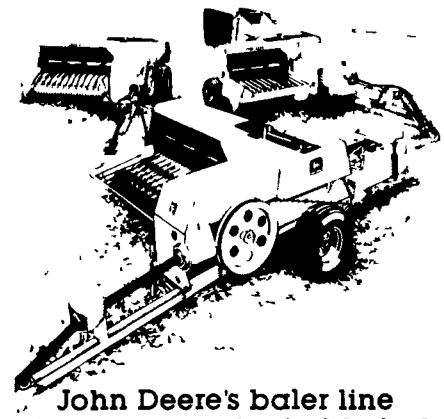
SQUARER BALES



John Deere's baler line builds squarer, stackable bales

To build solid, square-cornered bales consistently, you need consistent control of the hay And John Deere's 327, 337 and 347 Balers give that control from the moment hay touches the pickup

A floating tapered auger and adjustable feeder forks take over to keep material flowing evenly The gear-driven knotter puts the finishing touch on these solid, stackable bales from John Deere

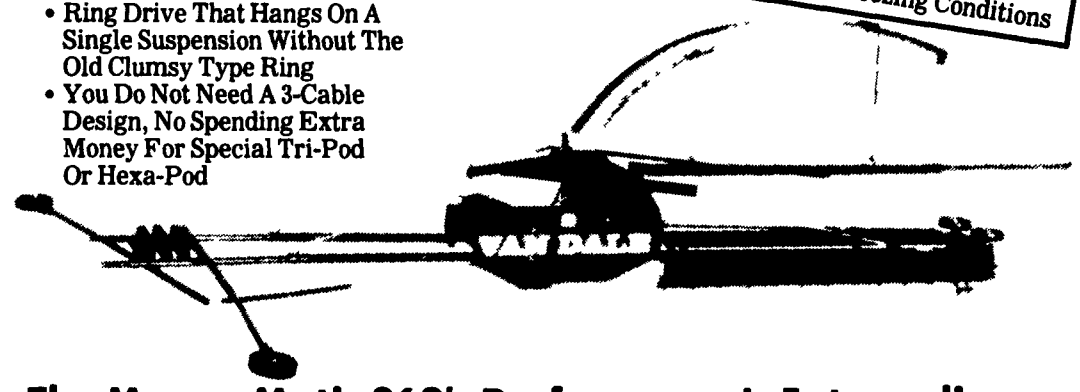
VAN DALE®

MAGNA-MATIC 360® RING-DRIVE SILO UNLOADER
OUTPERFORMS THEM ALL

Tested in Northwestern States Under Severe Freezing Conditions

Features No One Else Can Claim:
- Ring Drive That Hangs On A Single Suspension Without The Old Clumsy Type Ring
- You Do Not Need A 3-Cable Design, No Spending Extra Money For Special Tri-Pod Or Hexa-Pod



The Magna-Matic 360's Performance Is Extraordinary
- Positive drive in loose and frozen material
- Smoother operation in extremely tough conditions
- The silo can be filled to the top, increasing silo capacity by several tons
- Quicker changeovers from fill to feed and back to filling
- Can utilize existing single cable suspension with sufficient weight carrying specifications
- The surface of the silage or grain is not disturbed by a drive wheel
- Steadier delivery of silage with less frequent winch adjustment
- Less installation time than conventional ring drive

SELF-FEEDING BIG AG-BAG PLUS!
You can feed directly from an Ag Bag and save hours of labor every day! You will also be feeding a more palatable feed as high in nutrition as the day you bagged it

AG-BAG Feed Storage Bags Are Time Tested And Proven!

WHY GAMBLE YOUR CROP ON ANYTHING ELSE?

Custom Bagging
- The white outer layer reflects the heat of the sun and the ultra violet rays that are the enemy of all plastics
- The black inner layers are designed to assure no ultra violet or oxygen penetration and offers double protection for your valuable crops and feeds

BOTH 8 FT. & 9 FT. BAG SIZES AVAILABLE

their eighty five cow dairy Our butterfat went to 700 which is good because we had a tough time in getting it to 625 before the bagging states Jim The palatability of the feed is a big plus and the higher quality feed has made a difference in the herd health We are now at a 12 5 calving interval which is important to us as our herd is completely artificially inseminated Both our veterinarian and nutritionist agree that the higher nutrition makes the difference

Another big plus is that you can select the feeds you want like haylage corn silage or wheatlage out of each bag and feed accordingly to your high group or your low group of cows it s a real management tool

JOHN DEERE

How to rake it all in, without wearing yourself out.

Grass clippings are bad enough but the leaves? It's just getting to be too much! And there's no need to rake and bag the stuff by hand

Now John Deere makes lawn cleanup easy With a full line of material collection systems matched to John Deere riding mowers and tractors

These systems come in a variety of combinations Choose a twin hamper 6½-bushel system for riding mowers lawn tractors and 200 and 300 Series Lawn and Garden Tractors Or the new 6½ bushel Power Flow unit for tractors with 46 or 50 inch mowers

Big cleanup jobs demand big artillery

And John Deere's got it in pairs for 300 and 400 Series Tractors The Tilt Dump and the Hydraulic Dump Systems have a unique variable speed PTO driven fan Speed it up for added efficiency when leaves or clippings are deep and soggy Slow it down and save fuel when the stuff is dry and thinly layered

When the 13 bushel hoppers are full both models let you dispose of the material right from the driver's seat No ropes to untie no collection bags to unfasten or unzip

Don t wear yourself out behind a rake Get help from the number one name on lawns John Deere Come on in

PERFORMANCE WITH ECONOMICS

* 54% FINISHER - A well fortified concentrate that is specifically for cattle over 800 lbs. This formula is targeted to provide the maximum performance with efficient gains.
* 54% GROWER - This palatable blend is designed to meet the nutritional requirements of lighter cattle while supplying the necessary nutrients for fast gain.
* 32% CATTLE SUPPLEMENT - This blend is formulated to supply all the necessary requirements for maximum performance.
* VMR 1200 PREMIX - An economical product that is fortified to provide a balance of vitamins and minerals while maintaining efficient gain with Rumensin. It enables the cattle feeder to utilize either homegrown or purchased protein sources.

VMB 1440 PREMIX - This cost competitive blend is targeted for cattle feeders who prefer Bovatec in their ration to promote efficient and profitable weight gains, while using other supplied protein sources.

Our Beef Product Line also includes such supplements as:
* 35% Beef Builder (all vegetable)
* 40% Cattle Supplement

* Rumensin is available for this product.

Centre Co. Grange Fair Stages 'Best Ever' Sale

Centre Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL – Enthusiastic bidders and high quality animals resulted in record prices at the recent Centre County Junior Livestock Sale.

The exhibitors certainly did their homework," said County Agent, Ed Horning. "We had many returning buyers who regularly support 4-H and FFA efforts and then many new buyers at this year's sale."

Competitive bidding resulted in Sunset Ice Cream's high of $10.25 per pound for the grand champion market lamb. Scott Kuzemchak of Pleasant Gap received $1,168 for his 114-pound light heavyweight entry. Joyce Harpster, Boalsburg, exhibited the reserve grand champion. Bierly's Meat Market bought her 114-pound market lamb for $2 per pound.

The grand champion market hog, shown by Kristen Hazlett, State College, sold to Sunset Ice Cream for $5.10 per pound. The total price for the 246-pound animal was $1,255. Kelly Strouse, Spring Mills, exhibited the reserve grand champion. Kissinger, Leonard and Brower Realtors bought the hog for $3.85 a pound.

The 105 market hogs sold for a total of $22,664. The average price for all hogs sold was $1 per pound.

Feeding Different Types Of Cattle

The decisions on types of cattle to feed are influenced by prices of feeder cattle, feeds used and the expected prices of the finished cattle. Since all of these are continually changing, it is necessary to place each in proper perspective to determine the specific types of cattle most likely to be profitable. Today there are many types of cattle available to feed. The practical cattle feeder is looking for those that can be purchased consistently in volume and are judged most likely to make a profit under his particular management. Furthermore, these animals must satisfy the customer to the extent that the feeder has a continuous demand for his product and over a long-range period can plan to supply it. The versatility and capability of the feedlot operator determine in large measure the flexibility in types of cattle that can be fed and marketed profitably.

During the 1960's the trend, which had gone to small early-maturing cattle in the 1940's and 1950's, began to swing toward the heavier, longer, and taller cattle which had been in existence prior to 1930. Perhaps the major difference between the larger cattle fed today and those fed 50 years ago is the emphasis on rate of growth to reach heavier weights. Instead of feeding steers for two, three, or perhaps four years, as was done years ago, comparable market weights can now be attained by 12 to 18 months of age.

During the past 10 years there has been increased interest in relating the live animal to desired carcass characteristics. The demand in a large segment of the market has been for leaner beef and away from smaller, fatter cattle. This factor, coupled with performance testing on the part of the breeders, has set a pattern for a fast-gaining, highly efficient steer with an abundance of red meat and brought about the evolution of a longer-bodied, leaner steer with longer legs.

The feedlot industry must have volume; therefore, the cow-calf operators must produce cattle in numbers profitable for them but, in turn, also profitable for the cattle feeders. Rate and efficiency of gain are important to both calf producers and feeders.

Steers have been the sex class of choice among cattle feeders. There are more available to purchase, since many heifers are kept for replacements in the cow herds; they are quieter in the feedlot; they are not as likely to fight as bulls; their growth rate is better than that of heifers, and they sell for a higher price per pound for comparable grades than do either heifers or bulls.

Several studies, as the example indicates, have shown that steers outgain heifers in the feedlot. Steers are usually fed to heavier weights with less fat than are heifers, and do not reach maturity as early as heifers. Therefore, cattle feeders take advantage of their extended growth period before excessive external fat is deposited. Studies also indicate that steers have heavier cold carcass weights, larger rib-eye areas, greater carcass weights per day of age, and less fat thickness over the twelfth rib.

After a sufficient number of heifers are kept as replacements and additions to the herd, the surplus heifers are available for feeding and slaughter. The feeder of heifers must be aware of the biological differences among bulls, steers, and heifers if he is to manage the heifers properly. Heifers are lighter than steers at weaning and usually lighter as they enter the feedlot. They gain slower, but mature earlier than steers. In addition, they are purchased and sold for less per unit of weight than steers.

Cow-calf operators have not permitted feedlot operators the choice of feeding bull calves in volume, because feeder steers have commanded a higher price than bull calves of similar weights. If bull calves and steer calves brought the same price per unit of weight, the cow-calf operator could hardly afford to castrate the male calves because of their weight advantage. The advantages of bulls over steers in rate and efficiency of gain in the feedlot argue in favor of bull feeding. However, in the past, bull meat has not had general acceptance; thus the feeder expecting to receive a discount on bull carcasses could not afford to feed them.

Remembering Jim

Berks County Establishes A Memorial Fund In Honor Of One Young Man's Contributions To The 4-H And FFA Programs

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks Co. Correspondent

FLEETWOOD — The 1986 Kutztown Fair, held Aug. 11 to 16, is now history. There were new faces and familiar faces; first time winners and repeat winners. But there was someone missing.

Well known in county and state 4-H and FFA circles, as well as an exhibitor at the Kutztown, Oley, Allentown and Reading Fairs, and also the Pennsylvania Farm Show, this friend was missing from the pictures and the laurels of the fairs. Jim Heffner, Fleetwood, lost his life in a swimming accident in May of this year. He was 19 years old.

Perhaps best known to the public for his winning efforts showing sheep, Heffner was well respected for his service to 4-H and FFA for the past ten years. Heffner was named champion sheep showman of the 1985 Pennsylvania Farm Show and also won sheep titles at the county roundups as well as all the county fairs.

Jim Heffner began showing market lambs in 1977 and added Dorset breeding ewes to his herd in 1978. He also raised a few Hampshire, Suffolk, and Shropshires in his 20-plus herd, and gained experience raising and showing a few steers, and goats.

The son of Wilson and Mary Heffner, Jim graduated from Oley Valley High School in 1984, and remained active in both 4-H and FFA. As a member of the Oley Valley FFA and in the Berks County 4-H program, Heffner served on many committees, participated with success in many contests, an held numerous offices. He served as president of the Berks County FFA in 1983 and 1984. He was named Star Chapter Farmer in 1983 and in 1984 received the Keystone Degree. In 1984 he was selected as the DeKalb Award winner and was also named 1984 Outstanding FFA Boy of the Reading Fair.

After graduation, Heffner worked for a time for a contractor. When the opportunity arose to work with sheep, Heffner changed jobs and cared for sheep for WEY Farms, Dryville.

Jim Heffner

"I'll remember Jim for his many admirable qualities, his academic abilities, the leadership he provided, his enthusiasm, and as a young man who cared for others," stated Jim Howe, Oley Valley FFA Chapter Advisor.

To further Jim Heffner's personal contributions to the Berks County FFA and 4-H programs, the Heffner family is establishing a memorial scholarship fund in memory of Jim.

To date, over $1,010 has been collected and will, along with future contributions, be placed in a trust account. The interest will be used to sponsor student participation in the FFA Washington Conference Program and the 4-H Citizenship Washington Focus. Both of these programs are designed to develop leadership and citizenship qualities. Students are provided with opportunities to work effectively in both their local clubs and communities.

Since Jim Heffner did participate in both of these programs, the Heffner family feels it is fitting that other Berks County youths have the same opportunities.

Contributions may be sent to the Oley Valley FFA Chapter, c/o Jim Howe, Oley Valley High School, Oley, Pa. The Heffner family and the Berks County FFA and 4-H organizations offer their sincere thanks for this show of support in memory of Jim Heffner.

New York Names Beef Council Members

ITHACA, NY — The New York Beef Industry Council is being incorporated as the state organization to be certified by The Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board to act as administrator and collector in the state of the national $1 per head check-off assessments.

Eleven members representing all aspects of the beef industry from veal, dairy and beef to livestock marketing and meat processing will serve on this newly formed non-profit New York Beef Industry Council.

This state council will serve as the collection agency, beginning Oct.1, for the $1 paid by the seller each time cattle change ownership. Up to 50 cents per head may be credited to the New York Beef Industry Council to be used for in-state promotion or to be re-invested in national promotion through the Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board. It is estimated $250,000 could be available to the New York Beef Industry Council with the first moneys received in December.

Henry Bono of Richmondville is a member of the New York Beef Industry Council and one of the two New York Beef Cattlemen's Association representatives. He has also been named to the National Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board.

Bono is vice-president of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, chairman of the organization's legislature and by-laws committees and a member of the Bull Test and Direct Marketing committees.

Another member of the New York Beef Industry Council, Ralph G. Mitzel of Lancaster, one of the New York Farm Bureau's two dairy representatives, is also a member of the National Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board.

He is a member of the New York Farm Bureau Dairy Committee,, director of the Niagara Frontier Milk For Health Council and president of the Erie County Milk Producers Cooperative. He has a 450 acre farm and a 75 cow Holstein herd with a 20,000 pound herd average.

Elizabethtown Fair Names Open Sheep Champions

BY JACK HUBLEY

ELIZABETHTOWN — This fair is noted for its large, competitive sheep shows, and 1986 was no exception. After wrapping up its junior competitions, the Elizabethtown Fair capped a busy week of livestock shows with open breeding sheep and market lamb shows last Friday, Aug. 29.

Shown by Elizabethtown's Mark Tracy, the event's grand champion market lamb managed to top the event on a full stomach. "The night before the youth show he jumped in with our Southdowns," said Mark, adding the 128-pound Suffolk helped himself to the chow meant for his other sheep. Even with the extra measure of feed, the Tracys were able to get their champ trimmed down to fighting weight by showtime.

The son of Gerald and Helen Tracy, Mark chalked up an enviable record at this year's sheep events, taking champion and reserve honors in both the youth and open Southdown breeding sheep shows. After showing the youth show's top sale lamb, he accepted a record bid of $6 a pound.

At reserve in the open market show was a 106-pound Suffolk-Dorset cross named "Tiger." The lamb's owner, 10-year-old Carrie Groff, explained that the lamb's unusual name was a product of its uncivilized behavior "It jumps over the fence a lot," said the daughter of Joseph and Ginger Groff, of Elizabethtown. Evidently fence jumping was just what this lamb needed to get in shape for the fair.

Judge Don Witt of Champion Acres, Somerset County, also placed entries in five breeding sheep divisions before moving to the market classes. The top breeding sheep included

- Champion Cheviot - John Martin, 12, son of John and Marilyn Martin, East Earl.
- Champion Dorset - Angela Schildt, 14, daughter of David and Bonita Schildt, Elizabethtown.
- Champion Hampshire - Tracy Kauffman, 15, Reinholds.
- Champion Suffolk - Carey Donches, 15, daughter of Joseph and Susan Donches, Manheim.
- Champion Southdown - Mark Tracy

Yoxheimer To Head PDA's Cattle Health Division

HARRISBURG — A former federal official with more than 20 years of experience in administering animal health control programs in Pennsylvania will fill a key post in the State Department of Agriculture.

The appointment of Ronald E. Yoxheimer as chief of the Department's Cattle Health Division was announced recently by Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

Since 1983, Yoxheimer has been the area veterinarian in charge of the Federal Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service in Pennsylvania. He left federal employment on Aug.1.

Grubb said that in addition to directing the cattle health division, Yozheimer will temporarily oversee the Department's Avian Health programs. The post of chief of Avian Health is vacant at the present time. In both assignments, Yoxheimer will report to Dr. Max A. Van Buskirk, Jr., director of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

"The Department is fortunate," Grubb said, "to have a person with Dr. Yoxheimer's knowledge and experience to direct the state's efforts to assure animal health in the cattle and poultry industries - both important to Pennsylvania's economy.

Grubb said Yoxheimer will be directing cattle and poultry disease control programs administered by the veterinary and technical staffs in each of the Department's seven regional offices throughout the Commonwealth.

Yoxheimer, a native of Northumberland, brings broad experience in livestock and poultry health programs to the state post. He was associated with the federal APHIS program in Pennsylvania for 21 years, both as a field veterinarian and in supervisory capacities.

He served as acting veterinarian in charge of veterinary services from 1978 to 1982 prior to his appointment to the top post in 1983.

He has played a prominent role in disease eradication programs and served on a number of disease control task forces throughout the United States and in neighboring countries during his federal service.

He conducted the orignal epidemiology that located hog cholera in Pennsylvania in 1973 and served with the task force charged with eradication of the disease.

In addition to the California Newcastle Disease eradication program, he was assigned in 1975 to the Long Island task force on Exotic Newcastle Disease. He has performed similar duties on two such groups concerned with eradication of that disease in Pennsylvania.

Yoxheimer completed more than 20 training programs and courses conducted throughout the United States during his service with APHIS.

Beef Council Members

Both Bono and Mitzel will attend the first meeting of the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board Sept. 4-6 at Dallas, Tex.

Also named to the New York Beef Industry Council are Jean Shwartz of Earlville, the second New York Beef Cattlemen's Association representative; Ray Strahan of Freindship, the second Farm Bureau dairy representative; Peter Nixon of Westfield, the Farm Bureau beef representative; Harold Maynard of Savona, representing the caucus of New York beef breed associations; and Harrison Stanton of Holland Patent representing the Livestock Marketing Association. Dairy organization representatives Lee Shimel of Lafargeville and Keith Handy of Palatine Bridge. Still to be named are a representative of the New York Association of Meat Processors and a representative of veal producers.

Seedway Names Sales Rep

YORK – Eugene Hohl, marketing manager for Seedway's York division, announces the appointment of Jim Vizzard as sales representative for the company in eastern Pennsylvania and northern New Jersey. He will have sales responsibility for approximately 80 dealers in his new territory.

Jim is a 26-year-old native of Montgomery County, where he graduated from North Penn High School. He later attended the University of Maryland, receiving a degree in agriculture business management in the Institute of Applied Science two year program.

Jim sold John Deere farm equipment for a New Jersey dealership at Neshantic Station, NJ after graduation. While there, he was active with the Hunterdon County 4-H. Jim managed a Bucks County dairy farm for two years prior to joining Seedway on August 1.

Farm Credit Board Rejects Liquidation

McLEAN, Va. – The Farm Credit Administration Board has rejected a plan by the Amarillo Production Credit Association to voluntarily liquidate and withdraw from the nationwide cooperative Farm Credit System.

According to FCA Board Chairman Frank W. Naylor, Jr., "Allowing the Amarillo association to liquidate and withdraw at this time would set a precedent that could jeopardize the financial reliability of the Tenth Farm Credit District and perhaps the entire Farm Credit System."

The FCA Board was particularly concerned about the impact a withdrawal would have on the implementation of the Farm Credit Amendments Act of 1985.

Chairman Naylor also stated, "If the Amarillo association were to withdraw, it would frustrate the plan Congress devised to solve the System's financial crisis, and would adversely affect the ability of the Farm Credit System Capital Corporation to implement the self-help mechanism of the 1985 legislation. Withdrawal would also send the wrong signal to the financial markets," said the FCA Board Chairman.

The Chairman went on to say, "The Capital Corporation's capacity to carry out its mission depends in large part on the healthy institutions of the System. If those institutions withdraw their resources now it would make the work of the Capital Corporation very difficult."

"It is simply not consistent with Congressional intent to allow one institution, which has enjoyed the privileges and advantages that the Farm Credit System has provided in the past, to threaten the future of other System institutions by withdrawing when other member institutions are in need," said Naylor.

New High-Yield Rye Available

WILLIAMSTOWN, NY – A new rye seed developed by the Nova Scotia Ministry of Agriculture offers several advantages, according to the variety's major propagator, Davey-Joan's, of Williamsport, New York.

The company claims up to 80 bushel-per-acre yields and high resistance to winter injury, lodging and sprouting. Although rainfall was above normal during June, July and August, no lodging or sprouting was in evidence, says the company.

Kustro, a fine-seeded rye variety, can be planted from the second week in September until Nov. 1, with the first week in October being the optimum time. The rye grows late into the fall and starts early in spring.

Seed is available in bulk amounts and bushel bags. For information contact: Davey-Joan's, Rt. 13, P.O. Box 173, Williamstown, NY, 13493, phone: 315-964-2294.

W-L, Beachley Announce New Alfalfa Variety

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. – W-L Research Inc., a national alfalfa seed research company, and Beachley-Hardy Seed, recently announced the development of a new variety, W-L 225.

After years of extensive research, development and field testing, W-L 225 is now ready for commercial introduction. It is a dormant variety with high yield potential and strong pest and disease resistance.

In studies performed on many sites throughout the country, W-L 225 is proving to be competitive where harsh winter conditions, Verticillium Wilt and Phytophthora Root Rot typically hinder hay yields and quality. W-L 225 is recommended for its tough, winter hardiness, and its high yielding, high quality performance.

Contact your local Beachley-Hardy dealer for more information.

New Machine Protects Nutritional Value Of Hay Crop

ROCK SPRINGS – A new technique to protect the nutritional value of a hay crop after harvest has been imported by Mega-Tech International.

SilaWrap completely covers round bales with stretch-wrapped plastic film which arrests fermentation earlier than other types of systems. Sugars, proteins and other nutrients are preserved, enhancing the quality and palatability of the feed.

"The end product is highly nutritious," said Andrew Eills, executive vice president of Mega-Tech. Farmers can cut, condition and bag the same day. No additive is needed, he said.

The machine attracted considerable interest among farmers at Ag Progress Days, an agriculture fair held recently at Rock Springs.

"I like it. I'm glad it's here," said Tom Fisher, a Somerset County farmer. "We made our first round bales this year," he said, adding, "If you're going to make round bales, you have to have a way to store them."

"What it appears to be doing, we've needed desperately," manufacturing representative Dick Griffith said. "It's quite an improvement."

Manufactured and perfected in Europe, the new machine works right in the field. A lifting arm picks up the bale and gently places it onto a specially-designed turntable and dual roller platform.

Stretch film is tucked into the bale or under a string. The rollers then slowly turn the bale as the turntable rotates, tightly wrapping the bale with film. When completely covered, the film is cut and tucked in and the turntable raised to roll off the bale.

Designed for one-man operation, all SilaWrap functions are hydrostatically controlled. A single bale can be wrapped in 50 seconds at a cost of approximately $3 per bale. One man can wrap 50 bales in 90 minutes. SilaWrap may be used with any size bale and any type of haylage.

The specially manufactured film has formulated elasticity to maintain the bale tightly wrapped and in shape. If a bale is punctured, the hole does not enlarge. Air does not circulate so damage is localized.

Repairs can easily be made by covering the hole with the one-sided tacky film. But most important, the end product consists of sweet-tasting, high-nutrient haylage so the farmer can reduce his reliance on additives.

Imported by Mega-Tech International, a supplier of specialized agricultural plastics, a sales network for SilaWrap is presently in the process of being established. The product is being distributed locally by Cummings and Bricker, Inc. For more information write Mega-Tech International, P.O. Box 123, Macungie, PA 18062 or call 215-481-9292.

Backflush System Prevents Mastitis Spread

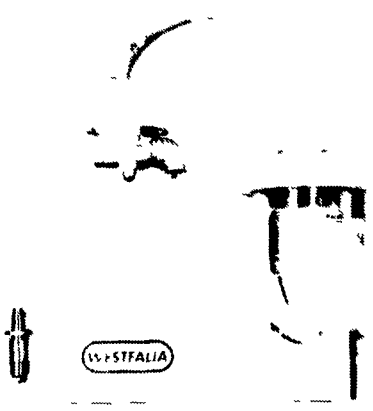
ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. – A newly developed manual backflush system, designed to sanitize milker units between cows, is now available from Westfalia Systemat.

The Westfalia Manual Backflush Sanitation System offers an economical, safe and reliable way of assisting in the control of spreading mastitis-causing bacteria by milker units between cows. The system utilizes a "one-time use" germicidal solution, mixed in-line to the proper strength. The solution is delivered under pressure from a mounted chemical dispenser to conveniently located manual backflush valves.

The Backflush System's pressurized sanitizing solution flushes the entire milking cluster, as well as the inflations. To prevent solution from entering the pipeline, a milk hose shut-off valve is required. The one-time used sanitizing solution is safely discharged through the inflations to the drain.

Westfalia's Manual backflush Sanitation System can be used continuously or on an on-need basis in any milking parlor, stanchion barn or flat milking barn. The Westfalia system will work with any brand of pipeline milker or bucket claw with shut off.

For additional information contact: Westfalia Systemat, 1862 Brummel Drive, Elk Grove Village, Illinois 60007.



Westfalia's manual backflush delivers pressurized sanitizing solution to entire milking cluster, including inflations.

Doebler Introduces Hybrid At Field Days

JERSEY SHORE – Bus tours and introduction of three new Eastern corn hybrids will highlight field days announced by Doebler's Hybrids for September 7, 13 and 14.

According to Ted Doebler, president of the family firm, the field days will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Pine Creek Seed Farm, Jersey Shore. This is located 1,000 feet south of the Pine Creek exit of Route 220 between Williamsport and Lock Haven.

"Growers will be able to check and compare new hybrids, old favorites and experimentals," the seed producer said.

Bus tours will give visitors a chance to inspect 1900 acres of seed corn as well as the unique drying system and high tech grading tower.

Also on display will be the company's new computer system and a high pressure, reel type irrigation system.

A free lunch will be provided.

Hundreds of hybrid corns are tested each year, Doebler pointed out. Only three made it for 1987.

A new 112-day hybrid made the list by outshelling a popular full cousin by 20.1 bushels.

A new 110-day hybrid, with big stalks and high grain yields, gives growers the option of combining or filling silo.

Perhaps stealing the show is a three-way cross for the 80s. It matches the yields, health and stalk quality of the modern single grosses but at a bargain basement price. This because of the ease of producing.

Introducing....

The NEW De Laval® FEED CAR™ Stanchion Feeder

NOW...All the advantages of automatic individually controlled feeding is available for stanchion and tie-stall barns.

The principle of feeding little and often is now available and affordable. Now 30-40 cow operators can have the same benefits as large operators. You can give each cow an individually programmed ration based on milk production, stage of lactation and other factors you want to consider, feed small amounts up to 10 times every 24 hours. It's accurate and automatic, feeds 4-to-5 cows per minute with one or two types of feed; and has optional automatic refill. Travels around your barn on an overhead monorail. Owners report it can pay for itself in 18 months or less!

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

When Will Prices Stop Falling?

Does that sound like a familiar refrain? It is not only farm commodities that have falling prices. The prices of many other commodities such as oil, metals, and even money are also falling. Agriculture benefits from the reduction in price for some of these items such as oil and some chemicals. Initially the politicians were happy to see these prices fall, because it looked good in their reports to the people back home when they said "cost of living goes down." Now some of them are having second thoughts about this "commodity deflation." The problem was too rapid of a decline in such a short period of time. Thus, some of Agriculture's prime customers, with falling prices of their own, were no longer able to buy our farm commodities. Thus, their falling commodity prices helped to cause our commodity prices to fall.

It is interesting to read about this world-wide problem because it mirrors the problem faced by American farms today. Almost everyone believed that commodity price increases were almost a given. As a result, lenders encouraged producers to borrow more and more money. The U.S. government did its part by making, underwriting or guaranteeing additional loans. Almost no one was turning commodity loans down. As loans increased, the need to make more money to service those debts resulted in more and more production. Oversupply began to develop. World demand began to weaken in relation to available supplies, yet producers had to continue to produce to their fullest extent and of course borrow more money to increase production even further. Does this sound familiar, as if I was talking about farmers and farm commodities? Well farm commodities are one of the problems, but the item could just as easily be any other commodity such as silver, oil, aluminum, iron, zinc, rayon, or paper. Farmers, just like the producer countries with an oversupply of commodities, are continuing to overproduce in order to pay their debts.

What Can Be Done?

This is a question without an answer. Some of the things an individual farmer can do to overcome his or her own problem may be repugnant to that individual. One of the solutions that an individual has is to change jobs. This is not as simple as it appears in writing.

First, the individual must become convinced that the change will benefit the family members. Second, the individual must become convinced that there could be satisfaction in doing as well as possible in an area other than farming. Then the individual must be sure that working in this other area would be financially advantageous to him or her. Finally, the individual must realize that there is no stigma attached to leaving farming. In some ways this last item is the most difficult to accept. The degree of education has little, if any, bearing on acceptance of the fact that operating a farm may not be possible. I have worked with people with advanced college degrees who were as adamant about their right to farm as those with no educational degrees. Many farmers who are actually failing in the farm business have skills and/or knowledge that could result in substantial increases of income, yet refuse to use these resources so they can farm. Circumstances may be blamed, but not really accepted as a reason for discontinuing farming. Sometimes it appears as though farming is an addiction.

Farmers in states like Pennsylvania have several alternatives outside of farming if they wish to pursue them. In the past, as well as now, many Pennsylvania farmers have become part-time farmers with a regular full time job along with their farm. For those who feel they might be interested in this direction, there is a correspondence course written to assist people in deciding which part time enterprise to pursue. Being a part-time farmer can be an end in itself or could be a way to ease out of farming or could be a good supplement to the off farm job income. As with full-time farmers, planning and records are important if profits are a goal.

Most farmers in Pennsylvania can get a job outside of the farm if they truly desire to do so. Farmers have a reputation of knowing how to work. This reputation gives a farmer seeking off farm employment an edge over other equally qualified candidates for a particular job. Also consider the many and varied job experiences a farmer has had. Some farmers in the past have obtained part time farm jobs in addition to the non-farm job. These part-time farm jobs range from doing occasional weekend chores for a neighboring farmer to harvest time employment. Some former farmers say they enjoy the farm work more now than they did before when debt payments were such a worry. Both part-time farming and part-time farm jobs can help a former farmer to adapt to a new way of life. Some former farmers with a college education have been able to use that college degree and their farm experience to become farm advisors with banks and other lending institutions, extension service, feed companies, or other ag related businesses or services. Others have started up their own ag related businesses. I know that once a person has worked in the field of agriculture, it is very difficult to leave that area of work. I have only to look at myself as an example. I was never interested in moving away from agriculture despite the lure of more money and less hours elsewhere. I also have been a part-time farmer for most of my life.

Sigrist Appointed Conservationist

COLLEGE PARK, MD – Michael P. Sigrist has been appointed assistant state conservationist for field office production for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Maryland. The promotion was announced recently by Pearlie S. Reed, state conservationist.

"I'm excited to be in this new position," Sigrist said. "I am looking forward to working in all counties in the state."

Sigrist, 36, will supervise the employees in the state's 23 field offices and area field specialists. According to Reed, Sigrist will be responsible for coordinating programs and lending special assistance to field offices

Beef Show Champions Named At South Mountain Fair

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE – Almost 50 head of beef cattle were paraded out for the Adams County Beef Show held in conjunction with the 65th South Mountain Fair here August 28. Serving as official judge for the evening was York County native and noted livestock judge, Laurie Dobrosky.

South Mountain Farm owners, Ray and Mary Grimes, McKnightstown, dominated the Charolais Show, capturing first place in all the classes except the junior heifer class. South Mountain also exhibited the grand champion female, a junior yearling heifer, SMF Margaret. The judge granted the champion more frame and muscling over the reserve champion female, ALS Silver Gina, the winning junior calf shown by Amy Sherman, Abbottstown.

In the Polled Hereford show there was strong competition, with Lewis Hilbert, Littlestown collecting the rosette for the grand champion female of the show with his two-year-old cow, SF Miss Rockette. Reserve grand champion female went to Duane Glessner, Waynesboro, with his winning junior heifer calf, GBF Sara. Dobrosky noted a close placing in the championship, stating that as the calf matures she may well become the better animal, but that she had to go with the maturity of the two-year-old cow at this time.

Competition in the Santa Gertrudis breed was limited to one herd. Chapel Ridge Farm, Gene and Linda Moose, Gettysburg, exhibited all the entries in this breed.

There was only one Simmental entry, SSF Generation Gandhi, a junior bull calf, exhibited by Tim Spangler.

Penn State Agronomists Receive Awards

UNIVERSITY PARK – Three Penn State agronomists recently received awards from the Northeastern Branch of the American Society of Agronomy.

Douglas Beegle, Thomas Watschke and Ann Wolf were recognized for their exceptional contributions to agronomic science, education and service.

Dr. Beegle, assistant professor of agronomy, received the industry-extension award. His work focuses on soil testing and soil fertility. He has initiated major changes in Penn State's soil testing program through new soil test calibration work and has developed a manure analysis pilot program for Pennsylvania. The program is helping improve on-farm nutrient management for maximum economic benefit with minimum environmental impact.

The teaching award went to Dr. Watschke, professor of turfgrass science. He teaches several turfgrass management courses for both baccalaureate and certificate program students. Through lively teaching, slides and class projects, "he makes you want to learn," as one of his students commented. Dr. Watschke received the Gamma Sigma Delta Teaching Award in 1982.

Ann Wolf, director of Penn State's Soil and Forage Testing Laboratory, received the graduate student research award. Ms. Wolf, whose research interests lie in increasing the efficiency of fertilizer use while protecting environmental quality, is working on her Ph.D. in agronomy. She is the author or co-author of 11 publications. Results of her research on soil phosphorus will be used in USDA models designed to evaluate the impact of non-point source pollution on water quality.

Keeping The Show Circuit In Perspective

BY RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Every summer I have the opportunity to serve as a judge for several livestock shows on Delmarva and in surrounding areas.

Prior to my arrival at the county fairgrounds, hogs are washed, brushed and trained to drive by a lot of enthusiastic young 4-H and FFA exhibitors. Hours are devoted to raising that one animal that will be named champion of the show.

The champion is then offered for sale at a livestock auction and usually fetches a handsome sum far in excess of the going market price.

Parents and supporters of such sales are always trying to find buyers willing to spend record amounts of money for an animal that for all intents and purposes is worth the market price. Why are these sales popular and why do we put so much emphasis on one judge's opinion? These are questions that deserve some thought.

Livestock projects provide a youngster with the opportunity to raise an animal to market weight. Along the way, he or she should learn some of the finer points of feeding, health and general management of the livestock species being raised.

In addition, some general costs of production should be kept to determine the profitability of the project. These records keep everything in perspective and let the youngster know how they're doing in the hog business. But then, along comes the champion hog with its high price tag.

While it's true that selling a champion hog at a fair provides a youngster with money for college or further livestock endeavors, the experience doesn't paint a realistic picture.

How many times do we in the industry get to sell a hog for two, three, five or 10 dollars a pound or more? You know the answer is never. While we like to see a youngster receive a good price for a champion, it's up to us as leaders of 4-H, FFA and other youth groups to keep the experience in perspective.

One of the biggest disappointments I've had over the past few years regarding livestock projects is a direct result of high-selling champion animals. As the price per pound increases, so does the amount of money a youngster will spend for the project animal. It's not uncommon at all for kids to spend a hundred dollars or more for an outstanding feeder pig. This in turn makes it next to impossible for the exhibitor to break even unless they win the championship.

Believe me, there have been a lot of disappointed kids when a judge's final verdict comes in. Remember that there is only one champion, and at larger shows several youngsters may have paid big bucks for their project animals.

Who profits from all of this? You can't totally fault the producer, who finds out that all of a sudden his pigs can demand a higher price. However, it's important to realize that spending a lot of money for an outstanding feeder pig does not ensure a champion.

Then there's the judge. A judge is only one person giving one opinion. What if the judge at your particular fair doesn't like your pig? The judge doesn't care how much you paid for your hog, only what it looks like on show day.

The point I'm trying to make is that winning a championship at a fair is a nice thing to have happen to you, however, learning about livestock is the real reason to become involved in a livestock project.

I'm one of the fortunate individuals who became interested in livestock through 4-H projects. It doesn't matter how much you spend on an animal if the main objective is learning about livestock and the livestock industry. Learning is a main objective of 4-H and FFA, and as project leaders it's our responsibility to ensure that the youth involved are aware of the realistic objectives of raising livestock.

I'm not trying to say that champion sales should be discontinued, but rather that the youngsters involved in raising animals keep a realistic perspective on their projects.

Hog producers can help by making a few good feeder pigs available for project animals at a fair market price. Invite a youngster to view the pigs and provide adequate information about them with regard to their potential growth rate and efficiency. Better yet, become involved as a project leader for a 4-H club or FFA chapter and share some of your knowledge about the hog industry.

Working together we can ensure that knowledge remains the number one objective of our junior livestock projects and shows.

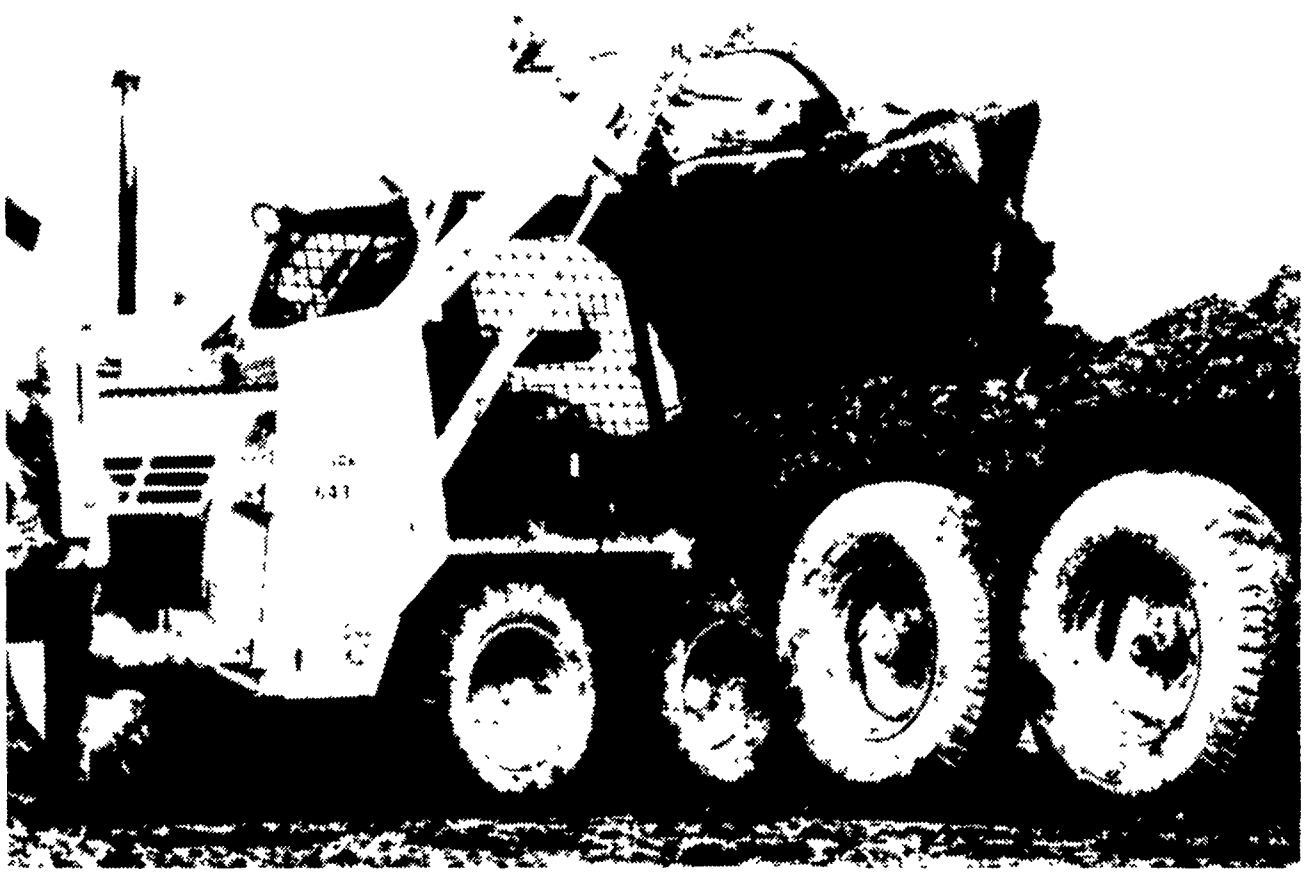
QUALITY WORK AT OUR END
MEANS QUALITY WORK AT YOURS.



The Melroe Company insists on maintaining the highest standards of quality in design and manufacturing in their versatile Bobcat loader line. Like farmers, we demand high quality materials and workmanship, and that goes into every machine we build. Even with those stringent requirements, we supply you with a top quality loader at a competitive price.

That quality is reflected in ever-increasing demands for Bobcat loaders and attachments by farmers in every segment of the farming industry. Bobcat durability, ease of operation and maintenance, comfort and safety, parts and service reliability, and a strong dealer support network, give you job performance that can't be equalled by any other loader.

The Melroe Company's dedication to building quality machines is your assurance of value and performance. Farmers have learned to rely on Bobcat quality to help build their own business on that same reputation.

Quality work - we're in it together!

Griggs Tops Crawford Co. 4-H Market Lamb Sale For Second Year

BY NANCY KUNICK
Crawford Co. Correspondent

MEADVILLE — The young owners of the champion and reserve champion market swine brought home the bacon from the 14th annual 4-H Livestock Market Sale at the recent Crawford County Fair held at the fairgrounds in Meadville. Both porkers shattered previous sale records with prices that notched a 50 percent increase.

Garnering champion for the first time, 13-year-old Tina Cutshall of Meadville sold her 255-pound hog to Reimold Brothers for $6 per pound. The previous record of $3.50 per pound was set last year on a purchase by First National Bank.

This year, First National Bank purchased the reserve champion, owned by Brenda Holsopple of Venango, for $5.75 a pound which tops a 1982 record price of $3.15 a pound.

Including the champions, 34 hogs sold for an average price of $2 per pound. The average price per pound without the champions dropped to $1.69.

In the steer auction, Brenda Williams, of the Fabulous Farmers 4-H club in Atlantic, claimed the high bid of $3 per pound for her more ideally finished steer. The 1,040-pound champion sold to Bush Insurance Agency of Meadville.

The reserve champion set a new record with a bid of $2 per pound, passing the $1.90 mark set one year ago by the same buyer, Thorne's Supermarket. John Weston, owner of the 1986 reserve champion, also owned the 1983 reserve champion market steer. The 14-year-old showman is a member of the Saegertown Beef 4-H Club.

Excluding the champions, the 43 steers averaged 95 cents a pound. The average price increased to $1.02 a pound with the champion prices.

Shawnya Griggs, Hartstown, exhibited the champion market lamb for the second consecutive year. The 10-year-old member of the Conneaut Lake Ag Club sold her 124-pound lamb to Thorne's Supermarket for $9.50 per pound. Thorne's also purchased Griggs' 1985 champion lamb.

Mike Ernst, a member of the same club, garnered a bid of $9.25 for his 113-pound reserve champion from auctioneers Nicolls and Allen.

The 45 lambs brought an average of $2.30 per pound; with the champion's price added in the average increased to $2.62.

Auctioneers for the fast-paced sale were Earl, Dave and Bruce Nicolls, Gary Shidemantle, George Palhunik and Sherman Allen. Several of the sale animals were purchased and later donated to area non-profit groups.

Picnic With Scranton Set For Agribusiness

An ag picnic with Bill Scranton will be held rain or shine on Saturday, September 13 at Willow Mall Park near Mechanicsburg, it has been announced by Dennis Grumbine, chairman of the Agriculture for Scranton Committee.

Festivities start at 11:30 a.m. and continue to 3:30 p.m.

"This gives farmers and agribusiness people a chance to meet the gubernatorial candidate one to one," Grumbine commented.

Pennsylvania Ag Republicans are co-sponsors.

Willow Mill Park is located near the intersection of Routes 11 and 114 between Camp Hill and Carlisle.

The park can be reached from Interstate 81 by taking Route 114 south from Exit 18.

Tickets are now being sold by members of the two sponsoring organizations. They also can be obtained by phoning 717/234-4901. Ask for Burt.

Feldstein Announces Retirement Plans

DOYLESTOWN — Dr. Joshua Feldstein has announced his intention to retire as President of Delaware Valley College, effective June 30, 1987.

Feldstein has been associated with the Doylestown school for the past 47 years, first as a student of the National Farm School Class of 1942, later as an instructor at the National Agricultural College and then as Dean in charge of academic affairs and administration of Delaware Valley College. Feldstein was elected President of the College by the Board of Trustees and assumed office on July 15, 1975.

"I view this as a new beginning for myself and for the College," said Feldstein. "For me, it will be a challenge. The College has been my life, and I intend to stay closely associated with it."

Among the notable accomplishments of Feldstein's 12 years as president is the addition of two new academic majors: agribusiness in 1983 and Computer Information Systems Management in 1984. An extensive effort to renovate existing buildings and add new structures was also undertaken. The James Work Memorial Stadium was completed in the fall of 1978.

Later years saw the construction of the Agricultural Machinery Complex, dedication of the Kenneth W. and Helen H. Gemmill Center for Animal Husbandry in 1980, the addition to the Greenhouse Laboratory, which includes landscape design room, floriculture laboratory and faculty offices in 1983, and the opening of the Sydney J. Markovitz Equine Facility in the spring 1984.

The past year's projects included renovation of Allman Building for classrooms and computer facilities, and marked the beginning of a major project to renovate the College's Small Animal Laboratory.

But perhaps the most significant building project of Feldstein's tenure as president is the Student Center, which opened in the fall of 1983.

"I am extremely proud of the Student Center," Feldstein said. "We knew there was a need for such a building on campus and the Student Center has filled that need. It was a monumental project that required the dedication of a great number of people. But it was well-worth the hard work."

Feldstein immigrated to the United States from Lithuania in 1939 and enrolled in the National Farm School, where he graduated with a diploma in Horticulture in 1942. He received his Bachelor of Science degree from the National Agricultural College, as it was later named, in 1952.

Following graduation, he joined the instructional staff at the school as an assistant instructor and did post-graduate work in agricultural machinery.

Feldstein then attended Rutgers University where he received his Masters of Science degree in Horticulture in 1956 and his Ph.D. in Horticulture in 1962.

He became Professor of Horticulture at the College in 1965 and chaired the Horticulture Department from 1959 to 1969. He was named Chairman of the Plant Science Division in 1966. In 1969 he was appointed Associate Dean of the College, becoming Dean in 1973.

Feldstein and his wife, Miriam, have two sons, Theodore and Daniel. Theodore and his wife, Diane, live in Doylestown and Daniel lives at his parent's home.

Dr. Joshua Feldstein recently announced his retirement effective June 1987, as president of Delaware Valley College.

Cut Costs, Not Corners.

With the Bush Hog Squealer It's a Bush Hog rotary cutter at a smaller price But don't let the price fool you The Squealer's engineered with the same quality features that are making Bush Hog the biggest name in farm implements The gearbox is Bush Hog-designed and Bush Hog-patented The cutter blade tips move faster than other economy cutter's, for more efficient cutting The optional elliptical blade pan on the 36" and 42" wide models and the standard elliptical blade pan on the 48", 60" and 72" wide models are similar in design to the blade pans used on larger Bush Hog cutters (only scaled down a little, to each of the Squealer's five sizes) So while the Squealer may be inexpensive it's no toy It's tough It's efficient Because like all 100 Bush Hog implements, including the 20 new models we've introduced in the last 12 months, it's engineered to cut what needs cutting most in farming these days Costs

Home State Breeders Top Ohio State Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio – Home state Angus breeders swept the 98-head Angus show at the 1986 Ohio State Fair held in Columbus by exhibiting every champion bull and heifer. Judge of the event was Mark Richardson, Milton, Ind.

Summitcrest Farms, Summitville, had a good day showing, as they exhibited the grand champion bull, B R Monopoly and the reserve grand champion bull, H F Mainstream.

Monopoly was first named the junior champion bull before receiving the grand champion banner. Owned by Beaver Ridge Farm, Middletown, Ind., he is a January 1985 son of Pine Drive Big Sky.

Before being named the reserve grand champion bull, Mainstream was earlier awarded the senior champion title. He is an April 1984, QLC Winchester son and is co-owned by Huntingdon Farm, Alexandria, Pa.

In the female show, judge Richardson gave his final nod of approval for grand champion to his intermediate winner, K A F Miss Lady Madonna. She is a May 1985 daughter of QLC Winchester and is owned by Brent Billman, Ostrander.

Eilen Bergfeld, Summitville, was directed to the reserve grand champion female spot with her entry, Summitcrest Miss Angus T137. Also named the junior champion, this heifer is a March 1985, HAR Bang 1774 daughter.

Senior and reserve grand champion Angus bull at the 1986 Ohio State Fair, Columbus, was H F Mainstream. He is owned by Summitcrest Farms, Summitville, Ohio, and Huntingdon Farm, Alexandria, Pa.

Hatfield Buys Fayette Co. Champs

Witman Named To Commonwealth Advisory Board

HARRISBURG – The appointment of Jay M. Witman of Manheim as a member of the Northeast Advisory Board of Commonwealth National Bank has been announced by Larry Zielinski, senior vice president and manager of the bank's Lancaster Region. Witman, an auctioneer and appraiser, is a partner in both J. Omar Landis Auction Service in Ephrata and Omar The Tent Renter in Ephrata.

Jay Witman

A 1971 graduate of Manheim Central High School, Witman is a graduate of Reppert School of Auctioneering, Decatur, Indiana, and the Stevens Trade School where he studied real estate appraising.

Witman is a past president of the Manheim Rotary Club, chairman of the Brethren Disaster Relief Auction, and past secretary-treasurer of the South East Auctioneers Association.

Members of Commonwealth National's advisory boards serve as advisors on such bank matters as business and community development and quality of service at the bank's branches in the board's area. The Northeast Advisory Board serves the following Commonwealth National branch offices: Centerville, Lititz Springs, Manheim Township, New Holland, and Park City.

Somerset Sale Topples Previous Records

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE – Almost 300 animals went on the block in a record breaking sale at the Somerset County Fair Friday evening, August 22. Before the auctioneer's gavel had pounded out the last sale, $144,626 was paid for 109 steers, 98 pigs, and 81 lambs.

Top bidder Godin & Godin Coal Co. of Boswell paid $7 a pound for Greta Mostoller's 1,270 pound grand champion Simmental-cross steer. The winning bid was $4.10 over the previos record.

Kermit Stahl's reserve grand champion Chianina cross steer, weighing in at 1,280 pounds went for $3.75 a pound to the Philson National Bank of Berlin, also topping the previos high of $2.85.

Somerset County Market kept up the pace, buying Joe Speicher's 216 pound grand champion Duroc hog for $6 a pound, a 75-cent increase over the past record. The reserve grand champion hog, a 222 pound Spotted - Yorkshire gilt owned by Diana Auman, sold to Philson National Bank for $5.25 a pound, a full $2 increase over the bid record set in 1983.

Rounding out the field, LaRue Meat Processing Co. of Somerset bought the 123 pound grand champion Suffolk lamb from Theresa Phillips for $9 a pound. The previos record was $6.70 a pound. And Philson National Bank provided the winning bid for Gretchen Sheeder's 122 pound reserve grand champion Hampshire lamb at $7 a pound, topping the 1982 record of $4.85 a pound.

Top buyer for the sale was A. J. Walker Feed Service of Somerset, paying $9,054 for 13 animals. Steer sales brought a total of $111,350. Hogs auctioned for a $21,914 total, and the final tally on lamb sales was $11,361.

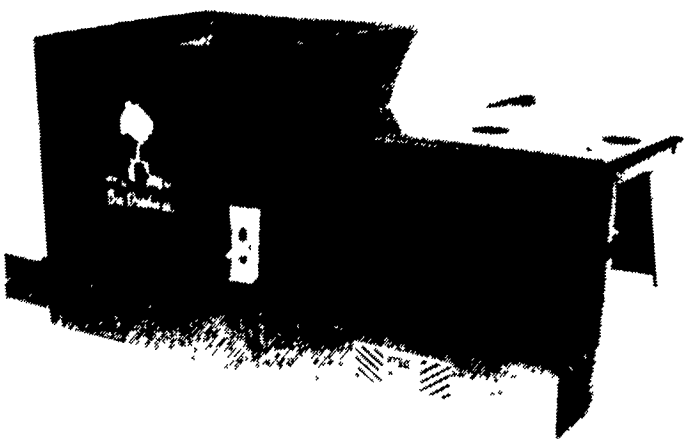
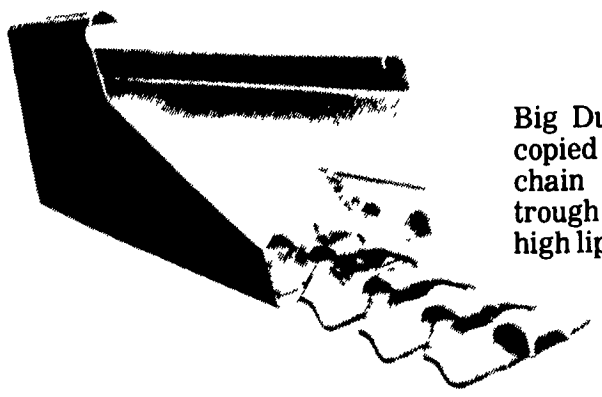
BIG DUTCHMAN FEEDING SYSTEMS FOR LAYER AND PULLET CAGES

Built on Thoroughly Proven Designs. No Other Feeder Beats it for Reliability and Performance



The straight hopper drive unit is easy to work with and simplifies maintenance. The standard hopper is powered by a helical gear-motor drive.



Big Dutchman feeder chain is the original, which is now copied by nearly all poultry equipment companies. The chain literally carries feed in the trough. The Big Lip trough effectively reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl.

Corner wheel assembly guides the chain and feed around the turns to make the endless flat chain conveyor possible. The fluted idler wheel and corner rail keep the chain running true.

Pork Producers Change Views Of Product

BY RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Over the past several months, I've had the opportunity to talk with several people involved in the livestock industry regarding consumer concerns about fat in the diet. On two separate occasions, it was suggested that producers need to change their own attitudes about the livestock they grow.

You see, producers have the habit of referring to their market hogs as fat hogs. This term is not acceptable to consumers and should not be acceptable to producers either.

Trends in the hog industry are toward leaner, meatier hogs not — fat ones. Our descriptive names for market animals need to reflect the type of product we're trying to produce.

Fat is not a positive term in today's society. It's become associated with health concerns, and the American consumer is constantly reminded that fat makes up too much of his daily caloric intake.

But why the big fuss? Aren't today's pigs leaner than those produced 10 or 15 years ago?

Everybody associated with the pork industry knows that today's pigs are leaner. Along with this leaness, they're also more efficient to produce.

The problem is that even though we raise a lean product we still refer to it in our old terms. Believe me, I'm as guilty as the rest of the pork industry in doing this. I've used the description "fat hogs" and have been wrong in doing so.

What's the solution? First of all, let's all get out of the habit of using the term "fat" in referring to our livestock. If you ever hear me say it, point it out to me, and I'll do likewise. It's not easy changing language we've used over 10 or more years, and we all can use a little help.

Instead of saying "fat," why not substitute "market" or "market ready." "Finished" might also be a good term to use when referring to our market hogs.

Another problem faced by our industry is a lack of desirable product in the store meat cases. I don't know how many pork producers have mentioned to me that they can't find the type of pork, cut the way they like, in the meat cases.

For example, have you ever noticed how thin pork chops are cut for consumers? This is basically a ploy by the meat cutter to make more (but smaller) servings out of a given amount of meat. But have you ever tried to grill a ½ inch thick pork chop? The results are usually somewhere between shoe leather and brick. By the time the meat is cooked through, it's usually dry and flavorless.

As consumers, insist that the meat you buy is what you want. If you have to wait a couple of minutes before getting your order custom cut, do it. Encourage other people to do this, too.

We need to educate consumers that today's pork is leaner and more nutritious than ever. Here's where your state pork associations come into play. Educational materials and promotional campaigns organized by local pork producer groups can play a large role in educating consumers about the wholesomeness of pork.

However, we as producers also need to make some changes in the way we view our own product.

Weaver To Sponsor Benefit

LANCASTER — Victor F. Weaver, Inc. will sponsor the Weaver Zesty Wings Hot Hitters Contest to benefit the March of Dimes Saturday, September 13 at Zinn's Park.

The event features contestants in three divisions – men, women and children (10 to 15) – hitting slow-pitched softballs for distance.

"We're very pleased and excited about being able to help the March of Dimes by sponsoring the Zesty Wings Hot Hitters Contest," said Allen Tate, communication services manager at Victor F. Weaver, Inc. "We're looking forward to a competitive and fun day."

All contestants who enter will receive an event t-shirt, coupons for Weaver's new Zesty Wings and will be eligible for additional contest events and prizes.

"The Weaver Zesty Wings Hot Hitters Contest pure and simple is a fun event for the Lancaster area softball players," said Duane Peters, executive director of the Lancaster County March of Dimes.

There is a $5 entry fee for the Weaver Zesty Wings Hot Hitters Contest with proceeds going to the March of Dimes. More information on the event can be obtained by calling the March of Dimes office at (717) 397-6131.

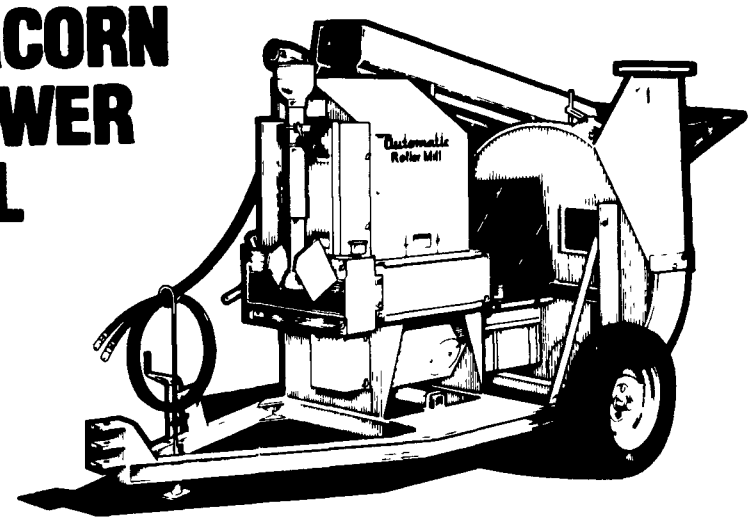
Automatic EARCORN BLOWER MILL



Automatic pioneered the development of the unique crusher unit which shells corn and shreds the cob ahead of the rollers which crack the kernels and reduce the cob further. No troublesome screens to change or slow down the capacity. It comes with 8-foot hydraulic intake auger and 54-inch blower. Also available with an 11-inch tilting discharge auger with 10-foot reach in place of the blower.

- UNIQUE CRUSHER ROLLS shell the corn, crush the cob ahead of the rolls, no screens to plug.
- FATIGUE-PROOF DRIVE SHAFTS, ground and polished.
- CARBON STEEL ROLLS, hardened to a 56 Rockwell "C", outperform other rolls in capacity and durability.
- 20-SPLINE, 1¾-inch PTO shaft with shear pin protection.

Patz Offers New Belt Conveyors/Feeders

POUND, Wisc. – The new Patz Model 8616C and Model 8616E Belt Conveyors/Feeders convey and feed with one machine, depending on options selected.

Central hoppers allow adding feed virtually anywhere plus conveying in either direction. Optional plowoffs deliver feed to other conveyors, feeders or feed carts.

The 16-inch concave belt conveys up to 62 cubic feet (or up to 2,000 pounds) of feed per minute. Select a smooth belt for horizontal conveying and slight inclines. Select a textured belt for inclines up to 30 degrees.

Feed up to six lots different rations, including delivery on either side of the feeder. A solid-state, instant-reverse motor powers the plow for greater reliability. Simple wiring in control panel also increases reliability.

An optional adjustable elbow allows for conveying up an incline and then level. The choice of end drive or central drive increases layout flexibility. Feeders mount down the center or on the side of feed bunks, or can be ceiling mounted.

The central-drive conveyor/feeder is available in lengths to 200 feet. The end-drive machine extends to 100 feet.

Hay Loaded

HINSDALE, IL. – Hay is loaded into a semi-truck for shipment to Bishopville, SC. The hay, donated by J I Case, manufacturer of Case IH agricultural equipment, was grown on land surrounding the company's Test Center in Hinsdale. The company-owned truck will take the hay to Interstate Tractor Company, the Case IH dealer in Bishopville, for distribution to farmers who have been affected by severe drought conditions. The hay lift is the third such effort supported by Case IH during the summer months. Hay from Joy, IL, near the Quad Cities, was shipped to farmers in North Carolina, and hay from Walworth County, WI, was shipped to farmers in the Montgomery, AL, area.

Drought-Stricken Corn Silage Feeding Needs Supplementation

BY
DR. GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — As if we didn't have enough problems already with surplus milk, buyout farm losses and reduced milk prices, along comes a one-in-a-hundred years drought in much of this area. Some corn was already stunted and very uneven before tasseling. Because of the drought, some of us are stuck with some sorry looking corn with sorry looking ears for filling our silos.

Fortunately, cows have a wonderful buffer system in their large rumen. They can adapt and keep going for some time on borderline feeds, although they may reduce their milk output in the process. But dairy farmers who need to make money to pay their mortgages can't afford to let this happen by including too much of such feeds in their daily milking cow ration. And drought-stricken corn is a borderline feed.

For one thing, it's a low yielder in tons per acre, so you need more acres to fill your silo. Our University of Delaware dairy strategy is to have enough silage on hand year-round for 12 months. This contrasts with other practices before my time here and certainly differs from the practices on many dairy farms in this region. So, did we plant enough acres this year to fill our silos, even under drought conditions? Or do we need to plant double-crop to extend our acreage to keep silos full–maybe with small grains plus vetch or millet and soybeans off-season for additional silage?

Because of poor ear set, drought-stricken corn is also a low yielder in terms of energy content per pound of silage eventually fed to our cows. In this sense, it compares more to sweet corn after ear harvest, which can be fed as silage but must be supplemented with more energy from concentrate supplements to keep milk production levels high.

Drought-stricken corn may be harvested too dry, which poses other problems. When this happens, it doesn't pack well, leaving trapped air to cause heating and molding instead of proper fermentation. The resulting silage may end up on your manure spreader instead of in the feed bunk. Wasted work, wasted feed, wasted money!

In borderline cases, such silage will at least heat up with so-called secondary fermentation in the feed trough. The result—reduced palatability, less feed intake, lower digestibility and less milk output. To save this borderline feed, drought-stricken corn that's too dry can be watered down with a hose during ensiling.

The optimum moisture content of corn for silage harvest is around 65 percent. You can easily check for this by weighing a handful of chopped corn before putting it into your microwave oven or on top of your tractor exhaust pipe, and then carefully weighing it again after drying, maybe 10 minutes. The percentage difference in weights gives you the moisture content.

Supplementary off-season silages from small grains need to be wilted down to the 50 percent to 60 percent moisture range for optimum fermentation. Corn that's harvested too early can also be too wet, in which case it will make inferior silage, producing very undesirable foul smelling seepage and nutrient losses.

One final thing to beware of in drought-stricken corn. It may be high in nitrates because of inhibited plant growth and inhibited utilization of nitrogen fertilizers.

Nitrates, if not in high levels, can be utilized by cows for protein synthesis by rumen microorganisms but drought stricken corn may have levels that are too high and toxic. Silage fermentation will reduce nitrate contents because of the generation of nitrous oxide gases that dissipate from tower silos; however, much less from horizontal silos. A silage analysis for nitrate contents after silo opening of drought stricken corn is a must so as to know how much of that borderline feed can be safely fed, probably only after diluting it with other feeds, hays, haylage, green chop and concentrates to reduce daily nitrate intake per cow down to safe levels.

Thus, after evaluating the conditions of drought stricken corn and considering that it is only a more or less borderline feed, it can be fed to dairy cows to get through these hard times.

4-H Livestock Sale Records Set At Maryland State Fair

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Better times are coming!

Late summer rains and cooler temperatures are slowly dissipating the effects of Maryland's worst drought in a century. So livestock exhibitors generally were in a good mood this year during the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Their optimism was helped along by spirited bidding in connection with the annual state fair 4-H and FFA livestock sale Aug. 27.

Prodded by auctioneers, ring men and crowd applause, a wide range of private and commercial buyers helped set new state fair record high prices for the grand champion and reserve champion animals in both the market hog and market lamb categories.

Record high average prices also were paid in all three major livestock categories - swine, sheep and beef cattle. However, prices for the top two animals in the latter category were far below the records established in 1984.

In the market hog sale, Chris Mullinix, 11, of Florence sold his 230-pound grand champion for $8.50 per pound - a new state fair record. The Yorkshire-Hampshire crossbred gilt was purchased by the Hatfield Packing Co. of Hatfield, Pa. It had been bred by Franklin E. Feeser of Taneytown, a well-known Carroll County pork producer.

Hatfield purchased a total of six market hogs in the state fair 4-H and FFA sale, including a 245-pound gilt exhibited by Vicki Reed, 16, of Longridge, the reigning Maryland pork queen. Hatfield paid $3 per pound for Vicki's pig. The Pennsylvania packer also purchased 37 FFA and 4-H market hogs brought to the state fair but not included in the auction sale.

Another Howard County exhibitor, Timothy Clark, 12, of Poplar Springs, had the reserve champion 4-H and FFA market hog. The 250-pound Yorkshire-Hampshire crossbred gilt brought $5 per pound from Ronald H. Shook of Dorrs Corner, an Anne Arundel County drywall and plaster contractor.

Shook purchased a total of eight market hogs during the 4-H and FFA livestock sale, as well as seven market lambs and the grand champion dairy steer. A former North Carolina farm boy, he owns a small farm adjoining the Severn Run environmental area in north central Anne Arundel County.

Average price for 28 market hogs in the 4-H and FFA livestock sale was $1.69 per pound - a new state fair record. This average does not include prices paid for the grand and reserve champion animals.

For the third time in four years, Gregory N. Hevner, 17, of Johnsville exhibited the grand champion 4-H and FFA market lamb at the Maryland State Fair. This year, his 115-pound purebred Suffolk wether sold for $12.50 per pound - setting a new state fair record. The buyer was Ronald H. Shook of Dorrs Corner.

Greg had established the previous state fair record price for market lambs with a 120-pound Suffolk wether in 1984. That lamb went for $10 per pound to Giant Food, Inc.

Another Frederick County resident, Robert O. Dinsmore, 11, of Broad Run exhibited the reserve champion lamb for the second consecutive year. The 125-pound wether went for $10 per pound to Deggeller Attractions, the state fair midway concessionaire for several years. Deggeller donated the lamb to the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation for resale at prevailing market prices.

The champion and reserve champion pairs of market lambs were not sold in the auction sale. They were exhibited by two Howard County brothers - Eric J. Widmaier, 13, and James C. Widmaier, 16, both of Florence.

Average price for 23 market lambs in the 4-H and FFA livestock sale was $1.71 per pound, a new state fair record. This average does not include prices paid for the grand and reserve champion animals.

Frederick County 4-H and FFA members now have exhibited the grand champion lamb at the Maryland State Fair every year since 1978 and the reserve champion lamb every year 1981.

For the first time in six years, the grand champion 4-H and FFA beef steer was not shown by a Howard County exhibitor. But it was close. The 1986 champion steer belonged to Melissa Harrison, 11, a Carroll County 4-H member who lives near Woodbine, just a short distance north of the Howard County line.

Melissa sold her 1,300-pound Angus-Chianina-Simmental crossbred for $2 per pound to Thompson's Food Market of Maryland Line. The animal previously had been named grand champion beef steer in the Wills 4-H and FFA spring fair May 17 at Gaithersburg.

Howard County did claim the reserve champion beef steer at the Fair for the seventh consecutive year. The 1986 honor went to Jennifer Turner, 13, of Daisy. Her 1,290-pound Angus-Chianina crossbred brought $1.30 per pound from Graul's Super Thrift of Hereford.

Jennifer's brother, Gene Turner, 15, exhibited the champion Angus steer in 4-H and FFA competition this year at the state fair. The 1,270-pound animal brought $1 per pound from R. H. Mullinix and Son of Lisbon.

Average price for 16 beef steers in the 4-H and FFA livestock sale was $1.03 per pound, a new state fair record. This average does not include prices paid for the grand and reserve champion animals.

Only the champion and reserve champion dairy steers were sold in this year's state fair 4-H and FFA livestock sale. Both were Holsteins.

William L. Swift III, 17, of Shepperd exhibited the champion dairy steer for the third time in four years. Another Baltimore County resident, Mark Price, 19, of Hampstead, had the reserve champion dairy steer. Mark, however, is a Carroll County 4-H member.

Bill sold his 1,250-pound champion for 65 cents per pound to Ronald H. Shook of Dorrs Corner. Mark's 990-pound reserve champion steer was purchased by his father, John Price, for 60 cents per pound.

Bill Swift was high individual in both oral reasons and overall breed competition during the national 4-H dairy cattle judging contest last fall at Madison, Wis. And he was a member of Maryland's national champion 4-H dairy cattle judging team which participated on June 18 in international competition during the Royal Highland livestock show near Edinburgh, Scotland.

Kewanee To Expand Tillage Line

KEWANEE, Ill. – Kewanee Farm Equipment Company will begin the manufacturing and North American marketing of an expanded line of tillage tools for tractors over 40 horsepower, company officials recently announced.

Some of the line, including disk harrows and coulter chisels, was previously built by Kewanee's sister company, Bush Hog of Selma, Alabama. Kewanee's current product line includes tandem and offset disks, cultivators, coulter chisels, mulchers, rear blades and grain augers.

Within the last three years, Kewanee has increased sales, lowered its break-even point, and posted profits despite decreases in sales in the tillage industry. Kewanee, which in 1912 was founded to sell hangers to dry corn to be saved for seed, was purchased by Allied Products Corporation in 1983. In addition, Allied owns Bush Hog, White Farm Equipment, New Idea; and Lilliston.

According to Lamont Webster, Kewanee sales manager, the consolidation of the tillage line improves the corporation's ability to supply quality tools at lower prices. He said, "Kewanee dealers and customers can expect more choices of competitively priced tools because the company will be producing at a higher, more economical production level."

Officials at Kewanee said that the consolidation of marketing and promotion resources will also improve the efficiency of the corporation's sales and merchandising programs.

New Wheat Offers Growers Opportunities

MT. JOY — Despite the fact snow cover, moisture levels and disease pressured many Pennsylvania wheat fields, growers were able to harvest higher than average yields with a new wheat variety.

A side by side comparison shows 2551 wheat from Pioneer averaged more than 81 bushels an acre in comparison with public varieties Tyler, Saluda and Scotty which averaged 75 bushels an acre in the same plot.

"Harvests from this wheat were above public varieties and were in the same yield range as hybrid wheat yields, but when you put a pencil to it, the difference in seed price makes the variety profitable," says Bill Fleet, eastern area agronomist for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

The spotty growing conditions Pennsylvania growers experienced are apparent when additional plot data is examined. Harvests on a Kirkwood area farm show that 2551 yielded 89 bushels per acre at 11 percent moisture. In the same plot, Tyler yielded 84 bushels at 11.3 percent and Saluda yielded 75 bushels at 12 percent moisture. A plot of 2551 near Mt. Joy yielded 61 bushels an acre at 12.5 percent moisture, while the average of another variety in the same plot was 50 bushels an acre. A Northumberland County plot near Donsife yielded 70 bushels per acre at 12.2 percent moisture. Other varieties in the Donsife plot yielded an average of 57 bushels an acre.

Much of the yield advantage can be attributed to the variety's defensive characteristics, strong straw strength and disease tolerance, but perhaps what sets it apart most is its multi-floret head.

"Field tests show that this variety has as many as 36 grains in each head. Other varieties will average around 26 to 29 grains per head. It makes sense that a wheat with that many more grains in each head will put more grain in the bin.

"Common sense also says to spread out risk and maturity by planting more than one wheat variety. Making 2551 part of a package of wheats makes economic sense, too," Fleet says.

Long heads with four grains in each mash or section top a new wheat variety that combines excellent defensive traits such as strong straws and disease tolerance with high yields.

WHY TRICAL ?

TRICAL ™

FOR HIGH QUALITY FORAGE HARVESTED AS SILAGE, HAY, OR GRAZE. VARIETIES AVAILABLE FOR SPRING OR FALL PLANTING.

HERE ARE WHAT TRICAL GROWERS ARE SAYING:

GENE N. EDWARDS, STITTVILLE, NY -"Trical was very winter hardy even with adverse weather conditions. We had a hard freeze, then open weather and then snow. We had a dry spring but Trical still yielded very well. If I hadn't had the 20 acres of Trical, I would have been buying feed at the time."

BOB GROSSNICKLE, WOODSBORO, MD - "The energy level of Trical really surprised me. It was 67.0% TDN. Trical reached 3 to 4 feet in height with very little rain. The tonnage was more than any other spring grain we ever harvested. (Harvested as forage) There was a definite height and leafiness over other spring grains; worked well for double cropping corn and soybeans."

LEO MARTIN, ST. ALBANS, VT. - "I was impressed with the winter hardiness of Trical. I cut 10 loads of Trical off 5 acres and probably lost 1 acre due to wet spots in the field. Even with adverse weather conditions it still allowed me to double crop with corn. My objective was to increase the quantity of forage that I could produce on limited acreage."

RON SHADDLE, MERCERSBURG, PA - "Excellent mix with alfalfa. Good tonnage (4 ton/acre) even with dry weather. Excellent smelling forage and had a protein level of 19.5%. I got an extra year from my alfalfa by using Trical."

REAL ESTATE, FARM MACHINERY, ANTIQUES
SATURDAY, SEPT. 13, 1986

10:00 A.M.

Located in Columbia Co., Greenwood Twp., 5 miles east of Millville or 8 miles from Benton off Rt. 254, 10 miles north of Bloomsburg.

The farm consists of 112 acres (+ or —) w/approx. 65 acres tillable and the balance wooded. The property has a creek running through it, a beautiful stocked pond, and a large quantity of road frontage. Situated on the land is a two story house and a 50'x78' 2 story barn (built in 1972) with a 200 pig confinement area. The home consists of a kitchen, LR, DR, entrance way with an open stairway downstairs, and 3 BR's and a full bath upstairs. The house has oil-fired hot air heat, drilled well, on-site septic, full cellar w/stone foundation and concrete floor, and a back porch.

If you're looking for a farm to set up in business, this is an excellent place to start, or with the amount of road frontage, it could easily be subdivided.
